Charleston Judge Fines Two

CHARLESTON - Robert Earl Isbell, 17, pleaded guilty to a charge in city court Thursday of destruction of private property, and was fined $7.

In court today, Gerald L. Wilfong, route two, Zalma, pleaded guilty to a charge of public intoxication, and was fined $13.

Last night at 8:30 p.m. the city police arrested Marian Ruth Hardin, 19, St. Louis, charged with breaking in the home of her grandmother, Annie Dee Smith, 502 Elm street. Mrs. Smith was in St. Louis on a visit at the time. She has been turned over to county authorities, awaiting the arrival of the grandmother.

Four Suspects Released

Police reported they have released the four suspects taken into custody Tuesday following the theft of jewelry at Voelker's Credit Jewelers, 137 East Front St. Prosecuting Attorney Tom Gilmore said the foursome was released because of insufficient evidence. Police are seeking a fifth suspect named "Willie" in connection with the theft.

Dividends Announced

Donald R. Bohannon, president of First National Bank, announced the payment of a quarterly dividend on July 17 1969 to all stockholders of record as of June 30, 1969. Bohannon stated the bank now has over 500 individual stockholders throughout the state of Missouri. Southern Illinois, Western Kentucky and Northeast Arkansas.

This was the first quarterly dividend the bank has paid, as they have usually been paid on an annual basis. The board of directors anticipates future payments of its dividends on a quarterly basis to all stockholders.

The dividend payment was 10 cents per share on 300,000 shares outstanding, Bohannon said.

Postal Employes Off Monday

The Sikeston Post Office will celebrate man's first steps on the moon with a Monday holiday.

The office will be closed, and no mail will be delivered. Most of the nation's 750,000 postal workers will have this Monday holiday.

The Daily Standard knows of no other Sikeston businesses that will close Monday.

Malden Chamber Elects Officers

MALDEN - A meeting was held last night for the election of Chamber of Commerce officers for the coming year. The yearend reports were made by President J. D. Byrum and manager Bill Crabtree.

Ronald Dye, manager of Malden Lumber company, was elected president. Joe Mosley, manager Overturf drug store, was elected vice-president. John Culp and Ray Bess, were elected to the board for a three year term; and Clarence Schoolfield, to a two-year term.

Chairman Dye said that between $13-$14,000 had been pledged for the new budget, which is an increase of $1,000 over last year.

The next meeting will be held within a month when the chamber program will be announced.

Miller Named to Council

Sikeston City Manager W. Raymert Miller has been named a member of the Bootheel Economic Development Council by Gene Sally, acting director of the state Department of Community Affairs.

The council, which is made up of about 15 persons from Dunklin, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Scott and Stoddard counties, is the official organization to administer the federal Economic Development Administration's district program.

Warrant for Arrest Issued

The highway patrol stated that a warrant had been issued to Roy Fields, 18 Neelyville, following the death of Dave L. Edmiston, 34, Dell City, Okla., driver of a BSA motorcycle.

The warrant was issued by Butler County authorities, charging that Shields had left the scene of the accident, after striking the vehicle from the rear on the night of July 12. The patrol said the youth was visiting in Indianapolis, Ind.

Cease-Fire Violation Claimed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

El Salvador and Honduras agreed provisionally to halt their war at dawn today but Honduras charged its neighboring enemy broke the cease-fire about two hours later by opening fire on the western front.

A government spokesman in Tegucigalpa, Honduras' capital, said the Honduran forces at Nuevo Ocotepeque returned the fire.

Up to that time, prospects had appeared good for a halt to the fighting that had been under way since Monday.

A peace committee of the Organization of American States remained in Tegucigalpa in its effort to achieve a formal cease-fire which both nations would respect.

Foreign Minister Francisco Jose Guerrero of El Salvador said the temporary cease-fire orders had been sent to command posts at all three fronts on which the Salvadoran army invaded Honduras.

Charline Freeman

Miss Freeman Rodeo Queen

Charline Freeman, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Freeman, 507 East Kathleen, has been named the 1969 Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo Queen.

Miss Freeman, who will be a senior in high school this fall, is scheduled to make numerous appearances before the rodeo, which will be held August 7, 8, 9, and 10. Plans have been finalized for her to appear at the Oran Centennial Celebration tomorrow.

On July 30, she will appear on WSIL —TV in Harrisburg, Ill. The following day she will appear on the Breakfast Show on KFVS-TV in Cape Girardeau. On August 1, Miss Freeman will be featured on the "Dance Party" show on WPSD-TV in Paducah, Ky.

The beauty with blond hair and blue eyes has many interests in school activities -- demerit chairman of the Red Peppers, Concert Choir, Modern Chorale membership in National Forensic League, Who's Who in the Junior Class and sports manager of intramurals.

Special interests include playing the piano riding horses, reading, driving a car and eating.

Cotton Allotments Discussed

By L. L. SCHADE

PORTAGEVILLE — A group of 50 bootheel cotton farmers and farm representatives banded together to form farm policies, primarily for the cotton grower, at a meeting held Thursday afternoon at the University Delta Center. The results are to be presented before a hearing before Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin, in Washington on July 29.

The meeting was in the charge of Hilton Bracey, representative Missouri Farmers Association who at the outset warned the group the "farm program is definitely in trouble, and Congress is in no mood to continue all the present farm programs."

It was pointed out that all national farm organizations have been meeting over the past several weeks to form policies to be given before the national agricultural hearing. The MFA to be the first to present its view.

Clell Carpenter, Jefferson City, who with other farm representatives met Secretary Hardin said, "Hardin is in favor of some kind of a price support, but I have every reason to believe that the federal program may go up to $740 million, and much of it will be in the form of a federal stamp program."

As speaker Bracey pointed out," the soybean program is still a question, as there are now 43 million acres in production, with a production of over one billion bushels, and the future production may have to come under a price support program.

After a more than two- hour discussion, the group was favorable toward adding the cotton production with a future food stamp program.

The meeting went on record that the 16 million acre cotton allotment for the nation be continued, and opposed the taking of land out of production as a substitute program, as is now under consideration.

Bracey said, "Congress is in the mood to support limitations on land payments, but there is not a farm in Missouri that would have more than a $20,000 payment.

Other points on the cotton program discussed were: Its need to protect farm income; to get cotton in the hands of growers who want to grow it by voluntary changeover method; cost of production must be kept down; by meeting the price competition, and re-establishing workable pricing arrangement in a world market for a good portion of the present 10 million bale production.

As was pointed out by Bracey, "no single group, a Democrat or Republican congress, any single farm organization, can pass a farm bill, but it takes all public groups to do so."

Other points discussed for a policy agreement included, that if cotton acreage is reduced, then soybean acreage would be increased; to continue domestic cotton allotment provision; continue diversion payments; continue price support payments; a substitution of non-surplus crops on cotton acreage in event of flood, drought or other natural disasters, as where in north Missouri where there is almost a complete loss of soybean crop, there is no payment on the loss.

Additional proposals included: Continue support payments based on projected yields; the group will oppose ceiling on total program expenditures, as being opposed to limitation payments to individuals; permit producers to plant up to 200 per cent of farm allotment without program benefits, but would be eligible for loan or penalities; permit acreage allotment easement over 10 to 20 years that would take 600,000 cotton acres on a long term diversion program; permit producers to plant unlimited acreage above domestic allotments for export market only; permit sale, lease or transfer between producers without regard to counties; eliminate mandatory diversion requirement before permitting voluntary diversion; required adjustments for abnormal condition, to reflect credit for losses; continue and adequately fund the Cropland Adjustment program, to include provision for grazing at lower payment rate;

To permit CCC stocks of cotton be offered in world markets on competitive bids; permit government reserve of cotton over normal carryover to assure customers with supplies available and prevent switching to man made fiber because of questionable supplies, and last to permit cotton products be included in all appropriate welfare programs, both domestic and foreign.

All or most of the 13 farm organizatons are in favor of adding fiber to the proposed food stamp plan, was brought out by Mr. bracey.

Hospital Withdraws Request From Local United Fund

Representatives from eight agencies of the United Fund were present Thursday afternoon at First National Bank Community room, to discuss their 1970 budget and requested a total of $44,542.

The total requests is about $2,500 over the request last year, when the amount totalled $42,000, of which a little more than $33,000 was raised for all agencies.

Mrs. Emma Owens, chairman of the Sikeston United Fund, presided at a meeting. All members were present. She announced a meeting would be held July 24, to discuss and pass on each of the agencies budgets.

The Missouri Delta Community hospital, an agency of the United Fund for many years was represented yesterday by E. P. Coleman. He stated the hospital would withdraw, and that any available funds be distributed to other agencies. He stated that the needs of the hospital are so great for welfare patients that other means would be provided to raise the necessary funds.

A new agency - the Sikeston Activity Center- is represented in the 1969-70 United Fund drive.

Their represtnative requested $3,000 to establish a community program for both the elderly and youth of Sikeston.

Other agencies' requests were: Salvation Army for $3,000; Red Cross, $5,000; Boy Scouts, $16,242; Girl scouts, $7,000; City Welfare, $9,300; United Service Organization, $500; Civil Air Patrol, $500.

Two new members will be appointed to the committee next week, to replace Melford Taylor and Joyce Payne, whose terms have expired.

Nixon Urges Expanded Family Planning Aids

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon told Congress today he wants to make available within five years free birth control advice to American women of child-bearing age with low incomes.

In a special message, Nixon estimated that nearly 5 million U.S. women "do not now have adequate access to family planning assistance.

Proposing an expansion and reorganization of federal family planning services, but giving no estimate of the increased spending involved, Nixon said:

"Clearly, in no circumstances will the activities associated with our pursuit of this goal be allowed to infringe on the religious convictions or personal wishes and freedom of any individual, nor will they be allowed to impair the absolute right of all individuals to have such matters of conscience respected by public authorities."

To expand family planning services, Robert H. Finch, secretary of health, education and welfare, told newsmen an initial $30 million will be needed plus $30 million annual increases until, in the fifth year, the cost exceeds $150 million.

He estimated more than onethird of all children born to low-income mothers are unwanted. Of 5.4 million women believed eligible for family planning assistance, Finch said only 800,000 currently are being served.

The chief executive, in the 5,000-word document, sketched out a rather bleak picture of the potential impact of the global population explosion if governments, private agencies and the United Nations fail to begin dealing now with anticipated problems.

In the United States alone, the population will increase nearly 100 million to more than 300 million by the year 2,000, he predicted.

Pointing to just one consequence of the expected population growth, Nixon said: "If we were to accommodate the full 100 million persons in new communities, we would have to build a new city of 250,000 persons each month from now until the end of the century."

Saying time for advance planning "is growing very short," he asked Congress to create a Commission on Population Growth and the American Future.

The panel would study population trends, canvass governmental resources needed to deal with a larger populace and study ways in which population growth may affect activities of federal, state and local government.

Dealing with the world at large, Nixon said the planet's population of 3.5 billion will be increased by an additional billion every five years after the year 2,000.

This growth rate, he said, poses particular problems for the developing nations, where the trend of increase is strongest.

Nixon pointed to potential major problems in such fields as housing, education, transportation, recreation, maintenance of pure air and water and providing employment for the millions of additional Americans.

"We can be sure that society will not be ready for this growth unless it begins its planning immediately," he added.

Apollo on Unerring Course

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The good ship Columbia raced unerringly toward the clutch of lunar gravity today, carrying three brave men toward a Saturday rendezvous with the moon and destiny.

Everything was going so well with the Apollo 11 mission that ground controllers let the astronauts sleep more than an hour past their appointed wakeup time.

"How do all our systems look?" Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. asked on waking.

"They're looking great," came the reply from the ground.

Aldrin, Neil A. Armstrong and Michael Collins had rested 11 hours.

Armstrong and Aldrin each reported eight solid hours of sleep, with Collins logging nine hours—resting for the critical weekend exploration ahead.

While the astronauts slept, their spaceship hurtled toward a co-called "twilight zone" in which the gravitational influence of the earth and moon is about equal.

At 11:22 p.m. EDT tonight, the moon will win the gravitational tug-of-war and Apollo 11 will be in the grip of the moon's gravity. The astronauts will pass through this invisible barrier when they are 43,495 miles from the moon and 214,402 miles from their shrinking home planet.

Once across this line, Apollo 11's speed will increase from about 2,000 to 5,700 miles an hour as the pilots sweep toward the backside of the moon.

They are to fire themselves into moon orbit Saturday afternoon and a day later Armstrong and Aldrin are to fly a lunar landing craft, or LM, to the surface. Early Monday, they are to take man's first steps on another celestial body.

Today's major event occurs late in the day when Armstrong and Aldrin wiggle through a connecting tunnel into the LM, nicknamed Eagle, hitched nose-to-nose to the Columbia command ship.

For two hours they are to check the systems of the spindly-legged lander. Mainly, they will look for damage that might have occurred Wednesday during the jolting liftoff from Cape Kennedy.

If they find major damage, they will cancel their landing plans. However, mission control officials say, chances of this are remote.

Still a mystery was the Soviet Union's unmanned Luna 15, orbiting just 71 miles above the moon's surface. There was speculation that today or Saturday it might detach a capsule which would land, collect soil samples and take off to rejoin the mother ship for the trip back to earth.

American experts said such a maneuver would be a great technological feat. They feel the Soviet purpose in such a maneuver would be to demonstrate they can return rocks to earth automatically and less expensively than the $355 million Apollo 11 mission.

Dr. Elbert King, curator of a laboratory in Houston where the Apollo 11 moon samples will be studied, said the rumored Luna 15 plan would be like "grabbing in the blind." He noted Armstrong and Aldrin are well trained to pick up meaningful rocks and to leave those of little scientific value.

Although Luna 15 orbited close to the planned 60-mile-high Apollo 11 path, officials said the chances of collision are almost nil.

Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins reported no problems with Columbia.

"It's a beautiful machine," Armstrong reported.

A minor problem that had nagged the flight since just after liftoff was resolved Thursday when ground experts traced it to a sensor giving a faulty reading on an oxygen flow indicator.

"It must have got a jolt during the launching," an official said. "It's like driving your car over a bump and having the gas or temperature indicator knocked over to the side and getting stuck there."

A brief course correction firing of Columbia's engine was so accurate Thursday that another firing planned today was canceled.

As Apollo 11 coasted toward its goal, a quarter million miles from earth, mission control officials said Armstrong and Aldrin might start their exploration as much as 3½ hour earlier than now planned.

"It's within the realm of

Woodward Promoted To Captain

L. G. Woodward, 50, who has served on the Sikeston Police Department since 1955, has been promoted to captain upon the recommendation of Police Chief Arthur Bruce.

Woodward, 308 Greer, who has served as a sergeant with the department more than five years, will be in charge of departmental night operations.

It was also announced this morning that Alex Boothe, 34, 615 East Gladys, has been promoted from patrolman to sergeant. Boothe has been with the department five years.

Chief Bruce said there will be additional promotions announced later. This is the first time the department has had anyone in the captain's rank. Chief Bruce said an officer will be named to fill the rank of lieutenant.

The promotions, which were announced this morning by City Manager W. Raymert Miller, are effective today.

Hearnes Says Monday Normal Workday for State Employes

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes said today Monday will be work as usual for state em,d32fin)he decided not to make it a state holiday.

He said he felt it would be possible for all Missourians to keep themselves fully informed ab5x sng6 Apollo 11 flight to the moon without being absent from their jobs.

"This has to rank as one of the most significant moments in the history of mankind," Hearnes said, "and I know that all Missourians will want to closely follow the progress of the astronauts. The vast majority of these Missourians also will be at work on Monday morning and I see no reason why government workers should be an exception.

"I hope all the citizens of Missouri will join me in observing this special day and honoring these brave men—by keeping them constantly in our thoughts and our prayers."

President Nixon proclaimed Monday a national day 318,1o ticipation, made it a holiday for non-essential federal employes and urged similar action by governors and mayors.

Hearnes was out of town on a study of metropolitan rapid transit systems at the time and declined to act at once. He returned late Thursday and decided to wait until today to make a final decision on the matter.

St. Louis City and St. Louis County officials said Monday would be a workday for their employes. Jackson County declared a holiday. So did Jefferson City.

At Columbia the University of Missouri announced the school in Columbia and its branches in Kansas City, St. Louis and Rolla will be open and will carry on normal operations Monday.

Accidents Injure Seven On Area Highways, Roads

A 1962 White tractor trailer, loaded with watermelons, bound for Enid, Okla., turned over and spilled over on a street in Lutesville, injuring the driver and a passenger.

The accident occurred at 2:15 a.m. Thursday when Melvin Dean Newman, 20, Enid, came over a hill too fast and lost control, causing the truck to turn over and spill the melons.

The driver received a chest injury and cuts on his head. A passenger, Allen Kennedy, 17, Enid, had chest and hip injuries.

Both were taken to Southeast Missouri hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Hiram Shell, 47, Sikeston, received minor injuries in an accident at 3:45 p.m. Thursday on highway 61 at Morley.

A 1963 Ford Van truck, driven by Bobby Benson, 24, Kennett, attempted a left turn on highway 91, when a 1968 Ford driven by Shell came over a hill and skidded into the side of the truck. Benson was taken to Missouri Delta Community hospital.

Three persons were injured in an accident at 1:30 p.m. Thursday on highway 61, seven miles south of Hayti.

A 1961 Chevrolet truck driven by Barry Ray, 22, Caruthersville, came off a gravel road without stopping, and ran into the side of a 1964 Buick, driven by Eldo Kempen, 49, Houston, Tex.

Injured in the Kempen car was the driver, who received cuts on his head and a chest injury. A passenger in the car, Jean Kempen, 49, Houston, received several fractured ribs and cuts on her head.

The Texas couple was taken to Pemiscot Memorial Hospital, Hayti.

Student Nurses Tour Facilities

Practical nurses in training at the Vocational School have taken four field trips in the past week in connection with sanitation and growth and development classes.

On Friday, July 11, the future nurses toured Reiss Dairy, the Sikeston Water Plant and the Schuchart Dairy Farms in connection with sanitation class.

Monday, the group observed children in the Headstart Program at Southwest School in connection with growth and development class.

The nurses are in the 15th week of a one-year training program which is instructed by registered nurses, Mrs. Clare Eisenbach, Mrs. Maudy Streetman, Mrs. Nola Vest and Mrs. Bonnie Greer.

Thirty persons were enrolled in the course which, thus far, has covered body structure and functioning, nutrion, growth and development, pharmocology, microbiology, basic nursing, personal vocational and some in-hospital training.

Next week, some of the students will be working in area nursing homes, and eight of the students will work in a Kennett hospital.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
TOO GOOD TO BE TRUE

Few people were surprised when black radical James Forman of the National Black Economic Development Conference received the first of his demanded kickbacks from a church group. Actually the $15,000 check from the Washington Square United Methodist Church of Greenwich Village in New York City is not the first "reparations" payment received in answer to Forman's demands; the first payment was $1,000 from the Council of Black Clergy in Philadelphia, Pa. The Methodist money was the first financial payment from a "predominantly white institution" as Forman puts it. Forman is demanding a total of $500 million from the nation's religious institutions. Several church groups have already replied to the demands with a flat refusal to pay what they consider to be blackmail.

Speaking of blackmail, Forman is on record as accusing the government of attempting to frame the leaders of his group. He stated: "I am convinced the Nixon administration is going to try to indict some of us on extortion or conspiracy charges." Now why would anyone think that this group's demands are extortion? Isn't it normal to enter a place of worship and read a list of monetary demands to the parishioners and disrupt worship services? Why is Mr. Forman worried? Does he think that any jury in the country would consider his demands unusual?

A Washington reporter recently called the Justice Department and asked if there was any plan to prosecute the leaders of the Forman group. The only answer was a terse "No comment." We can read this in one of two ways: 1) The charge is ridiculous and there is no plan to prosecute; 2) we are working on it, but are not ready to disclose our findings at this time. We hope that the latter is the case. But perhaps that would be too good to be true.

We are not amused, but probably should be, at the continuous bitching by the politicians about how about how imports of shoes, steel etc are killing off industry in this state and country.

But they do not tell the people why.

We can tell them why.

The difference is the cost of union labor as compared to the cost of labor in other countries.

Of course the consumer could do something about it by not buying the imports and again comes the news that the consumer does not give a damn about the industry of this country when it comes to his pocketbook so he buys what he can get for the least out lay of money.

When our labor costs compare with other countries labor cost once again will the United States value of trade be like it used to be, in our favor.

Our conclusion also was that we have made such a plea to North Vietnam in our peace talks and our efforts to secure peace, that they have no intention of making any peace as long as we refrain from destroying their country as we have been under the Kennedy, Johnson, Nixon program to date.

THE WALLACE PARTY MEETS

Former Gov. George C (orley) Wallace of Alabama plans to attend a convention of the American Independent Party of Virginia in Richmond on Saturday (July 19). He speaks at a dinner of the National American Party there the evening before.

The Montgomery, Ala., address of George C. Wallace is c/o The Wallace Campaign, P. O. Box 1972. The number is significant. After the former Governor of Alabama was defeated as the American Independent Party candidate for President of the United States last Nov. 5, the box number was changed from 1968.

The Wallace political machine, cranked up in early 1967, never really did run down. The driver merely shifted gears.

Last March Wallace sent his supporters a monthly newsletter informing them: "I shall continue." After substantial refueling -- and considerable rejiggering -- the maching is picking up speed again. One evidence is his appearance before the National American Party and American Independent Party of Virginia.

Wallace, who had received 13.5 per cent of the popular vote last November as a third party candidate, did not attend a meeting in Louisville, Ky., last Feb. 22-23, to organize a national conservative party. Formed then was a "national committee" of the autonomous state parties, known variously as the American Independent Party, the American Party, the Independent Party, the Conservative Party, the Constitution Party, the Courage Party, and others. However, Wallace did appear last March in the unsuccessful campaign of William J. Davis, the American Party candidate in a special election in Tennessee.

More than 1 million known Wallace supporters originally were asked to subscribe to his newsletter. If the response were only 10 per cent, he would be grossing more than $1 million at an annual subscription of $12, or more than enough to provide gas for the political machine. And unsolicited contributions keep drifting into Montgomery.

By dint of hard work, Wallace managed to have his name placed on the ballot in all 50 states last year. Most of that work would not have to be duplicated three years from now.

Wallace in 1968 got 9,906,473 popular votes -- close to the 10 million popular votes he predicted on the eve of election. He won only the 45 electoral votes of the Deep South -- Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Louisiana, and Mississippi. (A defecting elector in North Carolina gave him his 46th.)

Wallace may run for governor again in 1970 to provide himself with a political base. But he faces a formidable candidate in Gov. Albert Brewer, who shares Wallace's segregationist and law and order views.

Stewart Alsop observes: "In a 1972 Presidential race George Wallace could prove a more formidable candidate than in 1968." George Lardner, Jr. and Jules Loh state: "If the times are still out of joint when President Nixon completes his first term, George Wallace will run again." And they cite Richard M. Scammon, director of Washington's Elections Research Center, as authority that if the mood of the country does not brighten perceptibly, Wallace could win.

The big Wallace appeal last year was to middle and low income groups. He ran best in small town and rural districts, and appealed most to voters in areas with high Republican registration. He was a favorite of the police and of blue collar workers, who in this year's mayoralty elections are showing their political clout.

EDITOR'S NOTE — A recent column by Hal Boyle on how men change after marriage stirred wifely applause and husbandly howls across the land. "Why don't you tell what marriage does to women?" demanded indignant husbands. So—

NEW YORK (AP) — Nothing reveals a woman like matrimony.

As every husband knows, a transformation begins in his bride soon after leaving the altar. And after a few years he goes around muttering to himself:

"What happened to her? I can hardly recognize her as the same human being."

Before the wedding there wasn't anything she wouldn't do to please him. After the wedding she started telling him, "Your trouble is that your mother spoiled you."

"If I don't know how to cook the things you like best, I'll learn to," she pledged before they plighted their troth. So what does she slap on the table for him nightly now? If it ain't hash or tuna fish casserole, it's a half-thawed television dinner.

She used to dress so trimly she was the pride of the block. Now she slouches around the house dressed as if she were trying out for a role as one of the three witches in "Macbeth."

Formerly, he loved to talk by the hour with her. Lately, he feels he does nothing but listen while she talks to him by the hours.

Was it only yesterday he liked to sit and hold her hands all evening? Today the only reason he grabs her hands is to keep from being belted while they're having a family argument.

"I'll give you three tall strapping sons," she promised. So what has he got now? Three tall whiny, teen-age daughters, all of whom need a good strapping.

"You'll be my pet forever," she told him when he was courting her. But who gets the most petting in the house now? Papa? no, indeed. The cat does. Mama also serve the cat its meals more regularly.

"They say that behind every successful man is a good woman, and I want to be that good woman behind you," she whispered to him shyly before they wed." Well, that was some years ago, and true enough she's behind him—but barking at his heels if he doesn't ask for a raise in pay every six months.

When he carried her across the threshold of their new home after their honeymoon, she sighed happily, "I'll never want to leave here—it's heavenly." Now, if he objects at having to take her out two evenings a week, she informed him, "Well, Warden, I've got to break out of this jail sometime or I'll lose my mind."

"How can marriage change anyone so much?" he often wonders. But marriage didn't really change her. It simply revealed her. Nothing about a woman ever really changes but her mind.

He simply married a girl just like the girl who harried his dear old Dad.

The Sky's the Limit

The aviation industry has nowhere to go but up, according to "Aviation Forecasts, Fiscal Years 1969-1980," just published by the Federal Aviation Administration. Here are a few of the heights it will reach:

In 1980, airlines will be carrying some 470 million passengers, more than three times the fiscal 1968 total of 152.6 million, reflecting an average annual growth rate of 10 per cent.

This is a conservative estimate. In 1963. passenger traffic increased 20.7 per cent over the previous year. In the 1964-68 period, average annual growth was 16.5 per cent.

More than 90 per cent of the 3,600 airline planes in use will be jets, compared to slightly more than 50 per cent in 1968.

The general aviation (nonairline) fleet will number 214,000 and production of civil aircraft will reach nearly 34,000 a year, both figures almost double the 1968 totals.

Use of jet fuel will zoom from 6.2 billion gallons in 1968 to 16.9 billion in 1980, and aviation gasoline consumption will go from 642 million to 834 million gallons.

With more planes in the air, the number of take-offs and landings at FAA-controlled airports will rise to 171.5 million, more than triple the 53 million in 1968.

The beautiful, for spacious skies are getting less spacious by the year.

GOOD IDEAS: If your soiled leather gloves are not washable, you might be able to freshen them up by rubbing with a piece of cloth dipped in milk . . . . . A reader suggests the use of a small-sized plunger, of the type used for stopped-up drains, when washing drip-dry clothing. Claims the suction has great cleansing action... Go over your wrist watch strap or band with a damp, soapy cloth inside and out. Otherwise, it can soil the cuffs of a fresh shirt. If you carry a money clip and no wallet, have one of your business cards set in plastic and carry it tucked in with your bills. In case of loss -- and in case an honest person finds it -- you've a chance of getting it back . . . A vinegar dampened cloth will clean the metallic buttons on your blazer, making them shine brightly.

It has been said "God loved Jonah so much he would not let him prosper"

Prosperity tests men and nations as nothing else will, our people and our nation flinked that test in the roaring 20s and now 40 years later we have flunked once more, and many thinks this maybe the final test of our former form of Government we say former for as all can see form of GGovernment has changed before our very eyes and no one coudl do anything about it, no longer does the people have a say as to laws that take all freedom of choice. No longer do they have a say as to what they pay their public servants, or how much taxes they pay and what for. Looks like the people will be forced to exercise their constitutionals rights while they still have them and remove the thorns in the flesh of the body politics replacing them with servants of the people instead of masters of the people.

H.L. Hunt Says

TAXES AND INFLATION

The theory that inflation can be halted by raising taxes is as fallacious as it is persistent. This theory holds that the imposition of higher taxes will bring about a decrease in purchasing power and deflation, or lower prices, will follow. Followers of the Keynesian line of managed currency have long contended that any economic problem can be solved merely by increasing or decreasing the money supply.

In practice, however, it has been shown that things do not work out that way. The "remedy" of higher taxes to half inflation actually causes more inflation. While higher taxes do absorb some purchasing power, they also increase all costs of doing business in production, transportation and distribution, and again more high taxes on the resulting higher taxed products. This causes higher prices for everything, the very condition which increased taxes are intended to prevent.

A reasonable constancy of the value of the monetary unit of any country is essential for national existence. Seldom, if ever, has the departure from the first established value of the unit between toward deflation. The supposed remedy of higher taxes actually feeds the fires of inflation.

Deflation cannot destroy the value of a nation's money. Inflation, on the other hand, unless sensibly held under restraint, must inevitably destroy it and in the end destroy the nation. Excessive taxes do not stop inflation, but they do encourage overbearing and despoiling government by taking too much of the people's money and giving it to wasteful government bureaus to spend. HLH

CAPE KENNEDY, FLA. — Here are some things you may not know about the flight to the moon:

The astronauts' space suits are so stiff that they won't be able to bend over to pick up lunar rocks. They will have to use a shovel . . . crew members remove their space suits for more comfortable flight overalls shortly after entering the Apollo 11. At all times they wear a harness which is wired to signal the physical condition of each astronaut to the space center in Houstonlommmthe space suits must be worn when Neil Armstrong and Col. Edwin E. Aldrin step out on the moon. They are airtight to keep the body from exploding in the rarefied atmosphere of the moon.

The command module has more than two million functional parts, not counting wires, compared with less than 3,000 functional parts in an automobile . . it uses only about 2,000 watts of electricity, the same amount required by an electric oven . . . it has slightly more cubic feet of space per man--73--than the per person space in a compact car--63 cubic feet . . . there are 15 miles of wire in the Apollo spacecraft, enough to wire 50 two-bedroom houses . . . should the command module collide with a piece of outer space waste and be punctured with a hole one inch in diameter, it could maintain pressure 15 minutes--long enough for an astronaut to put on a space suit . . .,the chances of colliding with a meteoroid are computed as one in 1,230 . . . on the panel of the command module, the are 24 instruments,566 switches and 71 lights . . . when the Apollo reenters the atmosphere, it will generate energy equivalent to approximately 86,000 KW. of electricity, enough to light the city of Los Angeles for about a minute and a half.

--Tremendous Power--

There were 5,625,000 pounds of propellant in the Saturn V, the service module and the lunar module when the Apollo was first lifted off the ground . . the tanks on the first stage propellant are large enough to accommodate three large moving vans side by side . . . enough liquid oxygen was in the first stage tank to fill 54 railroad tank cars . . . the five F-1 engines on the Apollo equal 160 million horsepower, which is about double the hydroelectric power available if all the rivers and streams of North America were channeled through turbines . . . there are 50 engines abroad the Apollo to boost the lunar module when it leaves the command module, also to boost it off the surface of the moon . . . . tanks which hold the ultra-cold liquid oxygen on the Apollo are probably the only leak-free vessels ever built. If an automobile tire leaked at the same rate that these tanks do, it would take the tire 32,000,000 years to go flat . . . . there are two and a half million solder joints in a Saturn V lauch vehicle. If 1/32 of an inch too much wire were left in each of these joints, plus an extra drop of solder, the excess weight would be equivalent to the payload of the vehicle . . . . the Apollo command and service modules have 587,500 linspection points which had to be checked out before the launch.

--Food For Astronauts--

The Astronauts eat a balanced diet of 2,500 calories a day. The food is in vacuum-packed plastic bags, and the bags have red, white and blue dots to identify them for each crewman . . . each "Couch" is built to conform to the size of the Astronaut using it. The couches are equipped with a lap belt and two shoulder straps to keep the Astronauts from floating off into another part of the module . . . . small towels a foot square are stowed under the couches, also wash cloths . . . a rubber tube carries waste water and unine outside the module and dumps it in outer space . . . fecal waste is desposited in plastic bags, then sealed and stowed in a waste disposal compartment. A split membrane trap prevents the bags from floating into the cabin when the door is opened.

Dr. Kurt Debus, director of the Kennedy Space center, is a former German science instructor who helped develop the V-2 rocket for Germany during the war and was brought to the United States by the U.S. Army after VE day. He is a protege of Dr. Wernher Von Braun, and helped develop the redstone, Jupiter and Juno missiles at Huntsville, Ala. He also directed the launch of the first U.S. satellites to reach outer space.

--Washington Notes--

Correction: We were in error in reporting that Rep. Paul C. Jones of Missouri failed to inform his colleagues that he was the owner of a radio station, KBOA, in Kennett, Mo., when he made a speech on the house floor demanding that federal communications commission be denied the right to regulate TV commercials. The congressman did so inform the house. We regret the error . . . Rep. Richard Poff, Virginia Republican, has been telling associates that he is slated to get an early appointment to the U.S. Supreme Court. He can't get the vacancy left open by the resignation of Abe Fortas, because he voted for an increase of salaries to Supreme Court justices. But he's confident Nixon will reward him with one of the upcoming vacancies soon. Poff is a good country lawyer but unknown to the legal profession outside Virginia . . . Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, who has already peppered the Nixon administration with pals, is about to get another appointment--Davis Moorhead of Myrtle Beach, S.C., who's in line to become assistant commissioner of patents. Moorhead has had moderate experience in the patent field . . . Attorney General John Mitchell, the President's former law partner, denies that any deals were made to reward Sen. Thurmond . . . . Mitchell recently held his first press conference since Jan. 21. If other Attorneys General had proposed increased wiretapping, pre-trial detention and stiffer bail without holding a press conference to be cross-examined about their proposals, there would have been a howl of newspaper protest from coast to coast.

NIXON'S NOTEBOOK:

President Promises Try on Asian Trip to Cut Dumping of Slave-Wage Goods Into U. S.

Washington, D. C.: -- Pants and shirts, blouses and embroideries, brassieres and children's dresses, gloves and synthetic-fiber garments are hardly traditional items for Richard Nixon's confidential traveling notebook.

But they will be on the pad during the President's swing around the Orient. They're all part of a second war he hopes to cool. And they've all been part of his pre-trip briefing. They've been the weaponry in an economic war on the U. S. by mini-wage nations which the President will visit. And he has promised leaders of apparel and textile unions he'd do what he could to slow the dumping of slavpay soft goods products into the U. S.

This dumping, now hitting the billion dollar - a - year mark, has wiped out 227,000 potential jobs in the very same ghettos, small towns and concentrated poor-white rural regions where breadwinning work is desperately needed.

And if the soft goods continue to roll in from the Orient, the Indian subcontinent and the islands of burgeoning Asia, America's textile and apparel industries (valued at some $25 billion) will be wiped out in several decades along with their 2.5 million jobs. Harassed and worried labor leaders have talked personally with Mr. Nixon and Secretary of Commerce Stans.

"The working future of those millions of Americans involved in textile and apparel industry cannot be jeopardized," President Nixon write to Jack Potofsky, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America (the men's apparel union) some week ago.

"We reiterate our commitment to work for a solution that will bring about the orderly flow of imports in the textile market."

Since Mr. Nixon is heading for the Philippines, India and Pakistan, he has been peeling time off his military and diplomatic briefings and conferences to study the economic war as well.

Sincere applause for this interest has come from Louis Stulberg, the ladies garment workers' president, who hardly has been one of the cheerleaders for Nr. Nixon is the past.

"This is nonpolitical, in the full bipartisan sense," says Mr. Stulberg. "The President should be concerned with this problem during his trip and his discussions with other world leaders in Asia. Foreign imports are corroding the efforts all of us are making to end the turmoil which has been ripping apart our cities and the nation itself.

"These imports are slashing at the jobs, the sheer livelihoods and the standards for which we have been fighting for decades. These imports are hitting the smallest towns, the communities of impoverished Appalachia, the areas where there are just no other jobs except in the mills and needle plants. If the dumping continues, what good are all those solutions of those urban councils? In our industry, some 85 per cent of the employes are women earning the basic family income, many in areas where the men simply can't find work, or need supplementary money to keep the family from falling under that grim poverty line.

"This isn't idle talk. Believe me, our national destiny is involved. After all, what develops into policy here will affect basic steel, shoes, machinery, and the whole range from foodstuffs to flint glass."

A close aide of Mr. Nixon, one fully authorized to speak for him, says that the dumping undoubtedly will come up during the President's conversations abroad. Though the toughest competition pours from Japan, the Rising Sun products are having their tough competition too.

Low-wage production and exports into the U. S. have gone a full circle. It's fascinating to watch. At first, the Japanese poured in their brutally low-wage products. Then, cheaper labor plants sprang up in Hong Kong, then in South Korea, then in Malaysia, the Philippines and now in Singapore, Indonesia and Pakistan. The goods -- which require no style -- are made in penny-ante sweat shops. And I mean pennies paid for 12-hour shifts. Then the production leapfrogged those continents.

The new Caribbean nations in the sun wooed producers of the soft goods, apparel and synthetic fiber cloth.

Plants were jerry-built in Jamaica, Barbados, and even Haiti -- thus threatening Puerto Rico which has pulled itself up by its Operation Bootstraps. Hurt to the Puerto Rican economy could stir new floods of island workers back into the big mainland cities -- and ghettos.

But for the while the massive threat is from the Singapores, Pakistans and Philippines. So, the labor leaders, backed by the manufacturers, have urged Mr. Nixon, in turn, to urge Asian nations to impose quotas on their exports to the U. S. Or, in less diplomatic terms, cut the dumping.

So. Mr. Nixon's pre-trip briefings contain items on pants, shirts and ladies garments.

The labor leaders add that he should pack a needle or two as well.

Ann Landers

He's Beseiged By Agressive Females Lately

Dear Ann Landers: Last night my mother and I had an argument. One word led to another and she said pretty cutting things. When my mother starts to yell the best thing to do is not answer, and get busy, with something. So I went to my desk and began to write a letter.

Mom came up behind me and screamed, "You are writing your father, arent you?" (They are divorced). I said, "Yes." Then she shouted. "You will not be allowed to mail that letter until I have read it. I'm not going to have youtelling lies on me."

Ann, I didn't even mention my mother's name in the letter, yet she stood there until I finished writing and then insisted that I hand it over. Is this fair? Isn't a 15-year-old entitled to some privacy? My mother says as long as I live under her roof she has the right to know everything I say and do. Is she correct? --- Bugged

Dear Bugged: Any person who is old enough to write should be permitted to mail a letter without censorship. Your mother sounds like a sick woman. If she hasn't seen a doctor recently for a physical checkup, she should do so. In the meantime be patient. Every home needs at least one mature person, and you may have to be that one in your house.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is cheating on me. It's not another woman, I'd like to know how to fight that. It's his brothers.

There are three boys in the family and they are like triplets. Every evening they play gin rummy. On weekends they go to ball games or play golf together or go fishing.

When I was in labor with our second child, my husband left me in the hospital to go see his brother who had had a tooth pulled. It's been that way from the day we married. Brothers first -- wife second

My sisters-in-law are as fed up as I am. What's wrong with these men? What can we do about it? -- Fourth Fiddles

Dear Fid: The brothers are emotional adolescents. They have never emerged from childhood, and they probably never will. Outfox them by planning some interesting activities. If you women bought tickets to the theater or arranged movie dates with non-relatives, the boys wouldn't play so much gin rummy. Use some imagination. The only difference between a rut and a grave is the dimensions.

Dear Ann: You keep printing letters from girls who have to punch guys in the mouth to keep them in line. What about guys who want a nice, respectable evening, but the girls have different ideas?

I hope I don't sound like a jerk but in the last two months I've dated three such chicks. Funny thing is, Ann, I'm not much to look at and I'm not the type you'd think would turn a girl on. Yet I keep running into sexpots with far-out ideas. Any suggestions? -- J.P.

Dear J.P.: I assume you are not putting me on so I'll answer in earnest. There are plenty of aggressive dames around and they usually go for quiet guys like you. My advice is head for a crowded place, make it an early evening and lose the doll's phone number.

If you have trouble getting along with your parents . . . if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How To Get More Freedom." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her incare of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope

"God's Way Under Protest!"

To raise an objection against something, whether formal or informal, written or oral, is to protest. We are living in the age of protest. To object in a peaceable and honorable manner to some things is indeed an obligation and privilege. The things which we support, as well as the things we oppose reveals to some extent our character. The "Free Interprise" system, which is the American way of life, is to me the most fair of any system. It allows those with the initiative to develop their talents to their fullest, whereas, the indifferent and indolent get nowhere. But I can see signs of this system being destroyed, by the indifferent who is permitted to glory in the accomplishments of another, and the "lazy" who feast' on the fruit of anothers toil and sweat. God condemns laziness. (2 thess. 3:10-12). And there are others who have joined themselves to the wrecking crew. They disrupt, burn, and steal. The psychology of permissiveness has produced an abundant crop of anarchists. If all were like these, then there would be no schools or industries to burn. There is no suitable place for the anarchist outside the jail.

In the affairs of men, we may see much room to protest. But in the affairs of God, man has no right to object. Men are created equal, but man is not and never will be, on the level with God. (Isa. 55:8-9). Man and God are so separated it is impossible to understand the will of God, within the human level. (Jer. 10:23; 1 Cor. 1:21) We must go outside man, even ourself, to God's word, to learn His will. (Eph. 3:1-4) Human wisdom alone always rejected the pure and simple gospel of Christ, "The world by wisdom knew not God." (1 Cor. 1:21) When any man pits his ideas against the word of God. He is protesting against God and His ways. God in His wisdom has provided and chosen to save man bv the gospel. (Rom. 1:16) When a person wants another gospel or perverts the one God has given, by adding, subtracting, or substitution, He is voicing his protest against God's power to save. There are many ways, in the religious world men are protesting against God's ways. Instead of "sing," some "play" on an instrument, some "sprinkle" rather than "baptize," others pray to various "saints" rather to God through Christ, some baptize "because of" rather than " for remission of sins," many wear "human" names rather than the name "Christian." Man must in his wisdom, with a pure heart, reach out in faith for the grace of God provided in the gospel. (Titus 2:11-12; 2 Cor. 5:7; Rom. 10:17; Rom. 6:16-17).

Television

NEW YORK (AP) — This fall 12 million 3, 4 and 5 year-olds will be the targets of "Sesame Street" a daily television program designed to teach the nation's preschoolers certain selected basic skills preparatory to formal education.

JOAN GANZ COONEY . . . executive director of the Children's Television Workshop Staff directed the study that resulted in the workshop.

Strangely enough, Joan Ganz Cooney, the woman primarily responsible for the existence of the Children's Television Workshop program, never wanted to be a teacher.

"I guess I've come full circle in a funny way," chuckles Mrs. Cooney, executive director of the Workshop which created and produced "Sesame Street." She recalls that 18 years ago, when she was graduated from the University of Arizona with a major in primary education she made up her mind about one thing: "I knew I didn't want to be a teacher."

"I quickly realized that we're going into a habit that already exists," says the attractive 39-year-old brunette. "Studies reveal that American children are exposed to television during the first four or five years of their life for a greater amount of time than they will spend attending all six grades of elementary school." And she pointed out that television is usually available even in the poorest ghetto home.

Underwritten to the tune of $8 million by Carnegie, the Ford Foundation, the U.S. Office of Education and other federal agencies, the 26-week pilot series is aimed at all 12 million preschoolers in the United States. "But," adds Mrs. Cooney, "unless we can reach, entertain and teach the inner-city disadvantaged child — the child who hasn't been reached by educational television before — we will have failed."

In order to hold the attention of the disadvantaged child, as well as the attention of the more education-minded middle-class child, "Sesame Street" will use animation, humor, repetition, and cartoon and comic strip characters. Hopefully through the fun format, the preschooler will learn to recognize letters, to count, a sense of numbers, an expanded vocabulary and basic reasoning skills.

As Mrs. Cooney describes it, "Sesame Street" is a typical city street, populated by a set of specially created Muppet characters "where a lot of neat things happen." Excursions are taken by the street's residents to a zoo, to the shore, to see an insect flying in slow motion — all designed to broaden the child's concept of the world around him. The Man from Alphabet, a comic-adventure strip which will be a regular segment of the program — will feature appearances of live guest stars who will "appeal as much to the parents who turn on the television sets as to the children themselves." Four unknown actors ("we're in the process of casting") — an older black man, a white youth, and two women, one a black or a Puerto Rican — will be the show's hosts.

Diaries of Mrs. LBJ To Be In Print Soon

NEW YORK (AP) - Diaries kept by Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson during her five years as the nation's first lady will be published in 1971, the New York publishing firm of Holt, Rinehart & Winston reports.

The company, a subsidiary of the Columbia Broadcasting System, said Wednesday it had obtained the rights to publish the diaries. The amount paid for the rights was not disclosed.

The same publishing house obtained the rights to the memoirs of former President Johnson for a reported $1 million and plans to bring out the first volume next spring.

Ribless Corduroy 'In' for Fall

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—A new version of an old favorite, corduroy, has become fall's newest look in sportswear. Uncut corduroy with a ribless, velours-like surface comes in a multitude of styles to appeal to every taste.

Put-togethers are the fashion story from junior petites to better misses' designs.

Toppers include cropped bolero vests, long tunic vests, bush-pocketed pantdresses, blazers, battle jackets—all worn OVER something—shiny jersey shirts, floral cotton shirts, knit turtleneck sweaters, combined with pants, wide leg pants, straight leg pants, shorts—or paired with scooter skirts, wrap skirts, long skirts.

There are the multitude of do-your-own-thing looks. Go western in a yoked, shearling collared, snap-closed jacket worn with matching low rise jeans. In a South of the Border mood, select an earth brown embroidered ribless corduroy bolero. Toss it on over a wide-sleeved blouse and pair these with a sashed gaucho pant.

Be a country girl in a farmerette suspendered overall paired with a red and white flower-strewn blouse. Or be sportive in a safari jumpsuit over a shiny knit Australian bush shirt for the newest layered look.

When evening comes, go glamorous in a black ribless evening blazer suit (it looks like velveteen) worn with a dashing, lavishly laced white ascot blouse.

It's good "mix 'em up" fashion fun for fall and ribless, the new kind of corduroy, is playing the game.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

SANCTUARY TO SIGN

NEW YORK (AP) — The Church is becoming a "sign" in the world rather than a "sanctuary" from it, a new study issued by the Maryknoll order contends. Called "The Church as Sign," it stresses the recognition of God's presence and saving activity outside the Church in the world-at-large, where the Church simply serves as a sign of the divine mystery embracing all men, Christian and non-Christian.

Exhibitions Set at MCGC

CHARLESTON - Governor Warren E. Hearnes will be the guest of honor at the Mississippi County Gun Club at Charleston on July 27.

The White Chargers Skeet Team from St. Louis will compete against the South East Missouri Shooters and the National Industrial Recreation Association Championship Team from WINCHESTER-WESTERN division, East Alton, Illinois, will put on a trap shooting demonstration.

Mrs. Sallie Durbin and Mrs. Karla Roberts, two of the top lady shooters in the country will do a skeet shooting demonstration.

Sponsors of the program are the Mississippi County Gun Club and the Shooting Development Department of WINCHESTER-WESTERN.

Jim Dee, Manager, Shooting Development from New Haven, Connecticut, will present Governor Hearnes with a Mark II 1400 Skeet gun. The public is invited and the program begins at 12:30 p.m.

For further information, please contact Glenn Ault, Jr., President, Mississippi County Gun Club. (314) 683-4773.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Joe Torre, the St. Louis Cardinals portly import from Atlanta, hit the balls Thursday night he missed Wednesday.

The reason: "A little longer look at the ball."

The smiling first baseman singled, doubled and blasted one out of the park to stoke the red hot Red Birds on to an 11-3 romp over Philadelphia, their 12th victory in 14 games.

The victory moved the Cardinals up to nine games behind the Chicago Cubs, did not play Thursday.

"The inside pitches were givl ing me a little trouble, so I moved six or eight inches away from the plate. "Torre related. "They jammed me a couple times last night on pitches I should have hit."

The first inning double, he said, "came on the same kind of pitch I missed Wednesday." The hit drove in Lou Brock and Vada Pinson and gave the former Brave a season total of 59 runs batted in.

Torre now has four more RBIs than he scored all last season for the Braves. He now leads the Cards in RBIs and home runs (15).

Phils Manager Bob Skinner ruefully agreed with Torre and had a grudging good word for the whole Red Bird squad.

"They're far more aggressive at bat now," Skinner said after the game. "They're the team to beat."

Teaming with Torre in the spectacular show were Julian Javier, whose single in the second inning triggered a four-run blast that sent Phils hurler Curt Wise out of the game, and starter Mike Torrez, who yielded five hits but no runs before retiring in the seventh.

Brock singled in the first to start the 15-hit barrage by the Red Birds, then stole second to set up the double score on Torre's two-base hit.

Javier scored three times, Steve Huntz and Brock twice, Curt Flood, Vada Pinson, and Mike Shannon once each.

The Phils' John Briggs scored two of his team's runs and Rick Joseph crossed the plate for the third.

The Cards open a three-game series in Pittsburgh tonight, throwing Bob Gibson, 11-7, at Dock Ellis of the Pirates, 5-10.

The Kansas City Royals, idle Thursday, are in Chicago tonight for the start of a weekend series with the White Sox. Wally Bunker, 5-5, is the Royals starter. He will face Tommy John, 5-8.

Parma moved within two game of nailing down the Four-County Babe Ruth league title last night as it posted a 13-7 win at Vanduser while its nearest challenger, Bertrand, was blasting Bell City 15 to 1.

Bell City and Benton is all that remains in the way of Parma and the championship. Parma hosts Bell City Monday and Benton Thursday while Bertrand will host Vanduser Thursday and travel to Benton July 28.

It was a slugfest at Vanduser where both teams collected 32 hits, 20 by the victors.

Parma scored in all but the second and sixth innings, and faced five pitchers through the seven inning game.

Mike Garrard Wendall Wagner and Reggie Gregory had three hits in four trips to the plate while Doyle Crews went four for six and Dick Ramsey two for three. All but two Parma players shared in the hitting. Crews doubled and tripled, while Wagner doubled for the only extra base hits.

Jeff Jackson picked up his 11th win of the season, going the seven innings and checking a late rally.

Ronnie Bryant, David Pobst and Tommy Britton each collected two hits, with Pobst and John Fort slugging a double and triple respectively.

Bertrand used 12 hits and eight Bell City errors to score 15 runs and remain in the running for the title. Mike Crosno collected the win and allowed only two hits.

League action continues Monday with Benton at Vanduser and Bell City at Parma.

Little Leaguers

High scoring was reached by each of the victors in last night's play. Teams taking wins were Collin's Construction, Mutual of Omaha, Caproco, and Police.

Collin's took its 17-5 win over KSIM with R. Stearnes taking the win and Wiggins receiving the loss. Crouch led the hitting in he ame with two doubles.

Bank of Sikeston became a 15-4 victim of Mutual of Omaha after four innings of play. Mutual had a total of 20 hits in the battle compared to only four for the opponents.

Nine extra base hits in the game included doubles by Totten, Davis, Limbaugh, Couch, and Jackson and triples by Delarosa and Green.

Opening American division contest finished with an 11-1 defeat of Fabick by Caproco. Whitaker received the win and Gater suffered the loss.

Police reached the highest mark of the night in scoring as it downed Leslie 21-3. Extra base hits included doubles by Lambert, Thompson, and Godwin and a triple by Thompson.

After 30 Volkswagens, Father Bittman still believes.
In the beginning, Father Aloysius Bittman bought a bug.
That was in 1957 when he joined the staff of St. Anthony's Indian Mission in Mandaree, North Dakota.
Since then, Father Bittman has gone a long way. In 30 Volkswagens.
Owning two or three at a time, the Bittman staff travels 600 miles per week in each. Over dirt and gravel roads and in temperatures that go to 55 below.
A few VWs ago, Father Bittman's '65 broke through the Garrison Reservoir ice.
"It was a good time for praying," he said.
Luckily, one 255 pound priest and one 1808 pound bug floated to safety. After the ice was chopped away and a quick oil change, the good father and his faithful companion were on their way.
He was a bit peeved about the oil change though.
"It set the Mission back $1.80," complained Father Aloysius Bittman.

DUCK PROBLEMS

The optimism, engendered by duck hunters, following a report from returning inspectors of the Canadian hatching grounds may be short lived, according to Assistant Director Allen Brohn, of the Missouri Department of Conservation.

Speaking of the reports Brohn says "it is quite true that this year's hatch is the best in the past ten years, but one must remember that the hatch ten years ago was at an 'alltime low' so the increase does not exactly portray a huge increase.

"However," he adds, "we will have a duck season and I hope that the Federal boys will see fit to maybe up the mallard allocation by one mallard.

DOVE LIMIT CUT

Despite the fact that Bootheel dove hunters are reporting one of the largest hatches and concentrations in history the state, as a whole, isn't to be included in that category, state Game and Fish officials point out. As a result the 1968 limit of 12 doves has been cut to a 10 bird total for the 1969 season. Across the river in Illinois hunters have received an additional six bird kill total allowance, running their daily limit to 18. Many other states have done likewise.

WATCH BEER TABS

Fishery experts throughout the nation are reporting loss of game fish due to the unthinking throwing of beer can tabs into the water. These shiny discs, which resemble many a spoon lure, find the fish striking them and, days or weeks after the tab is taken the fish dies of stomach poison -- or injuries. So, when you snap off the top, or tab, of that can of beer while fishing be sure and drop it in the can and dispose of it in a waste container when you leave the lake.

Another cause of fish fatality is being found from the use of unclean barrels as floats for boathouses. Many of these steel barrels previously contained some poison insecticide or weed killer. As the barrels rust they allow the remains of the posion to seep into the lake. It is picked up by the current and carried throughout the area, with a resulting fish kill, the fish experts point out.

FLOOD HURTS FISHING

While the raging flood waters of the Mississippi River have almost written finis to any efforts to catch fish in the old runs of the river, from its mouth to the Bootheel area, some good will come of it, after all. The waters are nature's way of annually restocking the runs and this year some lakes, shut off from river waters since 1958, are being flooded -- and restocked again, As a result of the flooding and muddy water Bootheel area anglers are seeking fish inland in the state and at Reelfoot, Kentucky, and some private lakes in Kentucky; at Norfork, Bull Shoals and Greers Ferry in Arkansas and in Lake of the Ozarks, Wappapello. Fish Lake, and other Western and Northern state reservoirs. Some continue to trek to Enid Lake in Mississippi, where the fantastic three-four pound slab crappie continue to be caught and bass are on the schooling prowl, from the Water Valley side on O'Tuckolofa Creek and in the "Wildcat" Wilbourn brake areas. Others are getting good stringers at Tunica Cutoff, near Memphis; at Sardis and Grenada Lakes and some are going to Pickwick Lake, near Savannah, Tenn.

STOP WILD QUAIL

Arkansas quail hunters, while gleefully counting what they term" an increase in he quail crop" are still squawking about the changing habits of the Bobwhite, which sends them flying into trees and seeking far away sectors where hunting singles has proven fruitless, on many occasions.

However, tests on some of the 1969 coveys, of a method of "freezing the coveys, many of which have flushed wild, seems to work in the Show Me state, just as it does in Mississippi, Tennessee and Arkansas. And it's very simple.

Just take along a hawk call and, when the dogs begin trailing, hit a few hawk calls on the caller and the coveys will "freeze." Oftimes the covey will have to be literally kicked out of the grass, or brush.

Scouts Return From Lewallen

The wives and mothers who have had both husbands and sons gone to summer camp activities, whether military or civilian, had better enjoy the rest while they can. As of Saturday they'll both be back in town.

Last week the members of the local National Guard unit returned from summer training camp at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.

This week boy scout Troop 41, will return from summer camp activities at Camp Lewallen.

Those who attended the festivities at Camp Lewallen, near Silva, left last Sunday and are scheduled to return tomorrow.

While at camp the troops worked on their merit badges and participated in outdoor activities. At the camp there is a swimming pool for swimming activities and the St. Francis river for canoeing.

During the evening hours the boys enacted skits and sang songs around the camp fire.

MAMOS Staff Meets

MAMOS staff members, Mrs. Willy Mae Hayes and Mrs. Lonnie Ruth Beck, and MAMOS trainee, Mrs. Helen Boswell of the Wardell-Gobler area are attending a three-week program in Jefferson City being sponsored by MAMOS.

The program, which got underway yesterday, will focus on migrant workers and their consumer problems. Participants will learn about consumer patterns, fraud and deceptive practices and budgeting. Highlights of the program will include how to stretch income through self-help group action, wise buymanship, and using existing government programs. Other lectures will include sections on nutrition and food buying, communication techniques, and leadership development. Classes are being held at the Holiday Inn South in Jefferson City.

Participants attending the Project Moneywise - Migrant meet are employes of the agencies working with migrants. Persons have enrolled frm a 16-state area.

Project Moneywise - Migrant is a piloting project for the Bureau of Federal Credit Unions, and is funded under the auspices of the Office of Economic Opportunity. Local arrangements were made by MAMOS, Edward D. Taylor, state director.

Oran Cancels July 21 Show

ORAN - Oran Centennial historical pageant scheduled for July 21-25, was cancelled because of insufficient funds of the Centennial Corporation at a meeting of the Centennial board Wednesday.

The board had made two payments to Rogers Productions, Inc., amounting to a consultation fee of $500 and a first payment of $1333. However, the board was unable to make the two remaining payments of the $4,912 contract, Mayor Louis Hirschowitz said.

Rogers refused an alternative offer of the board to accept 100 per cent of ticket sale proceeds of the pageant gate, W. G. Mason, board member, said.

"This is the first time in 45 shows that I have had to cancel," Jerry Lagasse, pageant director, said. He has been in Oran four weeks organizing the pageant, he said.

Hirschowitz said he does not think the Centennial Corporation will be liable for the remaining money of the contract.

Other Centennial events during the dates of the cancelled pageant will be decided at a meeting of the planning committee this week. A five-day barbecue on the City Hall grounds is scheduled to begin tomorrow, Mrs. Louis Hirschowitz said. Pork and beef will be cooked every afternoon until the supplies run out, she said.

Students Learning Graphic Arts

By CAROL WERNECK

Skilled technicians in several aspects of commercial printing are trained in the Graphic Arts class at the Sikeston Vocational School.

The course teaches students to run letter and offset presses, to operate IBM composers, executives and varitypers, to lay out papers and to do hand-set composition.

Students also learn complete dark- room procedure and the process of plate making.

Plate making involves placing material ready for the press on metal sheet, burning the material into the sheet and coating it. After this, a plate is ready for the press.

Composers, executives and varitypers work much like a typewrite, except the machines can set various sizes of type into various column sizes.

The majority of printing for the Sikeston Public School System is done by the Graphic Arts class

During the past school year, approximately $5,000, worth of printing was done by the class for the School System.

The course is 50 per cent supported by state and federal government and 50 per cent supported through local efforts.

Students may terminate the course after high school, or take an additional two years of the course in post- high school work.

The high school level of the course continues two and one half hours a day, five days a week for two years. The main emphasis is printing, during the high school two years of the course.

In the post-high school level, students concentrate on printing and related courses such as commercial art, business math, psychology, written communications, estimating, product quality control and plant supervision.

These related courses make the possibility of job promotions foreseeable.

Approximately 30 students were enrolled in the high school level of the course during the past school year, and ten persons were enrolled it in the post- high school classes.

Also, adults may take the course in night classes.

Students come from various schools in the Sikeston area including East Prairie, Matthew, Chaffee, Charleston, Kelley and Scott Central and Sikeston.

Dennis Cross, 311 Moore St., instructs the course. He received his bachelor of science degree in industrial printing from Kansas State College, Pittsburgh, Kansas.

Cross has ten years of trade experience, and he is a certified vocational education instructor.

BB Guns Bring Official Warning

BLOOMFIELD — The City of Bloomfield has issued an order that the shooting of BB guns in the city limits is a violation of a city ordinance and that anyone caught with a gun will be prosecuted if they are found shooting out street lights.

Many reports have been made on the shooting of the lights in he city limits and since parents are responsible or the actions of their children this ordinance will be strongly enforced.

EDISON, N.J. (AP) — A resident of a nearby suburb, who tends his lawn every weekend, decided to walk around the neighborhood to see how green was his neighbors' grass.

Wearing his gardener's clothes — dirty pants and an old sweatshirt — he strolled for about 20 minutes, stopping at several homes to gaze at the yards.

A police car pulled up and the patrolmen asked what he was up to.

When the man explained, the police said they received calls about a suspicious looking character in dirty clothes.

People just don't walk around much anymore, the police remarked.

Stoddard Tax Commission Accept Land Reassessment

BLOOMFIELD - John M. Capps, County Clerk was informed by the State Tax Commission that the figures sent to them by Stoddard County on the assessed valuation of the county property was acceptable.

Last February, Hunter Phillips, chairman of the State Tax Commission told a public gathering held at Dexter that the County assessments would have to be raised by 5 million dollars by July 1 to meet a 30 percent quota or perhaps receive an across the board raise of twice that amount.

Mr. Phillips clearly pointed out either we do something about our low assessments in Stoddard County by June or the State Tax Commission will do so. There is nothing that can be done that will qualify the schools of Stoddard County this year for state aid under the second level equalization quota and in order to qualify for state aid next year either we pass a levy in the Bloomfield School District of $.53 or raise the assessment to the 30 percent quota with a levy of $2.75. The present tax levy for the Bloomfield District is 3.30.

Last year the schools of the county lost $89,831.00 due to the low assessment ratio. By individual district Advance was penalized $8,337; Bell City, $8,112; Bernie, $11,197; Bloomfield, $10,428; Dexter, $27,435; Puxico, $9,189 and Richland; $15, 133. This year the loss to the Bloomfield School District will be at least $10,428 and probably more.

The duty of the State Tax Commission, Mr. Phillips pointed out, is to equalize property assessments throughout the state. The inflationary land values is taken into consideration, but at the same time the Commission discounts the accuracy of $10 and $15 per acre land at this time. The State Tax Commission exercises general supervision over all the assessing officers in Missouri, over county boards of equalization and appeal, and over all other property tax. It institutes proper proceedings to enforce the penalities and liabilities provided by law for public officers, officers of corporations and individuals failing to comply with the provisions of this article, and of all laws relating to the general property tax.

The State Tax Commission arrives at a ratio figure by checking land transfers recorded in the court house. For a number of years the Commission workers estimated the sale price in transfers from the revenue stamps placed on the documents, and a number of those were sent to Jefferson City each month and averaged for the ratio. Last year the Commission changed its methods and verified sales with persons who made the transfers. The inequities were clearly revealed. Last year our ratio was 18.42 this year it dropped to 18.23.

The schools come into the picture by virtue of a law passed by the legislature that ties the assessment and second level equalization quota (state aid) together, and reads as follows: "A school district may receive state aid under a second level equalization quota only if it meets of the requirements of section 163.021 (deals with minimum number of school days, adequate records and compute average daily attendance) and levies a property tax which produces an amount of not less than the product of a $2.75 cent tax on the property of the district assessed at thirty percent of true value as determined and certified by the State Tax Commission on or before February 1 of the year preceding the fiscal year in which the evaluation will be effective."

In other words, the state law requires that the rate of taxation levied by local school board meet the requirements of a formula established by the legislature if they are to be eligible for second level aid. This aid is given to school districts by the state in the amount of $14.75 per pupil in average daily attendance, and the formula for arriving at the required rate of taxation is computed by multiplying a $2.75 rate times 30 percent, and dividing the product of that multiplication by the ratio of assessment of property value determined by the State Tax Commission.

The assessors of the seven county townships were already almost through with their assessment work but after meeting with the county court they got busy and began to go over the tax books and tried to raise the five million. When the figures were all totaled they found that they had accomplished the difficult task.

The assessed valuation of the county now stands at $55,440,765.

The assessors are to be commended for their work. Many of the counties are receiving orders to increase all of the taxes, which is unfair to those whose assessments were already at the 30 percent figure because their assessors were unable to comply with the commissions request.

De Pugh Says Arrest Won't Halt Minutemen

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The national leader of the ultra-secretive Minutemen said Thursday his arrest would not deter other members of the group in their anti-Communist activities.

"The Minutemen will never quit," Robert B. DePugh told a reporter for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch during an interview conducted in the Albuquerque, N.M., jail.

Federal agents arrested DePugh and Walter Peyson near Truth and Consequences, N.M., Saturday night.

Both had been sought since Feb. 20, 1968, on conspiracy charges. Federal officials accused De Pugh and Peyson and other Minutemen of planning to rob banks in the Seattle, Wash., area to finance the group's activities.

DePugh also was wanted for failure to appear for retrial on a 1965 violation of the National Firearms Act.

W. Raymert Miller

Miller Named ToCommittee

Sikeston City Manager W. Raymert Miller has been named a member of the State Advisory Committee on Functional Classification.

The objective of this committee, while advisory in nature, will be to review and comment on work processes and to make recommendations regarding the classification of roads, streets and highways in Missouri.

The Federal Aid Highway Act of 1968 specified that a systematic nationwide functional highway classification study be undertaken with the state highway departments and local government participation.

The initial meeting of the Missouri committee will be held Tuesday at the Highway Building in Jefferson City.

Miller's appointment was announced this morning by Thomas A. David, state director of Highways.

The false alarm was called in at 9:35 p.m. for 131 North Frisco St.

Malden Fruit Market Erects New Building

MALDEN -- A 20,000 square foot all-steel building is being erected on Highway 25 north of Malden near the Cotton Belt Railroad to house the Malden Fruit Market.

The 200 x 100-foot building is being erected by P. D. and David Watson and will be leased to the Malden Company. It will be an all-metal building with a concrete base. Included will be a 50 x 100 refrigeration storage area, four banana ripening rooms, a tomato room, a cheese and margarine storage and a storage area for institutional frozen foods.

Malden Fruit Market is a partnership company owned by P. D. Watson and his son, David, and Mrs. Helen Mitchell. It came under the ownership of Mitchell-Corder Wholesale Grocery Company in 1942 and P. D. Watson became interested in the firm in 1944. David Watson joined the company in 1965.

P. D. Watson said that the target date to occupy the new building is November 1 of this year. He said that the new building will enable Malden Fruit Market to consolidate their operations all under one roof. At the present they have two warehouses on West Howard Street and two at the Airport.

David Watson, who joined his father in business four years ago, says that this fulfills a dream that he has had ever since joining up with the firm. "This will be one of the finest produce houses in thie entire area and will enable us to serve our customers better," he said.

Poyner Building Company of Corning, Ark., is the general contractor for construction of the building. Powell Supply and Service Company of Malden is the contractor for the plumbing, heating and refrigeration.

Malden Men In Hawaii

MALDEN — Two Malden men who are in the service of their country recently received a pleasant surprise when they met unexpectedly in Hawaii.

Michael Adams, USN, who is serving aboard the USS Hornet, and Sgt. Richard Blake, who is serving with the U.S. Army in Vietnam, met unexpectedly while walking along the beach in Hawaii. Adam's ship had docked for a short time in Hawaii and Sgt. Blake was on an R & R leave.

The men were classmates at the Malden schools and both graduated from Malden High School in 1966.

Adams is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Adams of Malden and enlisted in the Navy in September 1966.

Sgt. Blake is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Blake of Malden and is married to the former Miss Paulette Shultz of Gideon, who with their small son, Todd, was visiting with the Sergeant in Hawaii at the time.

'The German Miracle

Today, only 24 years after the end of World War II, West Germany is once again the most powerful nation in Western Europe. Feared by Russia, envied by its own allies in NATO and the Common Market, the "miracle" is in evidence everywhere. There is no unemployment; its currency is so strong, it represents a direct threat to the stability of the English pound and the French franc. West Germany's exports have multiplied nine times since 1950 and its Gross National Product is $121 billion, five times the 1950 figure, despite some of the heaviest taxation in the world (34.1 per cent).

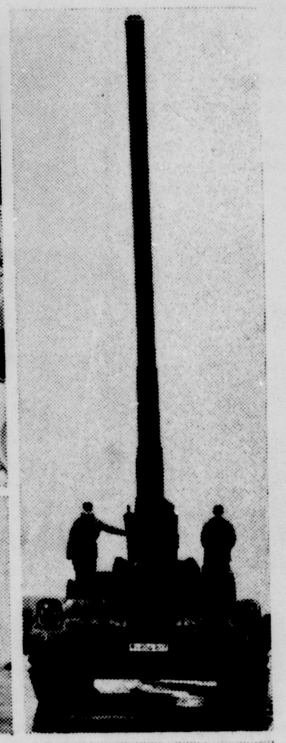

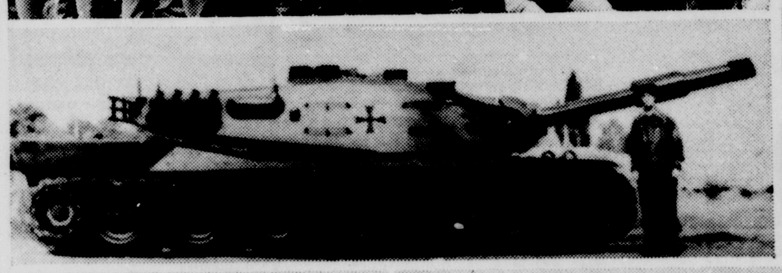

AT THE END OF WORLD WAR II, Germany was in a state of shock from the enormity of its defeat. Aided by U.S. financial priming in excess of $3 billion, Dr. Ludwig Erhard set a course which has made the country the world's second biggest trading nation and Europe's biggest coal and steel producer.

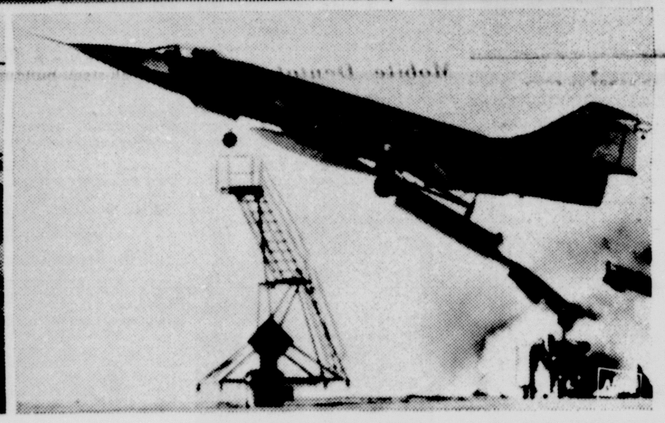

WEST GERMANY'S LEADERS are among Europe's strongest, most anxiously studied political figures. At left is Adolf von Thadden, deputy chairman of the "neo-Nazi" National Democratic Party, success of which is alarming observers in and out of the country. Dr. Kurt Georg Kiesinger, top center, leader of the Christian Democratic Party, is the West German Chancellor. Franz Joseph Strauss, bottom center, and Karl Schiller, right, are Finance Minister and Minister of Economic Affairs, respectively.

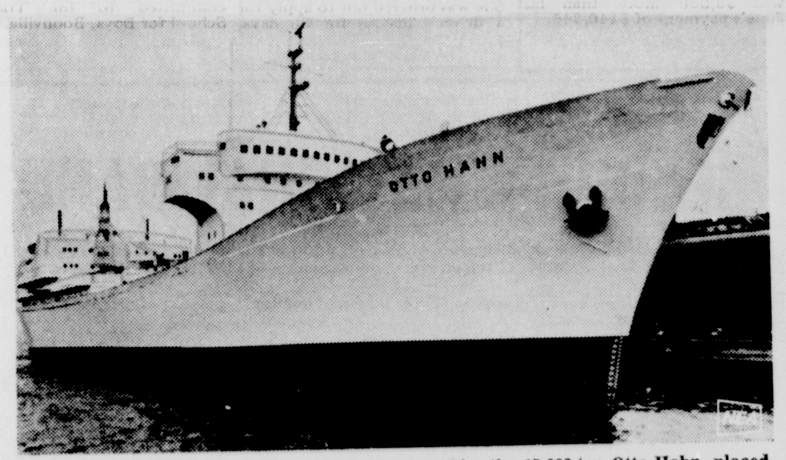

WITH WESTERN EUROPE'S biggest army and best air force, Germany is once again a strong military power. American nuclear bombs hang from the racks of its strike planes; it has developed what reportedly is the most modern armored vehicle in the Western world as well as a tank gun wtih a 40-foot barrel. West Germany has contributed 12 divisions to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

EUROPE'S FIRST nuclear-powdered merchant ship, the 15,000-ton Otto Hahn, placed West Germany among front-runners in the world race to harness atomic energy.

HELPING TO BOOST Germany's exports is this production line at an automobile factory in Munich. Today, not only are there five jobs for every unemployed German, but more than 1.3 million foreign workers have had to be imported.

admitted the intellectual, "certainly there was bureaucracy before Liberation, but since Liberation," he added automatically, "it has disappeared." "Disappeared?" we asked innocently. "Certainly," replied the intellectual. Bureaucracy had disappeared in effect, for all its abuses had vanished overnight, leaving only a well- oiled machine of social justice.

We ventured to press him a little further. Supposing, for the sake of argument, that an exception should occur and a peasant should feel himself injured by a bureaucrat, what would he do? He had only to complain, we were told, and the remedy was instant. To whom did he complain? To the bureaucrat himself, of course. But supposing the bureaucrat did not welcome criticism? "Since Liberation our buraucrats do welcome it. They encourage it. They practise self- criticism. We all practice self - criticism. Chairman Mao has said that we must criticise ourselves, just as we wash ourselves, every day."

My companion modestly remarked that self - criticism was not all that easy. "I my self find it difficult to accept criticism, especially if it is real criticism, profound criticism, criticism which forces me to think again."

The intellectual looked at us almost with pity. Being capitalists, we would find it difficult, he said, but Communists were naturally free from all prejudice in their own favour. "It arises from the difference of our social systems."

It arises naturally from the social system... That is another stock Chinese phrase. Everything in Communist China is right, and it is right naturally. There is no need to ask any question, no need to define terms, no possibility of argument. The Communist social system, being itself right, must, by social determinism, produce right actions, right doctrines. The capitalist system, being wrong, equally produces wrong doctrines. So the Chinese "intellectuals," indoctrinated peasants who had never left China, would give us factual lectures about England, and any dissent was silenced by the knockout formula: "It must be so: it is a necessary consequence of the social system."

"Do they really ant to understand England?" we sometimes asked ourselves — for the purpose of our visit was to further "Anglo - Chinese understanding." But the answer was plain. They do not. Why should they? Except for certain limited purposes, England is irrelevant to them. What they want from us is technological expertise, the result of our capitalist history. But that result must come to them insulated from the ideas and experience which originally produced them.

They also want the English language . But it, too, must come insulated from English ideas, English experience. In England we teach foreign languages as part - an inseparable part – of foreign cultures. The Chinese want no such contamination. Just as their own past history has been purged of its possibly seductive ideas, just as the living art and religion of imperial times has been sterilized under the headings of "culture relics" or "superstitious objects," or ascribed to "the wisdom of the labouring people," so the English language (as its teachers sometimes complain) has been carefully divorced from English ideas. To the Chinese, it is not a means of entry to English literature or English thought. It is a means of bargaining for English machine - tools and of preaching Communist propaganda to Indians and Africans.

'A REPORT ON FORMOSA'

The Far East is in ferment. While convulsion continues in China, there have been alarms in Singapore, new threats in Korea, new violence in Viet Nam. How pleasant, we might think, to turn away from that inflamed Pacific coastline to an island of peace, Formosa.

Formosa is the one province of China where the thoughts of Chairman Mao are unread and the cultural revolution unknown. It is the last redoubt of the nationalist government of Chiang Kai- shek. A wide strait severs it from the raging mainland. American arms protect it. Outwardly it seems irrelevant to the present struggles of which Red China is the real centre. In fact I believe that it is very relevant. For Formosa is, if not the real centre, at least the model of that laternative society which may yet be created in the Far East.

This is not how most of us imagine it. We imagine it, if at all, as a large, aging garrison of exiled anti- Communists camped, under American orders, in a passive island. But most of us, as Mr. Alsop has told us, are parochial. In this at least, I think, he is right and we are wrong. If we wish to understand American policy on the mainland, where it is at war, we should look also at what it is defending, in peace.

For Formosa is not an old garrison: it is a new society, solid, prosperous and self - confident. In that social laboratory the displaced Nationalist government of China has solved, by rational, liberal methods, the problems which had defied it on the mainland, and it has solved them in a way which makes the Communist solution seem not only obscurantist but, in some ways, ineffective. (EDITOR'S NOTE: The English intellectual has an immense talent for expressing understatement).

The crux of the whole Chinese problem, after the Japanese departed was the question of the land. On the mainland, the Communists tackled that problem in a drastic manner, by peasant communes. In the name of social equality they destroyed ownership and seriously damaged production. During the same years, the Nationalist government in Formosa carried through a systematic land- reform which, within narrower limits, has been far more effective. It has achieved social justice while preserving peasant ownership nd has led, incidentally, to a great increase in agricultural production.

The first step was the statutory limitation of rent. The high rural rents formerly charged by Formosan landlords were pegged at 37.5 percent, of the main crop, thus giving new incentives to the tenant. Large holdings (including government holdings) were sold on easy terms. The peasants are now out of debt and their holdings are being rationalised. These changes have already produced a contented peasantry and a higher yield. At the same time, the landlords have not been expropriated: they have been compensated in government bonds and shares in public enterprises. The effect has been to divert many of the old landlords into the new light industries which contribute so much to the island's new in 1945. It is now 14 million, of whom only two million are immigrants from the mainland.

This land reform is the key to all else. "If we had only done this ten years earlier," an official told me, "there would have been no communism in China now." As it stands, the proposition is surely true. But could such reform have been carried out on the mainland? I rather doubt it. On the mainland the government of Chiang Kai-shek was not a free agent: it depended largely on landlords and financiers who might well have obstructed such reform. In Formosa the position was very different. There the government had tabula rasa (clean slate). It also, by this time - under the impact of the Korean War of 1950 - had effective American support which it lacked in the difficult years 1945-49. (See book review in April 22 Life- Lines - ED.)

However that may be, the errors of the past have now been repaired in this last outpost of the Kuomintang (political party of Chiang Kai-shek). Formosa has now, after Japan, the highest standard of living in Asia. Since 1965, it economy has dispensed with direct American aid. It has become the teacher of new nations, sending its technicians to advise the tropical societies of Africa which Red China has wooed in vain. it is now the shop - window of the new and more genuine Pacific "Co-Prosperity Sphere" which the Americans have built out of the ruins of the brief Japanese Empire and whose land- frontier is being defended, with such brutal tenacity, in Viet Nam. I must admit that when I see the beneficent revolution which America has patronised in Formosa, I look a little more sympathetically on its struggle in Viet Nam. Barbarous in itself, that struggle is part of a wider whole: the rough, inflamed edge of a great social as well as military undertaking.

Here are some reminders on traffic safety from the National Safety Council.

The slowpoke on the expressway is just as dangerous as the speeder. If traffic streams past you or you are leading a slow parade in your lane, speed up or get off the expressway. You are a hazard when you block traffic.

Plan every trip so you won't have to force yourself or your car. Take time to stop, stretch, rest, have a snack. You'll be more alert, more relaxed, and more comfortable - and safer.

Seat belts do save lives. Studies of actual auto crashes by investigators at Cornell University prove it. The National Safety Council estimates that at least 8,000 to 10,000 lives a year would be saved if every motorist used a seat belt every time he got into a car.

At least five cars besides your own should concern you while driving. They are the one ahead, the one behind, the one approaching in the opposing lane, the one ready to enter from a side street, and the one parked at the curb.

Teen drivers need not to be poor drivers. The National Safety Council says it's youth's lack of experience that leads to errors in judgment. Driver education courses aid in developing judgment and a sense of responsibility necessary to safe driving. Studies indicate that teens who have had formal driver education have fewer traffic accidents and violations than others.

Drinking is a factor in at least half of the fatal motor vehicle accidents, and about three out of every 10 fatal highway accidents involve vehicles going too fast or too fast for conditions, the National Safey Council reports.

Dry Summer Blossoms For Winter Bouquets

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever," wrote Britain's famed 18th century poet John Keats -- and he might well have been describing a gloriously preserved bouquet of summer flowers.

Did you know that the full beauty of summer blossoms need never die or fade away, that their vivid coloring can beautify your home for many seasons?

The art of drying and preserving fresh flowers is not new. As early as 1700 in America -- and for centuries before in Europe – dried flowers were used for colorful winter bouquets. What is new is the rebirth of the art today and its astonishing perfection through the use of a common, inexpensive chemical -- silica gel.

Not so long ago dried flowers, no matter how expertly handled, had a somewhat faded, shriveled look. This was better than nothing, of course. Nevertheless, the true flower lover could not help feeling a tinge of disappointment. The intrinsic beauty of the flower -- its freshness – was gone.

Today, dried flowers are incredibly like perfectly fresh blossoms. Imagine one dozen long- stemmed red roses in your living room-- in flamboyant bloom all winter long! Or if you prefer colorfully mixed summer blossoms in massed bouquets, select an abundance at your florist now, dry them, and enjoy the knowledge that their bright June beauty will beautify your home in January!

SIMPLE INSTRUCTIONS

The flower drying process and necessary equipment are so simple that one barely needs instructions. Experience, furthermore, is the best teacher. Nevertheless, here are the basics straight from the Society of American Florists in Washington, D.C.

ASSEMBLE THE FOLLOWING ITEMS:

1) A two or three pound box of silica gel, a salt- like, moisture - absorbing chemical packaged especially for flower - drying and sold under various commercial names at florist shops, garden supply centers, seed, hardware, and department stores. 2) Containers for drying. Any container with a tight - fitting cover will do. Fruitcake and coffee tins are excellent. 3) Freezer or masking tape. 4) Toothpicks and glue. 5) Containers for storing. Widemouthed Mason preserving jars are ideal. 6) No. 20 florist's wire. 7) Green florist's tape. 8) Soft artist's brush.

Now to begin. A visit to your florist will reveal the tempting array of flowers that respond beautifully to drying. The selection is far too long to enumerate here. From A to Z -- acacia to zinnia -- the Society of American Florists lists seventy - five species.

Which are your favorites? Carnations, marigolds, larkspurs, or roses? When you have returned home with flowers of your choice, cut off and discard all but one to two inches of flower stems. Save leaves. Pour silica gel into sealable container to depth of two inches.

Insert flowers face up. Lay leaves flat. Space blossoms and leaves so they are not touching. Gently sprinkle silica gel over flowers and foliage until completely covered. Arrange additional layers of flowers covering each with powder until container is filled.

Rose buds or any flower bud about one- fourth open should be placed horizontally in container on half- inch of silica gel, then completely covered. Half - open blossoms should be placed at forty - five degree angle to avoid crushing petals.

When container is full, cover with tight top and seal with freezer or masking tape. Put away in dry place where contents will remain undisturbed for required drying period: usually four to seven days.

Exact drying time depends upon size, texture, and moisture content of flowers and foliage. Tiny flowers --forget- me - nots and pansies, for example -- will dry in less than four days. Flowers with many petals -- large roses, dahlias, zinnias, and marigolds -- require up to a week.

Do not overdry. This results in "burning" -- disintegration that causes petal edges to curl and turn beige.

STEMS AND LEAVES

To remove flowers after drying, slowly pour off powder mixture until blossoms are uncovered. Gently lift out flowers – they are very brittle when dry -- and blow away particles of silica gel. Remove any remaining particles with soft artist's brush. The silica gel, incidentally, should not be thrown away. It can be used and reused indefinitely.

In drying fresh flowers it is advisable to construct stems of wire and green florist's tape. Real stems are often too brittle for effective arrangements. Your aim in creating the stems is two-fold: a natural look, and flexibility. Place desired length of No. 20 florist's wire next to remaining inch or two of real stem under flower head. Spiral wrap stem and entire length of wire with green florist's tape. Create similar taped wire stems for real dried leaves and tape these – as they naturally grow -- to flower stem.

Additional tips for success: full - blown roses may fall apart when dried. Carefully replace petals on receptacle, gluing one by one. Use toothpick to spread glue. If petals are intact but appear about to fall, strengthen by dabbing receptacle with glue.

Dry twice the quantity of flowers you think you will need. Even with silica gel there is some shrinkage, and you will want replacements for damaged blooms. Store excess flowers away from sun and light in sealed Mason jars.

TRUE TO LIFE

A new world of creativity opens to the maker of dried flower bouquets. The final reward lies in the astonishingly long life of your bouquet and a true - to - life quality you will find hard to believe. Roses blooming in a garden, or a field of yellow daffodils are no lovelier than these!

Two Chinas

Professor Trevor - Roper, described as an internationally-known historian and distinguished exponent of British intellectual liberalism, is one of the few Westerners who have visited both Red China and Nationalist China. His reports on both so upset the Red China-biased "Society for Anglo - Chinese Understanding" that he was forced to resign from the group;

By Hugh Trevor-Roper
Regius Professor of Modern History Oxford University

'THE SICK MIND OF RED CHINA'

It takes some time to recover from a visit to (Red) China. The immediate frustrations are overwhelming, and any man who agrees, as I did, to go on a "delegation," invited bya Chinese government agency, should take good care to protect himself before starting. We were well looked after materially. We were transported, housed, fed in comfort. But to be beset, for three weeks, by ignorant "guides"; to be severed, apparently on purpose, from all intelligent contact; to be drenched daily with identical tabloid propaganda adapted to the minds of peasant children - this is a terrible fate, hardly compensated even by the most generous hospitality.

"Remember, we are guests," I was sometimes told when driven to the point of incandescence by some puerile monologue. But my feelings were those of Anthony Wood when he found himself the guest of the then Warden of Wadham College:

"He gave me roast meat and beat me with the spit."

The first thing for which the visitor must be prepared is the propaganda. It is incessant. The theme is constant. "Before Liberation," in the "feudal age" (that is, from the beginning of time until A.D. 1949), everything was evil and it is a virtue to be ignorant of it. The only history worth recording in those 4,000 years consists of sporadic "peasant revolts," and every museum is arranged around large modern effigies, socialist- realist style, of imaginary peasant leaders. In between them we find periodic tableaux of daily life in imperial times. These are as carefully and about as tastefully, constructed as Christmas- creches in Catholic churches, and show the rich, drinking in their palaces among dancing girls and concubines, while the poor starve outside in the snow. If anything of beauty or utility was created in those "feudal" ages, it was (we are told) "by the wisdom of the labouring people," but by now it has probably been "looted by US imperialists." This is a stock phrase for the export from China of any object, by whatever process, if such export is afterwards regretted.

Then comes the great turning point, the "Liberation" of 1949. From 1949, Chinese history is suddenly worth study. The "Labouring people" have suddenly taken over. Cities which had been "consumer cities of landlords, capitalists and bureaucrats" (how well one knows the unvarying jargon) have suddenly ecome "manufacturing cities for the people."

"Peasants, workers and intellectuals" is the new tabloid phrase, and we are assured that, by an almost theological mystery, there three are now not three but one. Modern Chinese intellectuals, we were told again and agian, must never become mentally detached from the peasantry. I must admit that those whom I met seemed in no danger of being so. Even art, it seems, has been transformed. "Before Liberation," explained the vice-director of the handicrafts factory, "there was no art in China." This surprised us, but he insisted. "Since Liberation," said the modern art- dealer, "reproductions are as good as originals." They probably are.

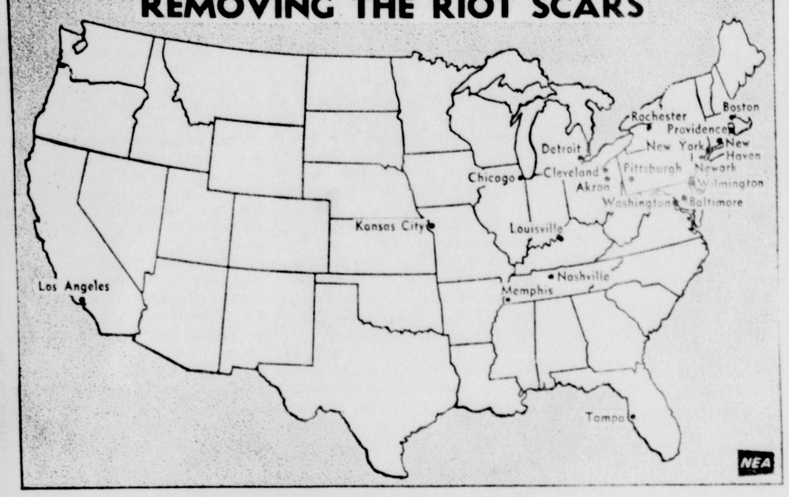

Worst of allis the self-righteousness, which has no limits, none at all. One day, in light mood (if that is conceivable in China), we were lamenting the universal proliferation of paper forms, of bureaucracy. "You Chinese," I remarked genially, "are not ntirely blameless in the matter: you invented both paper and bureaucracy." "Yes,"

"4'A's and one 'B'—You must reflect my side of the family..."

REMOVING THE RIOT SCARS

Twenty cities are immediately affected by President Nixon's order to allocate $9 million in federal funds for rehabilitation of areas devastated in recent riots. The money will be used to tear down gutted buildings and clear sites for parks and new construction. Local governments will be required to pay one-third of the cost.

MIDEAST AT A GLANCE

1. Arab guerrilla rocket attack on Israeli port of Elath sparks retaliatory Israeli air raid on neighboring Aqaba in Jordan, ending unwritten truce between the two cities and opening a new front in the unfinished Arab-Israeli war. Israel warns Jordan of a possible blockade of Aqaba.

2. Artillery battle between Egyptian and Israeli forces along Suez Canal follows Elath Aqaba attacks.

3. Fighting spreads to Jordan River with artillery and mortar duel between Jordanian and Israeli forces. Outbreaks occur as Jordan's King Hussein visits Washington to urge Big Four powers to devise Mideast peace formula. Hussein also reportedly wants delivery of U.S. jets promised before 1967 six-day war.

TINY TIME PILLS seem to have gotten out of hand, but these actually are fiberglass-reinforced plastic tanks used in underground storage by major U.S. oil companies. The tanks replace metal ones which reportedly rust in highly corrosive soil.

A BAD DAY for Pennsylvania's Gov. Raymond Shafer who didn't get any trout this time out, despite sharp-looking gear.

PREMIER POST seems certain for Jacques Chaban-Delmas, above, who apparently has been chosen for the position by newly-elected French President Georges Pompidou. Chaban-Delmas, 54, has been a pillar of Gaullism in the 11 years he served as president of France's National Assembly.

Three Receive Scholarships

Three Sikeston area residents have been awarded sponsored scholarships to attend Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau. They are Paul David Lathum, Richard McAnulty and Miss Jane O. Tinnon.

The scholarships will cover the tuition and fees of the three for one school year of two semesters.

Lathum is a son of Mrs. Maxine Lathum, 102 East Kathleen, Sikeston. He is a graduate of Sikeston High School, where he sang in the concert choir. He also sang in the community choir, Sing-Out Sikeston and the choir at the First United Methodist Church.

He plans to study pre-engineering when he enters as a freshman in September, and this summer he is working as a heavy equipment operator. His scholarship is sponsored by the First National Bank of Cape Girardeau.

McAnulty is the son of Charles F. McAnulty, Route two, Essex. He is a graduate of Richland High School, where he was a member of the Future Farmers of Americ and was voted the "Best- All-Around Student." A junior at Southeast Missouri State, he is studying accounting. His scholarship is sponsored by the Cape West Rotary Club.

Miss Tinnon is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tinnon, 404 Marian, Sikeston. A senior, she is majoring in business education and is a member of Phi Gamma Nu, professional business sorority. She is a graduate of Sikeston High School where she was a member of the National Honor Society, Biology Club, concert choir, and Future Teachers of America.

Her scholarship is sponsored by the International Hat Company of St. Louis.

Malden Plans Street Paving

MALDEN -- A street paving program for the City of Malden was discussed Monday night by the City and several streets were listed to be blacktopped as soon as possible.

These streets are: Norman Drive from Highway 25 to Stokelan Drive; Tom Street from Broadwater Road to south end; Second Avenue from S. Douglass west to Illinois; the north 330 feet of N. Decatur; Hester from Highway 25 east to Beckwith; Almar Drive from Highway 25, the entire street; West Howard from Frisco RR to Rogers; Downing Blvd. from Highway 25 west to Smith, both lanes; Burge Drive from Pitman Road to north end; Barrett St. from Highway 25 west two blocks.

The Council approved a motion to let Malden Fruit Market have 17 pieces or railroad track plus some old cross ties that have not been used for years.

A letter of recommendation to the Board of Public Works was approved. It suggested that the penalty on late bills be extended to the 10th of the month following the receipt of the bill.

A committee, composed of Councilmen Evans, Bostic and Jones, were appointed to make recommendations on extension of the city limits.

Charleston Teachers In Desegregation Course

CHARLESTON — Fifty-nine persons representing the Charleston school district are enrolled this summer in a special training institute on the problems of school desegregation at Southeast Missouri State College, Cape Girardeau.

The institute, under the direction of Dr. Willard J. Morgan, a professor of education at the direction of Dr. Willard J. Morgan, a professor of education at the college, was funded with a $60,000 grant from he U.S. Office of Education. Most of the participants are from Charleston, which the Office of Education suggested as a target area, but other districts in Southeast Missouri with substantial minority enrollments are also represented.

The institute began June 30. The major portion of the training will come to an end on Aug. 1, but there will be followup sessions throughout the coming school year, according to Dr. Morgan.

Representatives from Charleston are Bob Adams, Esther Agnew, Maegerie Ballinger, Ruthe Blackwell, Beverly Bond, Alberta Brooks, Josephine Brooks, Pearla Brooks, Emma Burke, Laura Bynum, Robert L. Caldwell, Louis Chaney, Catherine Cook, Carol Cooper, Alvin Cope, James Cox, Eldoris Daniel. # Four File For Council

EAST PRAIRIE — Ernest Douglas, Freemont McTigue, Jack L. Adkisson and Davis Siars have filed for councilmen and will be on the ballot along with Mayor Lloyd Hogan, David Brumley, K. G. Whittington and Dr. A. L. Weaver incumbents, in the general election that will be held August 19. This makes a total of eight men who have filed for the position. If more than ten candidates file for election it will be necessary to call a primary Tuesday, August 5, however; if only ten file then the primary will not be necessary. Prospective candidates have from now until Friday, July 25 at 5 p.m. daylight time to file for the office. In order to file, prosective candidates must stop by the city clerk's office and fill out a statement of candidacy.

Camp Letters

Long letters is one thing parents appreciate when their children are away at camp. Mr. and Mrs. Norvil Edwards received these letters from their daughter, Teresa, 10.

Dear Mother,

I am in advanced beginners in swimming lessons. It is rest hour now, so I have to go.

Love, Teresa.

Dear Family,

We went to the lake and swum until 4:30. Then, it was rest hour. Then, you can write letters. Tell Cheryl I miss her. In the morning I am going to swimming lessons and to mail this. I miss all of you.

With all my love, Teresa.

Dear Daddy,

I am homesick. I miss you very much. Come and get me. With all my love, Teresa.

Local Law Against Nude Film Showing Put Down

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Morris operated a drive-in theater that showed pictures of people running around only in their silhouettes or, as the enraged townfolk put it less delicately, he showed nudist films.

Peeking at the films only when it was unavoidable or, rather, talking a dim view of such indecent films, the townfolk ultimately prevailed upon the town board to pass an ordinance that provided for the revocation of a license to show movies in a drive-in where the mayor finds "immoral activity on the premises."

"That ordinance isn't any good," protested Max. "It sets the mayor up as lord high executioner of drive-in theaters. And for a man who's best opinion is of himself, it gives him too much discretion as to what's immoral."

"It doesn't take a Puritan to determine what's immoral," was the answer, "when your talking about people running around without any clothes on. When they grin and bear it, that speaks for itself."

Determined to fight the validity of the ordinance, Morris took the matter to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you uphold the validity of the ordinance?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the ordinance was too vague and idenfinite to be valid. Without some standard to decide whether activities on the premises were immoral, the Mayor could make those words mean just what he wants them to mean.

As example, he might decide that going to the movie on a Sunday was immoral. Furthermore, concluded the judge, here's no specification as to whose immoral activity is to be judged and without a closed circuit television system in each vehicle, there's no way knowing what's going on in each car as the movie is going on.

Eight Red Cross senior life savers were on hand for the opening session of the annual water safety instructor's course at the municipal swimming pool this morning. The course is being given by Ernie Vornbrock, veteran Red Cross water safety and accident prevention field representatives. The four persons from Sikeston taking part in the course are Al Bach, Charles Berthe, John Kendig and J.D. Schwab.

A narrow two-vote majority by Miner Switch school district patrons in a special election at Miner Saturday carried the proposal to annex the districts to Sikeston.

Now approaching completion after many delays occasioned by excessive rainfall, the Sikeston Drive-In Theater, located on Highway 60 just east of the new city limits, will open for operation sometime during the next few days, according to an announcement today.

Robert A. Green, jr., 28, of Caruthersville, son of Mr. and Mrs. R.A. Green of Sikeston, died at Missouri Delta Community Hospital here this morning from an accidential bullet wound. The accident occurred when Mr. Green and his cousin, Winfield Pankey of Caruthersville, were examining a .25 calibre pistol belonging to Pankey.

Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Friday, July 18, the 199th day of 1969. There are 166 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in the year 64 A.D., the great fire of Rome began. The legend is that Emperor Nero set the fire and fiddled as the city burned.

On this date:

In 1792, the American naval hero, John Paul Jones, died in poverty in Paris.

In 1914, the U.S. Army created an aviation section within the Signal Corps.

In 1932, the United States and Canada signed a treaty to develop the St. Lawrence River into a seaway and power project.

In 1938, flier Douglas Corrigan —nicknamed "Wrong Way Corrigan"— arrived in Ireland after leaving New York on a flight ostensibly to California.

In 1940, a Democratic convention in Chicago nominated President Franklin D. Roosevelt for a third term.

In 1963, the government of Syria squelched a revolt led by pro-Nasser revolutionaries.

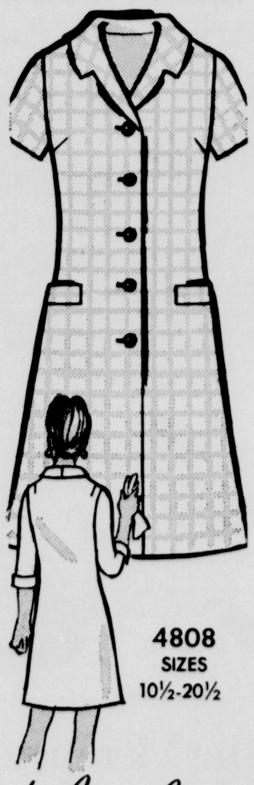

Ten years ago: Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro was attempting to oust President Manuel Urrutia Lleo.

Five years ago : The killing of a 15-year-old Negro boy by an off-duty white policeman in New York led to a four-day outbreak of racial violence in the city's Negro neighborhoods.

One year ago: Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower endorsed Richard M. Nixon for the Republican presidential nomination.

Sharks Pose Problem in Recovery Zone

ABOARD THE USS HORNET (AP) — Recovery crewmen rehearsing the Apollo 11 pickup in the Pacific are encountering more sharks than in any previous spacecraft recoveries.

Because of this, the carrier Hornet will launch a 26-foot wooden whaleboat with armed sailors to protect the spacemen and the recovery swimmers.

National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials on board and the swimmers agree that the number of sharks exceeds previous splashdowns.

The sharks have damaged some equipment, but have made no menacing moves toward swimmers.

Those aboard this recovery carrier hope the sharks will disappear before the splashdown, 700 miles away from the ship's present location

Conrad to Attempt Polar Flight Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Max Conrad, the world's most active small-plane pilot, plans a second try next winter at becoming the first person to fly around the world pole to pole in a light plane or solo.

He hopes to land on the South Pole airstrip about Christmas Day and then go on to the North Pole and touch down at the nearest safe point—probably on an ice island some 200 miles from the pole.

Good Samaritan Acts Repeated By Hannibal Pair

HANNIBAL, Mo. (AP)—Nearly 11 years ago, two teen-age boys plunged into Fair Creek near Hannibal in a vain attempt to rescue two little girls from a submerged automobile.

The rescuers were later identified as Jim Lamont Jr., and Harlon Lain of Hannibal, both 17 at the time.

Earlier this week, two young men waded chest-deep into a roadside ditch near Hannibal in another vain attempt at rescue. They righted an overturned car, but the two Crestwood, Mo. girls inside were dead.

The young men left the scene without identifying themselves, but a Hannibal Courier-Post reporter tracked them down and got their names—Jim Lamont Jr., and Harlon Lain, now 28.

A few weeks ago, a car with two small girls inside rolled down an incline on a super market parking lot toward Hannibal's busy Market street.

A passing motorist stopped his car on Market, ran to the runaway car and brought it to a stop before it reached the street. The motorist backed the car to its original parking place set the handbrake and departed without identifying himself.

The Courier-Post reporter found out who the good samaritan was—Jim Lamont Jr.

Six Flags Park Planned for St. Louis Area

ST. LOUIS, Mo. AP) — Angus Wynne Jr., chairman of the board of Great Southwest Corp., announced plasn Thursday to build Six Flags Over Mid-America, an amusement park with an historical theme.

The multi-million-dollar park will be built near St. Louis. Completion is scheduled for the summer of 1971.

It will be the third Six Flags park build by Great Southwest. Six Flags over Texas, between Dallas and Fort Worth, has been in operation since 1961, and Six Flags over Georgia in Atlanta opened three years ago.

The Missouri park will have six sections based on the history of the Midwest under the flags of Spain, France, Britain, Missouri, Illinois and the United States.

Wynne said the site near St. Louis was selected because of the attendance potential in the area. He said more than 70 million people live within a 500-mile radius of the city.

Construction on the park will begin this week, Wynne said.

Grain Market

CHICAGO AP — Grain futures prices were mostly higher in early dealing Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade, but on the opening, wheat was 1/8 to 1/2 cent a bushel higher, July 1.26 5/8; corn was 1/4 to 1/2 higher, July 1.29 3/4; oats were unchanged to 1/4 higher, July 61 5/8, rye was unchanged to 3/4 lower, July 1.12, and soybeans were 1/8 to 1/2 lower, July 2.67 1/2.

The American ptarmigan, whose summertime plumage is black, brown and white, molts into a snow-white garb for winter.

Three Parma Men Waive Hearing

NEW MADRID — Three Parma men, Jimmie Barber, 19, Lewis Walker, 20, and Billy Joe Martin, 21, charged with burglary and larceny, waived pereliminary hearing Thursday in Magistrate Court.

Judge Leo Hedgepeth bound them over to Circuit Court. Bond of $1000 each was set. a Juvenile taken into custody has been turned over to the juvenile officer. Barber, home on leave from the Army prior to being sent to Vietnam, posted his bond.

The men were arrested Wednesday afternoon by Parma City Marshal Hollis "Doc" Lindley in connection with the early Wednesday morning breakin of Les Jaynes' Town Tavern. Jaynes reported 10 cases of beer and a quantity of cigarettes were taken. Lindley recovered three and one-half cases of beer where it had been hidden on a ditch bank. Entry was made by prying board off a window.

Car Theft At Dexter

DEXTER — The sheriffs office recovered checks and other papers stolen in the robbery of the Poe Clinic in ditches near Dexter. Still on the missing list is cash and narcotics taken in the early morning theft on July 7. Found with the papers and checks were two pairs of gloves.

Early Friday morning Dr. Poes 1968 black and green Cadillac was stolen from the garage at his residence.

Apollo Crew to Bring Back Wives' Souvenirs

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Apollo 11 astronauts are expected to bring back a cherished souvenir from the moon for their wives, but the women prefer not to say what the items are.

"Yes, he took something very special for me," Mrs. Edwin E. Aldrin Thursday, "but I'd rather not say what it is."

"That's private," said Mrs. Neil A. Armstrong when asked if her husband was carrying a memento for her.

"I hope so, I expect so," said Mrs. Michael Collins when asked if her husband took a personal item on the moon trip to bring back to her. She said the identity of the memento was a secret.

Apollo May Be Contamination Threat to Ship

ABOARD USS HORNET (AP) — A U.S. space official says he is still trying to determine how far away this recovery ship must be when the Apollo 11 capsule lands in the Pacific to insure that the 2,000 people aboard, including President Nixon, are safe from possible lunar contamination.

Existence of the problem arose at Thursdays news briefing at which the ship's commander, Capt. C. J. Seiberlich, said one purpose of daily recover training exercises was to establish ground rules for positioning the Hornet at splashdown time early July 24 "to avoid possible contamination of the ship."

Asked how the tightly sealed capsule could endanger a ship expected to be at least two miles away when it hits the water, Dr. Donald Stullken of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said that air vents on the Apollo craft open when its parachutes pop out and are not closed until after touchdown.

"If the ship was close enough down wind," he said, "it might be possible for the ship to be contaminated."

He said he had asked NASA officials at Houston, Tex., to compute safe distances under varying wind conditions and that he expected an answer in adequate time.

The vents, designed to expel stale air, are among several areas to be scrubbed with iodine solution by a frogman shortly after splashdown. This presumably would kill any moon germs brought into the spacecraft by the astronauts after their walk on the lunar surface.

possibility," flight director Clifford Charlesworth told newsmen. "The answer to that is a function of what our status is when we get there, the status of the spacecraft and the status of the crew."

Eagle is to land on the moon's Sea of Tranquillity at 4:19 p.m. EDT. Armstrong and Aldrin have several checkout and preparation chores, plus a four-hour rest period planned before Armstrong takes the first step on the surface at 2:21 a.m. Monday.

Charlesworth said the crew could elect to skip the rest period if they felt alert enough to face the potentially dangerous, demanding tasks planned during 2½ hours o outside exploration.

The astronauts Thursday night transmitted a 35-minute live telecast from their weightless home—20 minutes longer than scheduled.

They plan another 15-minute transmission start at 7:32 p.m. today, and may also relay a show from inside the LM when Armstrong and Aldrin transfer into the lander at 5:47 p.m.

Farm Valuations to Rise In Mississippi County

CHARLESTON - The Mississippi County Board of Equalization is in session faced with the problem of raising farm vaulations by $5,187,795.

The total assessed valuation of farm lands and town property in the county in 1968 was $22,727,739. Of this amount $7,328,160 represented the assessed valuation of town lots.

According to figures certified to the county by the State Tax Commission, the total for Mississippi county for 1969 taxes must be $27,774,175.

Farm land valuations totaled $15,258,220 as certified to the State Tax Commission. This figure should be $20,446,015 or an increase in farm land valuation of $5,187,795.

Other southeast Missouri counties, and how they fared at the hands of the tax commission follow:

| County | 1968 Real Estate Valuation | 1969 Real Estate Valuation | Per Cent Increase |
|---|---|---|---|
| Cape Girardeau | 59,786,965 | 69,256,680 | 15.8 |

| Stoddard | 30,768,695 | 35,862,455 | 16.6 |

Ship Collision Probe Ends

MANILA (AP) — The U.S.-Australian navai board investigating the collision of the American destroyer Frank E. Evans and the Australian aircraft carrier Melbourne ended its inquiry today and sent a secret report to the two navies.

U.S. Rear Adm. Jerome H. King, senior member of the board, said the panel's specific findings would not be released now, but he praised the heroism and "actions far beyond the call of duty" shown by men of both ships.

The Melbourne sliced through the Evans before dawn on June 3 while the two vessels were taking part in Southeast Asia Treaty Organization maneuvers in the South China Sea. The forward half of the destroyer sank, and 74 Americans were lost.

Charleston Judge Fines Two

CHARLESTON - Robert Earl Isbell, 17, pleaded guilty to a charge in city court Thursday of destruction of private property, and was fined $7.

In court today, Gerald L. Wilfong, route two, Zalma, pleaded guilty to a charge of public intoxication, and was fined $13.

Last night at 8:30 p.m. the city police arrested Marian Ruth Hardin, 19, St. Louis, charged with breaking in the home of her grandmother, Annie Dee Smith, 502 Elm street. Mrs. Smith was in St. Louis on a visit at the time. She has been turned over to county authorities, awaiting the arrival of the grandmother.

Four Suspects Released

Police reported they have released the four suspects taken into custody Tuesday following the theft of jewelry at Voelker's Credit Jewelers, 137 East Front St. Prosecuting Attorney Tom Gilmore said the foursome was released because of insufficient evidence. Police are seeking a fifth suspect named "Willie" in connection with the theft.

Dividends Announced

Donald R. Bohannon, president of First National Bank, announced the payment of a quarterly dividend on July 17 1969 to all stockholders of record as of June 30, 1969. Bohannon stated the bank now has over 500 individual stockholders throughout the state of Missouri. Southern Illinois, Western Kentucky and Northeast Arkansas.

This was the first quarterly dividend the bank has paid, as they have usually been paid on an annual basis. The board of directors anticipates future payments of its dividends on a quarterly basis to all stockholders.

The dividend payment was 10 cents per share on 300,000 shares outstanding, Bohannon said.

Postal Employes Off Monday

The Sikeston Post Office will celebrate man's first steps on the moon with a Monday holiday.

The office will be closed, and no mail will be delivered. Most of the nation's 750,000 postal workers will have this Monday holiday.

The Daily Standard knows of no other Sikeston businesses that will close Monday.

Malden Chamber Elects Officers

MALDEN - A meeting was held last night for the election of Chamber of Commerce officers for the coming year. The yearend reports were made by President J. D. Byrum and manager Bill Crabtree.

Ronald Dye, manager of Malden Lumber company, was elected president. Joe Mosley, manager Overturf drug store, was elected vice-president. John Culp and Ray Bess, were elected to the board for a three year term; and Clarence Schoolfield, to a two-year term.

Chairman Dye said that between $13-$14,000 had been pledged for the new budget, which is an increase of $1,000 over last year.

The next meeting will be held within a month when the chamber program will be announced.

Miller Named to Council

Sikeston City Manager W. Raymert Miller has been named a member of the Bootheel Economic Development Council by Gene Sally, acting director of the state Department of Community Affairs.

The council, which is made up of about 15 persons from Dunklin, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Scott and Stoddard counties, is the official organization to administer the federal Economic Development Administration's district program.

Warrant for Arrest Issued

The highway patrol stated that a warrant had been issued to Roy Fields, 18 Neelyville, following the death of Dave L. Edmiston, 34, Dell City, Okla., driver of a BSA motorcycle.

The warrant was issued by Butler County authorities, charging that Shields had left the scene of the accident, after striking the vehicle from the rear on the night of July 12. The patrol said the youth was visiting in Indianapolis, Ind.

Cease-Fire Violation Claimed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

El Salvador and Honduras agreed provisionally to halt their war at dawn today but Honduras charged its neighboring enemy broke the cease-fire about two hours later by opening fire on the western front.

A government spokesman in Tegucigalpa, Honduras' capital, said the Honduran forces at Nuevo Ocotepeque returned the fire.

Up to that time, prospects had appeared good for a halt to the fighting that had been under way since Monday.

A peace committee of the Organization of American States remained in Tegucigalpa in its effort to achieve a formal cease-fire which both nations would respect.

Foreign Minister Francisco Jose Guerrero of El Salvador said the temporary cease-fire orders had been sent to command posts at all three fronts on which the Salvadoran army invaded Honduras.

Special interests include playing the piano riding horses, reading, driving a car and eating.

Cotton Allotments Discussed

By L. L. SCHADE

PORTAGEVILLE — A group of 50 bootheel cotton farmers and farm representatives banded together to form farm policies, primarily for the cotton grower, at a meeting held Thursday afternoon at the University Delta Center. The results are to be presented before a hearing before Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin, in Washington on July 29.

The meeting was in the charge of Hilton Bracey, representative Missouri Farmers Association who at the outset warned the group the "farm program is definitely in trouble, and Congress is in no mood to continue all the present farm programs."

It was pointed out that all national farm organizations have been meeting over the past several weeks to form policies to be given before the national agricultural hearing. The MFA to be the first to present its view.

Clell Carpenter, Jefferson City, who with other farm representatives met Secretary Hardin said, "Hardin is in favor of some kind of a price support, but I have every reason to believe that the federal program may go up to $740 million, and much of it will be in the form of a federal stamp program."

As speaker Bracey pointed out," the soybean program is still a question, as there are now 43 million acres in production, with a production of over one billion bushels, and the future production may have to come under a price support program.

After a more than two- hour discussion, the group was favorable toward adding the cotton production with a future food stamp program.

The meeting went on record that the 16 million acre cotton allotment for the nation be continued, and opposed the taking of land out of production as a substitute program, as is now under consideration.

Bracey said, "Congress is in the mood to support limitations on land payments, but there is not a farm in Missouri that would have more than a $20,000 payment.

Other points on the cotton program discussed were: Its need to protect farm income; to get cotton in the hands of growers who want to grow it by voluntary changeover method; cost of production must be kept down; by meeting the price competition, and re-establishing workable pricing arrangement in a world market for a good portion of the present 10 million bale production.

As was pointed out by Bracey, "no single group, a Democrat or Republican congress, any single farm organization, can pass a farm bill, but it takes all public groups to do so."

Other points discussed for a policy agreement included, that if cotton acreage is reduced, then soybean acreage would be increased; to continue domestic cotton allotment provision; continue diversion payments; continue price support payments; a substitution of non-surplus crops on cotton acreage in event of flood, drought or other natural disasters, as where in north Missouri where there is almost a complete loss of soybean crop, there is no payment on the loss.

Additional proposals included: Continue support payments based on projected yields; the group will oppose ceiling on total program expenditures, as being opposed to limitation payments to individuals; permit producers to plant up to 200 per cent of farm allotment without program benefits, but would be eligible for loan or penalities; permit acreage allotment easement over 10 to 20 years that would take 600,000 cotton acres on a long term diversion program; permit producers to plant unlimited acreage above domestic allotments for export market only; permit sale, lease or transfer between producers without regard to counties; eliminate mandatory diversion requirement before permitting voluntary diversion; required adjustments for abnormal condition, to reflect credit for losses; continue and adequately fund the Cropland Adjustment program, to include provision for grazing at lower payment rate;

To permit CCC stocks of cotton be offered in world markets on competitive bids; permit government reserve of cotton over normal carryover to assure customers with supplies available and prevent switching to man made fiber because of questionable supplies, and last to permit cotton products be included in all appropriate welfare programs, both domestic and foreign.

All or most of the 13 farm organizatons are in favor of adding fiber to the proposed food stamp plan, was brought out by Mr. bracey.

Hospital Withdraws Request From Local United Fund

Representatives from eight agencies of the United Fund were present Thursday afternoon at First National Bank Community room, to discuss their 1970 budget and requested a total of $44,542.

The total requests is about $2,500 over the request last year, when the amount totalled $42,000, of which a little more than $33,000 was raised for all agencies.

Mrs. Emma Owens, chairman of the Sikeston United Fund, presided at a meeting. All members were present. She announced a meeting would be held July 24, to discuss and pass on each of the agencies budgets.

The Missouri Delta Community hospital, an agency of the United Fund for many years was represented yesterday by E. P. Coleman. He stated the hospital would withdraw, and that any available funds be distributed to other agencies. He stated that the needs of the hospital are so great for welfare patients that other means would be provided to raise the necessary funds.

A new agency - the Sikeston Activity Center- is represented in the 1969-70 United Fund drive.

Their represtnative requested $3,000 to establish a community program for both the elderly and youth of Sikeston.

Other agencies' requests were: Salvation Army for $3,000; Red Cross, $5,000; Boy Scouts, $16,242; Girl scouts, $7,000; City Welfare, $9,300; United Service Organization, $500; Civil Air Patrol, $500.

Two new members will be appointed to the committee next week, to replace Melford Taylor and Joyce Payne, whose terms have expired.

Nixon Urges Expanded Family Planning Aids

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon told Congress today he wants to make available within five years free birth control advice to American women of child-bearing age with low incomes.

In a special message, Nixon estimated that nearly 5 million U.S. women "do not now have adequate access to family planning assistance.

Proposing an expansion and reorganization of federal family planning services, but giving no estimate of the increased spending involved, Nixon said:

"Clearly, in no circumstances will the activities associated with our pursuit of this goal be allowed to infringe on the religious convictions or personal wishes and freedom of any individual, nor will they be allowed to impair the absolute right of all individuals to have such matters of conscience respected by public authorities."

To expand family planning services, Robert H. Finch, secretary of health, education and welfare, told newsmen an initial $30 million will be needed plus $30 million annual increases until, in the fifth year, the cost exceeds $150 million.

He estimated more than onethird of all children born to low-income mothers are unwanted. Of 5.4 million women believed eligible for family planning assistance, Finch said only 800,000 currently are being served.

The chief executive, in the 5,000-word document, sketched out a rather bleak picture of the potential impact of the global population explosion if governments, private agencies and the United Nations fail to begin dealing now with anticipated problems.

In the United States alone, the population will increase nearly 100 million to more than 300 million by the year 2,000, he predicted.

Pointing to just one consequence of the expected population growth, Nixon said: "If we were to accommodate the full 100 million persons in new communities, we would have to build a new city of 250,000 persons each month from now until the end of the century."

Saying time for advance planning "is growing very short," he asked Congress to create a Commission on Population Growth and the American Future.

The panel would study population trends, canvass governmental resources needed to deal with a larger populace and study ways in which population growth may affect activities of federal, state and local government.

Dealing with the world at large, Nixon said the planet's population of 3.5 billion will be increased by an additional billion every five years after the year 2,000.

This growth rate, he said, poses particular problems for the developing nations, where the trend of increase is strongest.

Nixon pointed to potential major problems in such fields as housing, education, transportation, recreation, maintenance of pure air and water and providing employment for the millions of additional Americans.

"We can be sure that society will not be ready for this growth unless it begins its planning immediately." he added.

Apollo on Unerring Course

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The good ship Columbia raced unerringly toward the clutch of lunar gravity today, carrying three brave men toward a Saturday rendezvous with the moon and destiny.

Everything was going so well with the Apollo 11 mission that ground controllers let the astronauts sleep more than an hour past their appointed wakeup time.

"How do all our systems look?" Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. asked on waking.

"They're looking great," came the reply from the ground.

Aldrin, Neil A. Armstrong and Michael Collins had rested 11 hours.

Armstrong and Aldrin each reported eight solid hours of sleep, with Collins logging nine hours—resting for the critical weekend exploration ahead.

While the astronauts slept, their spaceship hurtled toward a co-called "twilight zone" in which the gravitational influence of the earth and moon is about equal.

At 11:22 p.m. EDT tonight, the moon will win the gravitational tug-of-war and Apollo 11 will be in the grip of the moon's gravity. The astronauts will pass through this invisible barrier when they are 43,496 miles from the moon and 214,402 miles from their shrinking home planet.

Once across this line, Apollo 11's speed will increase from about 2,000 to 5,700 miles an hour as the pilots sweep toward the backside of the moon.

They are to fire themselves into moon orbit Saturday afternoon and a day later Armstrong and Aldrin are to fly a lunar landing craft, or LM, to the surface. Early Monday, they are to take man's first steps on another celestial body.

Today's major event occurs late in the day when Armstrong and Aldrin wiggle through a connecting tunnel into the LM, nicknamed Eagle, hitched nose-to-nose to the Columbia command ship.

For two hours they are to check the systems of the spindly-legged lander. Mainly, they will look for damage that might have occurred Wednesday during the jolting liftoff from Cape Kennedy.

If they find major damage, they will cancel their landing plans. However, mission control officials say, chances of this are remote.

Still a mystery was the Soviet Union's unmanned Luna 15, orbiting just 71 miles above the moon's surface. There was speculation that today or Saturday it might detach a capsule which would land, collect soil samples and take off to rejoin the mother ship for the trip back to earth.

American experts said such a maneuver would be a great technological feat. They feel the Soviet purpose in such a maneuver would be to demonstrate they can return rocks to earth automatically and less expensively than the $355 million Apollo 11 mission.

Dr. Elbert King, curator of a laboratory in Houston where the Apollo 11 moon samples will be studied, said the rumored Luna 15 plan would be like "grabbing in the blind." He noted Armstrong and Aldrin are well trained to pick up meaningful rocks and to leave those of little scientific value.

Although Luna 15 orbited close to the planned 69-mile-high Apollo 11 path, officials said the chances of collision are almost nil.

Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins reported no problems with Columbia.

"It's a beautiful machine," Armstrong reported.

A minor problem that had nagged the flight since just after liftoff was resolved Thursday when ground experts traced it to a sensor giving a faulty reading on an oxygen flow indicator.

"It must have got a jolt during the launching," an official said. "It's like driving your car over a bump and having the gas or temperature indicator knocked over to the side and getting stuck there."

A brief course correction firing of Columbia's engine was so accurate Thursday that another firing planned today was canceled.

As Apollo 11 coasted toward its goal, a quarter million miles from earth, mission control officials said Armstrong and Aldrin might start their exploration as much as 3½ hour earlier than now planned.

"It's within the realm of

L. G. Woodward

Woodward Promoted To Captain

L. G. Woodward, 50, who has served on the Sikeston Police Department since 1955, has been promoted to captain upon the recommendation of Police Chief Arthur Bruce.

Woodward, 308 Greer, who has served as a sergeant with the department more than five years, will be in charge of departmental night operations.

It was also announced this morning that Alex Boothe, 34, 615 East Gladys, has been promoted from patrolman to sergeant. Boothe has been with the department five years.

Chief Bruce said there will be additional promotions announced later. This is the first time the department has had anyone in the captain's rank. Chief Bruce said an officer will be named to fill the rank of lieutenant.

The promotions, which were announced this morning by City Manager W. Raymert Miller, are effective today.

Hearnes Says Monday Normal Workday for State Employes

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes said today Monday will be work as usual for state em,d32fin)he decided not to make it a state holiday.

He said he felt it would be possible for all Missourians to keep themselves fully informed ab5x sng6 Apollo 11 flight to the moon without being absent from their jobs.

"This has to rank as one of the most significant moments in the history of mankind," Hearnes said, "and I know that all Missourians will want to closely follow the progress of the astronauts. The vast majority of these Missourians also will be at work on Monday morning and I see no reason why government workers should be an exception.

"I hope all the citizens of Missouri will join me in observing this special day and honoring these brave men—by keeping them constantly in our thoughts and our prayers."

President Nixon proclaimed Monday a national day 318,1o ticipation, made it a holiday for non-essential federal employes and urged similar action by governors and mayors.

Hearnes was out of town on a study of metropolitan rapid transit systems at the time and declined to act at once. He returned late Thursday and decided to wait until today to make a final decision on the matter.

St. Louis City and St. Louis County officials said Monday would be a workday for their employes. Jackson County declared a holiday. So did Jefferson City.

At Columbia the University of Missouri announced the school in Columbia and its branches in Kansas City, St. Louis and Rolla will be open and will carry on normal operations Monday.

Accidents Injure Seven On Area Highways, Roads

A 1962 White tractor trailer, loaded with watermelons, bound for Enid, Okla., turned over and spilled over on a street in Lutesville, injuring the driver and a passenger.

The accident occurred at 2:15 a.m. Thursday when Melvin Dean Newman, 20, Enid, came over a hill too fast and lost control, causing the truck to turn over and spill the melons.

The driver received a chest injury and cuts on his head. A passenger, Allen Kennedy, 17, Enid, had chest and hip injuries.

Both were taken to Southeast Missouri hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Hiram Shell, 47, Sikeston, received minor injuries in an accident at 3:45 p.m. Thursday on highway 61 at Morley.

A 1963 Ford Van truck, driven by Bobby Benson, 24, Kennett, attempted a left turn on highway 91, when a 1968 Ford driven by Shell came over a hill and skidded into the side of the truck. Benson was taken to Missouri Delta Community hospital.

Three persons were injured in an accident at 1:30 p.m. Thursday on highway 61, seven miles south of Hayti.

A 1961 Chevrolet truck driven by Barry Ray, 22, Caruthersville, came off a gravel road without stopping, and ran into the side of a 1964 Buick, driven by Eldo Kempen, 49, Houston, Tex.

Injured in the Kempen car was the driver, who received cuts on his head and a chest injury. A passenger in the car, Jean Kempen, 49, Houston, received several fractured ribs and cuts on her head.

The Texas couple was taken to Pemiscot Memorial Hospital, Hayti.

Student Nurses Tour Facilities

Practical nurses in training at the Vocational School have taken four field trips in the past week in connection with sanitation and growth and development classes.

On Friday, July 11, the future nurses toured Reiss Dairy, the Sikeston Water Plant and the Schuchart Dairy Farms in connection with sanitation class.

Monday, the group observed children in the Headstart Program at Southwest School in connection with growth and development class.

The nurses are in the 15th week of a one-year training program which is instructed by registered nurses, Mrs. Clare Eisenbach, Mrs. Maudy Streetman, Mrs. Nola Vest and Mrs. Bonnie Greer.

Thirty persons were enrolled in the course which, thus far, has covered body structure and functioning, nutrion, growth and development, pharmocology, microbiology, basic nursing, personal vocational and some in-hospital training.

Next week, some of the students will be working in area nursing homes, and eight of the students will work in a Kennett hospital.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
TOO GOOD TO BE TRUE

Few people were surprised when black radical James Forman of the National Black Economic Development Conference received the first of his demanded kickbacks from a church group. Actually the $15,000 check from the Washington Square United Methodist Church of Greenwich Village in New York City is not the first "reparations" payment received in answer to Forman's demands; the first payment was $1,000 from the Council of Black Clergy in Philadelphia, Pa. The Methodist money was the first financial payment from a "predominantly white institution" as Forman puts it. Forman is demanding a total of $500 million from the nation's religious institutions. Several church groups have already replied to the demands with a flat refusal to pay what they consider to be blackmail.

Speaking of blackmail, Forman is on record as accusing the government of attempting to frame the leaders of his group. He stated: "I am convinced the Nixon administration is going to try to indict some of us on extortion or conspiracy charges." Now why would anyone think that this group's demands are extortion? Isn't it normal to enter a place of worship and read a list of monetary demands to the parishioners and disrupt worship services? Why is Mr. Forman worried? Does he think that any jury in the country would consider his demands unusual?

A Washington reporter recently called the Justice Department and asked if there was any plan to prosecute the leaders of the Forman group. The only answer was a terse "No comment." We can read this in one of two ways: 1) The charge is ridiculous and there is no plan to prosecute; 2) we are working on it, but are not ready to disclose our findings at this time. We hope that the latter is the case. But perhaps that would be too good to be true.

We are not amused, but probably should be, at the continuous bitching by the politicians about how about how imports of shoes, steel etc are killing off industry in this state and country.

But they do not tell the people why.

We can tell them why.

The difference is the cost of union labor as compared to the cost of labor in other countries.

Of course the consumer could do something about it by not buying the imports and again comes the news that the consumer does not give a damn about the industry of this country when it comes to his pocketbook so he buys what he can get for the least out lay of money.

When our labor costs compare with other countries labor cost once again will the United States value of trade be like it used to be, in our favor.

At a recent meeting of the National Newspaper Association in Atlantic City in a discussion with my learned friend and Editor, Frank B. Our conclusion also was that we have made such a plea to North Vietnam in our peace talks and our efforts to secure peace, that they have no intention of making any peace as long as we refrain from destroying their country as we have been under the Kennedy, Johnson, Nixon program to date.

THE WALLACE PARTY MEETS

Former Gov. George C (orley) Wallace of Alabama plans to attend a convention of the American Independent Party of Virginia in Richmond on Saturday (July 19). He speaks at a dinner of the National American Party there the evening before.

The Montgomery, Ala., address of George C. Wallace is c/o The Wallace Campaign, P. O. Box 1972. The number is significant. After the former Governor of Alabama was defeated as the American Independent Party candidate for President of the United States last Nov. 5, the box number was changed from 1968.

The Wallace political machine, cranked up in early 1967, never really did run down. The driver merely shifted gears.

Last March Wallace sent his supporters a monthly newsletter informing them: "I shall continue." After substantial refueling -- and considerable rejiggering -- the maching is picking up speed again. One evidence is his appearance before the National American Party and American Independent Party of Virginia.

Wallace, who had received 13.5 per cent of the popular vote last November as a third party candidate, did not attend a meeting in Louisville, Ky., last Feb. 22-23, to organize a national conservative party. Formed then was a "national committee" of the autonomous state parties, known variously as the American Independent Party, the American Party, the Independent Party, the Conservative Party, the Constitution Party, the Courage Party, and others. However, Wallace did appear last March in the unsuccessful campaign of William J. Davis, the American Party candidate in a special election in Tennessee.

More than 1 million known Wallace supporters originally were asked to subscribe to his newsletter. If the response were only 10 per cent, he would be grossing more than $1 million at an annual subscription of $12, or more than enough to provide gas for the political machine. And unsolicited contributions keep drifting into Montgomery.

By dint of hard work, Wallace managed to have his name placed on the ballot in all 50 states last year. Most of that work would not have to be duplicated three years from now.

Wallace in 1968 got 9,906,473 popular votes -- close to the 10 million popular votes he predicted on the eve of election. He won only the 45 electoral votes of the Deep South -- Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Louisiana, and Mississippi. (A defecting elector in North Carolina gave him his 46th.)

Wallace may run for governor again in 1970 to provide himself with a political base. But he faces a formidable candidate in Gov. Albert Brewer, who shares Wallace's segregationist and law and order views.

Stewart Alsop observes: "In a 1972 Presidential race George Wallace could prove a more formidable candidate than in 1968." George Lardner, Jr. and Jules Loh state: "If the times are still out of joint when President Nixon completes his first term, George Wallace will run again." And they cite Richard M. Scammon, director of Washington's Elections Research Center, as authority that if the mood of the country does not brighten perceptibly, Wallace could win.

The big Wallace appeal last year was to middle and low income groups. He ran best in small town and rural districts, and appealed most to voters in areas with high Republican registration. He was a favorite of the police and of blue collar workers, who in this year's mayoralty elections are showing their political clout.

Hal Boyle

EDITOR'S NOTE — A recent column by Hal Boyle on how men change after marriage stirred wifely applause and husbandly howls across the land. "Why don't you tell what marriage does to women?" demanded indignant husbands. So—

NEW YORK (AP) — Nothing reveals a woman like matrimony.

As every husband knows, a transformation begins in his bride soon after leaving the altar. And after a few years he goes around muttering to himself:

"What happened to her? I can hardly recognize her as the same human being."

Before the wedding there wasn't anything she wouldn't do to please him. After the wedding she started telling him, "Your trouble is that your mother spoiled you."

"If I don't know how to cook the things you like best, I'll learn to," she pledged before they plighted their troth. So what does she slap on the table for him nightly now? If it ain't hash or tuna fish casserole, it's a half-thawed television dinner.

She used to dress so trimly she was the pride of the block. Now she slouches around the house dressed as if she were trying out for a role as one of the three witches in "Macbeth."

Formerly, he loved to talk by the hour with her. Lately, he feels he does nothing but listen while she talks to him by the hours.

Was it only yesterday he liked to sit and hold her hands all evening? Today the only reason he grabs her hands is to keep from being belted while they're having a family argument.

"I'll give you three tall strapping sons," she promised. So what has he got now? Three tall whiny, teen-age daughters, all of whom need a good strapping.

"You'll be my pet forever," she told him when he was courting her. But who gets the most petting in the house now? Papa? no, indeed. The cat does. Mama also serve the cat its meals more regularly.

"They say that behind every successful man is a good woman, and I want to be that good woman behind you," she whispered to him shyly before they wed." Well, that was some years ago, and true enough she's behind him—but barking at his heels if he doesn't ask for a raise in pay every six months.

When he carried her across the threshold of their new home after their honeymoon, she sighed happily, "I'll never want to leave here—it's heavenly." Now, if he objects at having to take her out two evenings a week, she informed him, "Well, Warden, I've got to break out of this jail sometime or I'll lose my mind."

"How can marriage change anyone so much?" he often wonders. But marriage didn't really change her. It simply revealed her. Nothing about a woman ever really changes but her mind.

He simply married a girl just like the girl who harried his dear old Dad.

The Sky's the Limit

The aviation industry has nowhere to go but up, according to "Aviation Forecasts, Fiscal Years 1969-1980," just published by the Federal Aviation Administration. Here are a few of the heights it will reach:

In 1980, airlines will be carrying some 470 million passengers, more than three times the fiscal 1968 total of 152.6 million, reflecting an average annual growth rate of 10 per cent.

This is a conservative estimate. In 1963. passenger traffic increased 20.7 per cent over the previous year. In the 1964-68 period, average annual growth was 16.5 per cent.

More than 90 per cent of the 3,600 airline planes in use will be jets, compared to slightly more than 50 per cent in 1968.

The general aviation (nonairline) fleet will number 214,000 and production of civil aircraft will reach nearly 34,000 a year, both figures almost double the 1968 totals.

Use of jet fuel will zoom from 6.2 billion gallons in 1968 to 16.9 billion in 1980, and aviation gasoline consumption will go from 642 million to 834 million gallons.

With more planes in the air, the number of take-offs and landings at FAA-controlled airports will rise to 171.5 million, more than triple the 53 million in 1968.

The beautiful, for spacious skies are getting less spacious by the year.

GOOD IDEAS: If your soiled leather gloves are not washable, you might be able to freshen them up by rubbing with a piece of cloth dipped in milk . . . . . A reader suggests the use of a small-sized plunger, of the type used for stopped-up drains, when washing drip-dry clothing. Claims the suction has great cleansing action... Go over your wrist watch strap or band with a damp, soapy cloth inside and out. Otherwise, it can soil the cuffs of a fresh shirt. If you carry a money clip and no wallet, have one of your business cards set in plastic and carry it tucked in with your bills. In case of loss -- and in case an honest person finds it -- you've a chance of getting it back . . . A vinegar dampened cloth will clean the metallic buttons on your blazer, making them shine brightly.

Prosperity tests men and nations as nothing else will, our people and our nation flinked that test in the roaring 20s and now 40 years later we have flunked once more, and many thinks this maybe the final test of our former form of Government we say former for as all can see form of GGovernment has changed before our very eyes and no one coudl do anything about it, no longer does the people have a say as to laws that take all freedom of choice. No longer do they have a say as to what they pay their public servants, or how much taxes they pay and what for. Looks like the people will be forced to exercise their constitutionals rights while they still have them and remove the thorns in the flesh of the body politics replacing them with servants of the people instead of masters of the people.

H.L. Hunt Says

TAXES AND INFLATION

The theory that inflation can be halted by raising taxes is as fallacious as it is persistent. This theory holds that the imposition of higher taxes will bring about a decrease in purchasing power and deflation, or lower prices, will follow. Followers of the Keynesian line of managed currency have long contended that any economic problem can be solved merely by increasing or decreasing the money supply.

In practice, however, it has been shown that things do not work out that way. The "remedy" of higher taxes to half inflation actually causes more inflation. While higher taxes do absorb some purchasing power, they also increase all costs of doing business in production, transportation and distribution, and again more high taxes on the resulting higher taxed products. This causes higher prices for everything, the very condition which increased taxes are intended to prevent.

A reasonable constancy of the value of the monetary unit of any country is essential for national existence. Seldom, if ever, has the departure from the first established value of the unit between toward deflation. The supposed remedy of higher taxes actually feeds the fires of inflation.

Deflation cannot destroy the value of a nation's money. Inflation, on the other hand, unless sensibly held under restraint, must inevitably destroy it and in the end destroy the nation. Excessive taxes do not stop inflation, but they do encourage overbearing and despoiling government by taking too much of the people's money and giving it to wasteful government bureaus to spend. HLH

CAPE KENNEDY, FLA. — Here are some things you may not know about the flight to the moon:

The astronauts' space suits are so stiff that they won't be able to bend over to pick up lunar rocks. They will have to use a shovel . . . crew members remove their space suits for more comfortable flight overalls shortly after entering the Apollo 11. At all times they wear a harness which is wired to signal the physical condition of each astronaut to the space center in Houstonlommmthe space suits must be worn when Neil Armstrong and Col. Edwin E. Aldrin step out on the moon. They are airtight to keep the body from exploding in the rarefied atmosphere of the moon.

The command module has more than two million functional parts, not counting wires, compared with less than 3,000 functional parts in an automobile . . it uses only about 2,000 watts of electricity, the same amount required by an electric oven . . . it has slightly more cubic feet of space per man--73--than the per person space in a compact car--63 cubic feet . . . there are 15 miles of wire in the Apollo spacecraft, enough to wire 50 two-bedroom houses . . . should the command module collide with a piece of outer space waste and be punctured with a hole one inch in diameter, it could maintain pressure 15 minutes--long enough for an astronaut to put on a space suit . . .,the chances of colliding with a meteoroid are computed as one in 1,230 . . . on the panel of the command module, the are 24 instruments,566 switches and 71 lights . . . when the Apollo reenters the atmosphere, it will generate energy equivalent to approximately 86,000 KW. of electricity, enough to light the city of Los Angeles for about a minute and a half.

--Tremendous Power--

There were 5,625,000 pounds of propellant in the Saturn V, the service module and the lunar module when the Apollo was first lifted off the ground . . . the tanks on the first stage propellant are large enough to accommodate three large moving vans side by side . . . enough liquid oxygen was in the first stage tank to fill 54 railroad tank cars . . . the five F-1 engines on the Apolio equal 160 million horsepower, which is about double the hydroelectric power available if all the rivers and streams of North America were channeled through turbines . . . there are 50 engines abroad the Apollo to boost the lunar module when it leaves the command module, also to boost it off the surface of the moon . . . . tanks which hold the ultra-cold liquid oxygen on the Apollo are probably the only leak-free vessels ever built. If an automobile tire leaked at the same rate that these tanks do, it would take the tire 32,000,000 years to go flat . . . . there are two and a half million solder joints in a Saturn V lauch vehicle. If 1/32 of an inch too much wire were left in each of these joints, plus an extra drop of solder, the excess weight would be equivalent to the payload of the vehicle . . . . the Apollo command and service modules have 587,500 linspection points which had to be checked out before the launch.

--Food For Astronauts--

The Astronauts eat a balanced diet of 2,500 calories a day. The food is in vacuum-packed plastic bags, and the bags have red, white and blue dots to identify them for each crewman . . . each "Couch" is built to conform to the size of the Astronaut using it. The couches are equipped with a lap belt and two shoulder straps to keep the Astronauts from floating off into another part of the module . . . . small towels a foot square are stowed under the couches, also wash cloths . . . a rubber tube carries waste water and unine outside the module and dumps it in outer space . . . fecal waste is desposited in plastic bags, then sealed and stowed in a waste disposal compartment. A split membrane trap prevents the bags from floating into the cabin when the door is opened.

Dr. Kurt Debus, director of the Kennedy Space center, is a former German science instructor who helped develop the V-2 rocket for Germany during the war and was brought to the United States by the U.S. Army after VE day. He is a protege of Dr. Wernher Von Braun, and helped develop the redstone, Jupiter and Juno missiles at Huntsville, Ala. He also directed the launch of the first U.S. satellites to reach outer space.

Correction: We were in error in reporting that Rep. Paul C. Jones of Missouri failed to inform his colleagues that he was the owner of a radio station, KBOA, in Kennett, Mo., when he made a speech on the house floor demanding that federal communications commission be denied the right to regulate TV commercials. The congressman did so inform the house. We regret the error . . . Rep. Richard Poff, Virginia Republican, has been telling associates that he is slated to get an early appointment to the U.S. Supreme Court. He can't get the vacancy left open by the resignation of Abe Fortas, because he voted for an increase of salaries to Supreme Court justices. But he's confident Nixon will reward him with one of the upcoming vacancies soon. Poff is a good country lawyer but unknown to the legal profession outside Virginia . . . Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, who has already peppered the Nixon administration with is pals, is about to get another appointment--Davis Moorhead of Myrtle Beach, S.C., who's in line to become assistant commissioner of patents. Moorhead has had moderate experience in the patent field . . . Attorney General John Mitchell, the President's former law partner, denies that any deals were made to reward Sen. Thurmond . . . . Mitchell recently held his first press conference since Jan. 21. If other Attorneys General had proposed increased wiretapping, pre-trial detention and stiffer bail without holding a press conference to be cross-examined about their proposals, there would have been a howl of newspaper protest from coast to coast.

NIXON'S NOTEBOOK:

President Promises Try or Asian Trip to Cut Dumping of Slave-Wage Goods Into U. S.

Washington, D. C.: -- Pants and shirts, blouses and embroideries, brassieres and children's dresses, gloves and synthetic-fiber garments are hardly traditional items for Richard Nixon's confidential traveling notebook.

But they will be on the pad during the President's swing around the Orient. They're all part of a second war he hopes to cool. And they've all been part of his pre-trip briefing. They've been the weaponry in an economic war on the U. S. by mini-wage nations which the President will visit. And he has promised leaders of apparel and textile unions he'd do what he could to slow the dumping of slavpay soft goods products into the U. S.

This dumping, now hitting the billion dollar - a - year mark, has wiped out 227,000 potential jobs in the very same ghettos, small towns and concentrated poor-white rural regions where breadwinning work is desperately needed.

And if the soft goods continue to roll in from the Orient, the Indian subcontinent and the islands of burgeoning Asia, America's textile and apparel industries (valued at some $25 billion) will be wiped out in several decades along with their 2.5 million jobs. Harassed and worried labor leaders have talked personally with Mr. Nixon and Secretary of Commerce Stans.

"The working future of those millions of Americans involved in textile and apparel industry cannot be jeopardized," President Nixon write to Jack Potofsky, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America (the men's apparel union) some week ago.

"We reiterate our commitment to work for a solution that will bring about the orderly flow of imports in the textile market."

Since Mr. Nixon is heading for the Philippines, India and Pakistan, he has been peeling time off his military and diplomatic briefings and conferences to study the economic war as well.

Sincere applause for this interest has come from Louis Stulberg, the ladies garment workers' president, who hardly has been one of the cheerleaders for Nr. Nixon is the past.

"This is nonpolitical, in the full bipartisan sense," says Mr. Stulberg. "The President should be concerned with this problem during his trip and his discussions with other world leaders in Asia. Foreign imports are corroding the efforts all of us are making to end the turmoil which has been ripping apart our cities and the nation itself.

"These imports are slashing at the jobs, the sheer livelihoods and the standards for which we have been fighting for decades. These imports are hitting the smallest towns, the communities of impoverished Appalachia, the areas where there are just no other jobs except in the mills and needle plants. If the dumping continues, what good are all those solutions of those urban councils? In our industry, some 85 per cent of the employes are women earning the basic family income, many in areas where the men simply can't find work, or need supplementary money to keep the family from falling under that grim poverty line.

"This isn't idle talk. Believe me, our national destiny is involved. After all, what develops into policy here will affect basic steel, shoes, machinery, and the whole range from foodstuffs to flint glass."

A close aide of Mr. Nixon, one fully authorized to speak for him, says that the dumping undoubtedly will come up during the President's conversations abroad. Though the toughest competition pours from Japan, the Rising Sun products are having their tough competition too.

Low-wage production and exports into the U. S. have gone a full circle. It's fascinating to watch. At first, the Japanese poured in their brutally low-wage products. Then, cheaper labor plants sprang up in Hong Kong, then in South Korea, then in Malaysia, the Philippines and now in Singapore, Indonesia and Pakistan. The goods -- which require no style -- are made in penny-ante sweat shops. And I mean pennies paid for 12-hour shifts. Then the production leapfrogged those continents.

The new Caribbean nations in the sun wooed producers of the soft goods, apparel and synthetic fiber cloth.

Plants were jerry-built in Jamaica, Barbados, and even Haiti -- thus threatening Puerto Rico which has pulled itself up by its Operation Bootstraps. Hurt to the Puerto Rican economy could stir new floods of island workers back into the big mainland cities -- and ghettos.

But for the while the massive threat is from the Singapores, Pakistans and Philippines. So, the labor leaders, backed by the manufacturers, have urged Mr. Nixon, in turn, to urge Asian nations to impose quotas on their exports to the U. S. Or, in less diplomatic terms, cut the dumping.

So. Mr. Nixon's pre-trip briefings contain items on pants, shirts and ladies garments.

The labor leaders add that he should pack a needle or two as well.

He's Beseiged By Agressive Females Lately

Dear Ann Landers: Last night my mother and I had an argument. One word led to another and she said pretty cutting things. When my mother starts to yell the best thing to do is not answer, and get busy, with something. So I went to my desk and began to write a letter.

Mom came up behind me and screamed, "You are writing your father, arent you?" (They are divorced). I said, "Yes." Then she shouted. "You will not be allowed to mail that letter until I have read it. I'm not going to have youtelling lies on me."

Ann, I didn't even mention my mother's name in the letter, yet she stood there until I finished writing and then insisted that I hand it over. Is this fair? Isn't a 15-year-old entitled to some privacy? My mother says as long as I live under her roof she has the right to know everything I say and do. Is she correct? — Bugged

Dear Bugged: Any person who is old enough to write should be permitted to mail a letter without censorship. Your mother sounds like a sick woman. If she hasn't seen a doctor recently for a physical checkup, she should do so. In the meantime be patient. Every home needs at least one mature person, and you may have to be that one in your house.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is cheating on me. It's not another woman, I'd like to know how to fight that. It's his brothers.

There are three boys in the family and they are like triplets. Every evening they play gin rummy. On weekends they go to ball games or play golf together or go fishing.

When I was in labor with our second child, my husband left me in the hospital to go see his brother who had had a tooth pulled. It's been that way from the day we married. Brothers first – wife second

My sisters-in-law are as fed up as I am. What's wrong with these men? What can we do about it? — Fourth Fiddles

Dear Fid: The brothers are emotional adolescents. They have never emerged from childhood, and they probably never will. Outfox them by planning some interesting activities. If you women bought tickets to the theater or arranged movie dates with non-relatives, the boys wouldn't play so much gin rummy. Use some imagination. The only difference between a rut and a grave is the dimensions.

Dear Ann: You keep printing letters from girls who have to punch guys in the mouth to keep them in line. What about guys who want a nice, respectable evening, but the girls have different ideas?

I hope I don't sound like a jerk but in the last two months I've dated three such chicks. Funny thing is, Ann, I'm not much to look at and I'm not the type you'd think would turn a girl on. Yet I keep running into sexpots with far-out ideas. Any suggestions? — J.P.

Dear J.P.: I assume you are not putting me on so I'll answer in earnest. There are plenty of aggressive dames around and they usually go for quiet guys like you. My advice is head for a crowded place, make it an early evening and lose the doll's phone number.

If you have trouble getting along with your parents . . . if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How To Get More Freedom." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her incare of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope

The Gospel Visitor

By: Reedus M. Baugher
"God's Way Under Protest!"

To raise an objection against something, whether formal or informal, written or oral, is to protest. We are living in the age of protest. To object in a peaceable and honorable manner to some things is indeed an obligation and privilege. The things which we support, as well as the things we oppose reveals to some extent our character. The "Free Interprise" system, which is the American way of life, is to me the most fair of any system. It allows those with the initiative to develop their talents to their fullest, whereas, the indifferent and indolent get nowhere. But I can see signs of this system being destroyed, by the indifferent who is permitted to glory in the accomplishments of another, and the "lazy" who feast' on the fruit of anothers toil and sweat. God condemns laziness. (2 thess. 3:10-12). And there are others who have joined themselves to the wrecking crew. They disrupt, burn, and steal. The psychology of permissiveness has produced an abundant crop of anarchists. If all were like these, then there would be no schools or industries to burn. There is no suitable place for the anarchist outside the jail.

In the affairs of men, we may see much room to protest. But in the affairs of God, man has no right to object. Men are created equal, but man is not and never will be, on the level with God. (Isa. 55:8-9). Man and God are so separated it is impossible to understand the will of God, within the human level. (Jer. 10:23; 1 Cor. 1:21) We must go outside man, even ourself, to God's word, to learn His will. (Eph. 3:1-4) Human wisdom alone always rejected the pure and simple gospel of Christ, "The world by wisdom knew not God." (1 Cor. 1:21) When any man pits his ideas against the word of God. He is protesting against God and His ways. God in His wisdom has provided and chosen to save man by the gospel. (Rom. 1:16) When a person wants another gospel or perverts the one God has given, by adding, subtracting, or substitution, He is voicing his protest against God's power to save. There are many ways, in the religious world men are protesting against God's ways. Instead of "sing," some "play" on an instrument, some "sprinkle" rather than "baptize," others pray to various "saints" rather to God through Christ, some baptize "because of" rather than " for remission of sins," many wear "human" names rather than the name "Christian." Man must in his wisdom, with a pure heart, reach out in faith for the grace of God provided in the gospel. (Titus 2:11-12; 2 Cor. 5:7; Rom. 10:17; Rom. 6:16-17).

NOT HIS DAY

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — State Sen. Alfonso Montoya found frustration in a recent session of the New Mexico Legislature.

The senate in the space of a minute adopted adverse committee reports killing six bills sponsored by the Democratic legislator.

New Mexico's senate rarely has killed six bills in one day, let alone six by one senator.

Montoya is the brother of U.S. Sen. Joseph M. Montoya, D-N.M.

Of Local Interest

Mr. and Mrs. Tony Barborek and sons spent the month of June in California, visiting the family of Mrs. Barborek sister, Mr. and Mrs. James Cohn and their son, David (the boy had heart surgery May 29).

The Barboreks visited her brother's family, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Williams, in Barstow, Calif., and toured Disneyland while there.

The Apple Valley Roy Rogers Museum, Grand Canyon, Petrified Forest and the Painted Desert were other interesting stops for the Barbareks. They returned home June 28.

Mr. and Mrs. Murrell Newton, Morehouse, toured the USS Alabama and the USS Drum in Mobile, Ala., recently.

Leandro Cejas, son of Dr. and Mrs. Leandro Pablo Cehas, Sikeston, has become a student at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio.

Young Cejas graduated from McBirde High School, St. Louis, this year.

John R. Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Lee, Morley, has been notified by the University of Missouri - Rolla, that he has been awarded the Standard Oil Company Scholarship for the 1969-70 school year.

This is the third year Lee has received this scholarship. He is a junior in petroleum engineering.

FIRST FOR WOMEN

LONDON (AP) — For the first time the Church of England's two main missionary societies, although predominantly male, are headed by women. Mrs. Susanna Hodson, wife of Bishop Mark Hodson of Hereford, has been elected first chairwoman of the United Society for the Propagation of the Gospel; Miss Diana Reader Haris has been installed president of the Church Missionary Society.

Television

NEW YORK (AP) — This fall 12 million 3, 4 and 5 year-olds will be the targets of "Sesame Street" a daily television program designed to teach the nation's preschoolers certain selected basic skills preparatory to formal education.

JOAN GANZ COONEY ... executive director of the Children's Television Workshop Staff directed the study that resulted in the workshop.

Strangely enough, Joan Ganz Cooney, the woman primarily responsible for the existence of the Children's Television Workshop program, never wanted to be a teacher.

"I guess I've come full circle in a funny way," chuckles Mrs. Cooney, executive director of the Workshop which created and produced "Sesame Street." She recalls that 18 years ago, when she was graduated from the University of Arizona with a major in primary education she made up her mind about one thing: "I knew I didn't want to be a teacher."

"I quickly realized that we're going into a habit that already exists," says the attractive 39-year-old brunette. "Studies reveal that American children are exposed to television during the first four or five years of their life for a greater amount of time than they will spend attending all six grades of elementary school. " And she pointed out that television is usually available even in the poorest ghetto home.

Underwritten to the tune of $8 million by Carnegie, the Ford Foundation, the U.S. Office of Education and other federal agencies, the 26-week pilot series is aimed at all 12 million preschoolers in the United States. "But," adds Mrs. Cooney, "unless we can reach, entertain and teach the inner-city disadvantaged child — the child who hasn't been reached by educational television before — we will have failed."

In order to hold the attention of the disadvantaged child, as well as the attention of the more education-minded middle-class child, "Sesame Street" will use animation, humor, repetition, and cartoon and comic strip characters. Hopefully through the fun format, the preschooler will learn to recognize letters, to count, a sense of numbers, an expanded vocabulary and basic reasoning skills.

As Mrs. Cooney describes it, "Sesame Street" is a typical city street, populated by a set of specially created Muppet characters "where a lot of neat things happen." Excursions are taken by the street's residents to a zoo, to the shore, to see an insect flying in slow motion — all designed to broaden the child's concept of the world around him. The Man from Alphabet, a comic-adventure strip which will be a regular segment of the program — will feature appearances of live guest stars who will "appeal as much to the parents who turn on the television sets as to the children themselves." Four unknown actors ("we're in the process of casting") — an older black man, a white youth, and two women, one a black or a Puerto Rican — will be the show's hosts.

Diaries of Mrs. LBJ To Be In Print Soon

NEW YORK (AP) - Diaries kept by Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson during her five years as the nation's first lady will be published in 1971, the New York publishing firm of Holt, Rinehart & Winston reports.

The company, a subsidiary of the Columbia Broadcasting System, said Wednesday it had obtained the rights to publish the diaries. The amount paid for the rights was not disclosed.

The same publishing house obtained the rights to the memoirs of former President Johnson for a reported $1 million and plans to bring out the first volume next spring.

Ribless Corduroy 'In' for Fall

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—A new version of an old favorite, corduroy, has become fall's newest look in sportswear. Uncut corduroy with a ribless, velours-like surface comes in a multitude of styles to appeal to every taste.

Put-togethers are the fashion story from junior petites to better misses' designs.

Toppers include cropped bolero vests, long tunic vests, bush-pocketed pantdresses, blazers, battle jackets—all worn OVER something—shiny jersey shirts, floral cotton shirts, knit turtleneck sweaters, combined with pants, wide leg pants, straight leg pants, shorts—or paired with scooter skirts, wrap skirts, long skirts.

There are the multitude of do-your-own-thing looks. Go western in a yoked, shearling collared, snap-closed jacket worn with matching low rise jeans. In a South of the Border mood, select an earth brown embroidered ribless corduroy bolero. Toss it on over a wide-sleeved blouse and pair these with a sashed gaucho pant.

Be a country girl in a farmerette suspendered overall paired with a red and white flower-strewn blouse. Or be sportive in a safari jumpsuit over a shiny knit Australian bush shirt for the newest layered look.

When evening comes, go glamorous in a black ribless evening blazer suit (it looks like velveteen) worn with a dashing, lavishly laced white ascot blouse.

It's good "mix 'em up" fashion fun for fall and ribless, the new kind of corduroy, is playing the game.

SANCTUARY TO SIGN

NEW YORK (AP) — The Church is becoming a "sign" in the world rather than a "sanctuary" from it, a new study issued by the Maryknoll order contends. Called "The Church as Sign," it stresses the recognition of God's presence and saving activity outside the Church in the world-at-large, where the Church simply serves as a sign of the divine mystery embracing all men, Christian and non-Christian.

Cards Roll on

ST. LOUIS (AP) – Joe Torre, the St. Louis Cardinals portly import from Atlanta, hit the balls Thursday night he missed Wednesday.

The reason: "A little longer look at the ball."

The smiling first baseman singled, doubled and blasted one out of the park to stoke the red hot Red Birds on to an 11-3 romp over Philadelphia, their 12th victory in 14 games.

The victory moved the Cardinals up to nine games behind the Chicago Cubs, did not play Thursday.

"The inside pitches were givl ing me a little trouble, so I moved six or eight inches away from the plate. "Torre related. "They jammed me a couple times last night on pitches I should have hit."

The first inning double, he said, "came on the same kind of pitch I missed Wednesday." The hit drove in Lou Brock and Vada Pinson and gave the former Brave a season total of 59 runs batted in.

Torre now has four more RBIs than he scored all last season for the Braves. He now leads the Cards in RBIs and home runs (15).

Phils Manager Bob Skinner ruefully agreed with Torre and had a grudging good word for the whole Red Bird squad.

"They're far more aggressive at bat now," Skinner said after the game. "They're the team to beat."

Teaming with Torre in the spectacular show were Julian Javier, whose single in the second inning triggered a four-run blast that sent Phils hurler Curt Wise out of the game, and starter Mike Torrez, who yielded five hits but no runs before retiring in the seventh.

Brock singled in the first to start the 15-hit barrage by the Red Birds, then stole second to set up the double score on Torre's two-base hit.

Javier scored three times, Steve Huntz and Brock twice, Curt Flood, Vada Pinson, and Mike Shannon once each.

The Phils' John Briggs scored two of his team's runs and Rick Joseph crossed the plate for the third.

The Cards open a three-game series in Pittsburgh tonight, throwing Bob Gibson, 11-7, at Dock Ellis of the Pirates, 5-10.

The Kansas City Royals, idle Thursday, are in Chicago tonight for the start of a weekend series with the White Sox. Wally Bunker, 5-5, is the Royals starter. He will face Tommy John, 5-8.

Jackson Collects 11th Win

Parma moved within two game of nailing down the Four-County Babe Ruth league title last night as it posted a 13-7 win at Vanduser while its nearest challenger, Bertrand, was blasting Bell City 15 to 1.

Bell City and Benton is all that remains in the way of Parma and the championship. Parma hosts Bell City Monday and Benton Thursday while Bertrand will host Vanduser Thursday and travel to Benton July 28.

It was a slugfest at Vanduser where both teams collected 32 hits, 20 by the victors.

Parma scored in all but the second and sixth innings, and faced five pitchers through the seven inning game.

Mike Garrard Wendall Wagner and Reggie Gregory had three hits in four trips to the plate while Doyle Crews went four for six and Dick Ramsey two for three. All but two Parma players shared in the hitting. Crews doubled and tripled, while Wagner doubled for the only extra base hits.

Jeff Jackson picked up his 11th win of the season, going the seven innings and checking a late rally.

Ronnie Bryant, David Pobst and Tommy Britton each collected two hits, with Pobst and John Fort slugging a double and triple respectively.

Bertrand used 12 hits and eight Bell City errors to score 15 runs and remain in the running for the title. Mike Crosno collected the win and allowed only two hits.

AUNT SOLVES PROBLEM

WHITEHAVEN, England (AP) Doctors were puzzled when 9-week-old Patrick Walton cried a lot, choked on his bottle and seemed happy only when sitting upright. Then an aunt peered down his throat and pulled out a forgotten five-inch piece of plastic tube that had been inserted to help the baby start breathing at birth.

Patrick improved immediately.

After 30 Volkswagens, Father Bittman still believes.

In the beginning, Father Aloysius Bittman bought a bug.

That was in 1957 when he joined the staff of St. Anthony's Indian Mission in Mandaree, North Dakota.

Since then, Father Bittman has gone a long way. In 30 Volkswagens.

Owning two or three at a time, the Bittman staff travels 600 miles per week in each. Over dirt and gravel roads and in temperatures that go to 55 below.

A few VWs ago, Father Bittman's '65 broke through the Garrison Reservoir ice.

"It was a good time for praying," he said.

Luckily, one 255 pound priest and one 1808 pound bug floated to safety. After the ice was chopped away and a quick oil change, the good father and his faithful companion were on their way.

He was a bit peeved about the oil change though.

DUCK PROBLEMS

The optimism, engendered by duck hunters, following a report from returning inspectors of the Canadian hatching grounds may be short lived, according to Assistant Director Allen Brohn, of the Missouri Department of Conservation.

Speaking of the reports Brohn says "it is quite true that this year's hatch is the best in the past ten years, but one must remember that the hatch ten years ago was at an 'alltime low' so the increase does not exactly portray a huge increase.

"However," he adds, "we will have a duck season and I hope that the Federal boys will see fit to maybe up the mallard allocation by one mallard.

DOVE LIMIT CUT

Despite the fact that Bootheel dove hunters are reporting one of the largest hatches and concentrations in history the state, as a whole, isn't to be included in that category, state Game and Fish officials point out. As a result the 1968 limit of 12 doves has been cut to a 10 bird total for the 1969 season. Across the river in Illinois hunters have received an additional six bird kill total allowance, running their daily limit to 18. Many other states have done likewise.

WATCH BEER TABS

Fishery experts throughout the nation are reporting loss of game fish due to the unthinking throwing of beer can tabs into the water. These shiny discs, which resemble many a spoon lure, find the fish striking them and, days or weeks after the tab is taken the fish dies of stomach poison -- or injuries. So, when you snap off the top, or tab, of that can of beer while fishing be sure and drop it in the can and dispose of it in a waste container when you leave the lake.

Another cause of fish fatality is being found from the use of unclean barrels as floats for boathouses. Many of these steel barrels previously contained some poison insecticide or weed killer. As the barrels rust they allow the remains of the posion to seep into the lake. It is picked up by the current and carried throughout the area, with a resulting fish kill, the fish experts point out.

FLOOD HURTS FISHING

While the raging flood waters of the Mississippi River have almost written finis to any efforts to catch fish in the old runs of the river, from its mouth to the Bootheel area, some good will come of it, after all. The waters are nature's way of annually restocking the runs and this year some lakes, shut off from river waters since 1958, are being flooded -- and restocked again, As a result of the flooding and muddy water Bootheel area anglers are seeking fish inland in the state and at Reelfoot, Kentucky, and some private lakes in Kentucky; at Norfork, Bull Shoals and Greers Ferry in Arkansas and in Lake of the Ozarks, Wappapello. Fish Lake, and other Western and Northern state reservoirs. Some continue to trek to Enid Lake in Mississippi, where the fantastic three-four pound slab crappie continue to be caught and bass are on the schooling prowl, from the Water Valley side on O'Tuckolofa Creek and in the "Wildcat" Wilbourn brake areas. Others are getting good stringers at Tunica Cutoff, near Memphis; at Sardis and Grenada Lakes and some are going to Pickwick Lake, near Savannah, Tenn.

STOP WILD QUAIL

Arkansas quail hunters, while gleefully counting what they term" an increase in he quail crop" are still squawking about the changing habits of the Bobwhite, which sends them flying into trees and seeking far away sectors where hunting singles has proven fruitless, on many occasions.

However, tests on some of the 1969 coveys, of a method of "freezing the coveys, many of which have flushed wild, seems to work in the Show Me state, just as it does in Mississippi, Tennessee and Arkansas. And it's very simple.

Just take along a hawk call and, when the dogs begin trailing, hit a few hawk calls on the caller and the coveys will "freeze." Oftimes the covey will have to be literally kicked out of the grass, or brush.

Scouts Return From Lewallen

The wives and mothers who have had both husbands and sons gone to summer camp activities, whether military or civilian, had better enjoy the rest while they can. As of Saturday they'll both be back in town.

Last week the members of the local National Guard unit returned from summer training camp at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.

This week boy scout Troop 41, will return from summer camp activities at Camp Lewallen.

Those who attended the festivities at Camp Lewallen, near Silva, left last Sunday and are scheduled to return tomorrow.

While at camp the troops worked on their merit badges and participated in outdoor activities. At the camp there is a swimming pool for swimming activities and the St. Francis river for canoeing.

During the evening hours the boys enacted skits and sang songs around the camp fire.

HUD Approves Planning Grant For Charleston

Florida Laborer Appears in Court On Theft Charge

CHARLESTON — Billy Taylor, a laborer from Florida is scheduled for arraignment in Magistrate Court here on charges of felonious theft, according to sheriff W. J. "Pedro" Simmons.

Taylor allegedly took luggage, a camera, tape player and $160 in cash last week Thursday from apartments over Bruenderman's store on Elm Street. Eighty dollars were taken from Charles Swan's apartment; the tape player and $80 from Beverly Bond, and the camera and luggage from Mary Gregory.

The suspect was arrested at Hayti. He was a passenger on a bus enroute to Florida, and was returned to the Mississippi County jail to wait arraignment.

MAMOS Staff Meets

MAMOS staff members, Mrs. Willy Mae Hayes and Mrs. Lonnie Ruth Beck, and MAMOS trainee, Mrs. Helen Boswell of the Wardell-Gobler area are attending a three-week program in Jefferson City being sponsored by MAMOS.

The program, which got underway yesterday, will focus on migrant workers and their consumer problems. Participants will learn about consumer patterns, fraud and deceptive practices and budgeting. Highlights of the program will include how to stretch income through self-help group action, wise buymanship, and using existing government programs. Other lectures will include sections on nutrition and food buying, communication techniques, and leadership development. Classes are being held at the Holiday Inn South in Jefferson City.

Participants attending the Project Moneywise - Migrant meet are employes of the agencies working with migrants. Persons have enrolled frm a 16-state area.

Project Moneywise - Migrant is a piloting project for the Bureau of Federal Credit Unions, and is funded under the auspices of the Office of Economic Opportunity. Local arrangements were made by MAMOS, Edward D. Taylor, state director.

Oran Cancels July 21 Show

ORAN - Oran Centennial historical pageant scheduled for July 21-25, was cancelled because of insufficient funds of the Centennial Corporation at a meeting of the Centennial board Wednesday.

The board had made two payments to Rogers Productions, Inc., amounting to a consultation fee of $500 and a first payment of $1333. However, the board was unable to make the two remaining payments of the $4,912 contract, Mayor Louis Hirschowitz said.

Rogers refused an alternative offer of the board to accept 100 per cent of ticket sale proceeds of the pageant gate, W. G. Mason, board member, said.

"This is the first time in 45 shows that I have had to cancel," Jerry Lagasse, pageant director, said. He has been in Oran four weeks organizing the pageant, he said.

Hirschowitz said he does not think the Centennial Corporation will be liable for the remaining money of the contract.

Other Centennial events during the dates of the cancelled pageant will be decided at a meeting of the planning committee this week. A five-day barbecue on the City Hall grounds is scheduled to begin tomorrow, Mrs. Louis Hirschowitz said. Pork and beef will be cooked every afternoon until the supplies run out, she said.

Students Learning Graphic Arts

By CAROL WERNECK

Skilled technicians in several aspects of commercial printing are trained in the Graphic Arts class at the Sikeston Vocational School.

The course teaches students to run letter and offset presses, to operate IBM composers, executives and varitypers, to lay out papers and to do hand-set composition.

Students also learn complete dark- room procedure and the process of plate making.

Plate making involves placing material ready for the press on metal sheet, burning the material into the sheet and coating it. After this, a plate is ready for the press.

Composers, executives and varitypers work much like a typewrite, except the machines can set various sizes of type into various column sizes.

The majority of printing for the Sikeston Public School System is done by the Graphic Arts class

During the past school year, approximately $5,000, worth of printing was done by the class for the School System.

The course is 50 per cent supported by state and federal government and 50 per cent supported through local efforts.

Students may terminate the course after high school, or take an additional two years of the course in post- high school work.

The high school level of the course continues two and one half hours a day, five days a week for two years. The main emphasis is printing, during the high school two years of the course.

In the post-high school level, students concentrate on printing and related courses such as commercial art, business math, psychology, written communications, estimating, product quality control and plant supervision.

These related courses make the possibility of job promotions foreseeable.

Approximately 30 students were enrolled in the high school level of the course during the past school year, and ten persons were enrolled it in the post- high school classes.

Also, adults may take the course in night classes.

Students come from various schools in the Sikeston area including East Prairie, Matthew, Chaffee, Charleston, Kelley and Scott Central and Sikeston.

Dennis Cross, 311 Moore St., instructs the course. He received his bachelor of science degree in industrial printing from Kansas State College, Pittsburgh, Kansas.

Cross has ten years of trade experience, and he is a certified vocational education instructor.

BB Guns Bring Official Warning

BLOOMFIELD — The City of Bloomfield has issued an order that the shooting of BB guns in the city limits is a violation of a city ordinance and that anyone caught with a gun will be prosecuted if they are found shooting out street lights.

Many reports have been made on the shooting of the lights in he city limits and since parents are responsible or the actions of their children this ordinance will be strongly enforced.

---

EDISON, N.J. (AP) — A resident of a nearby suburb, who tends his lawn every weekend, decided to walk around the neighborhood to see how green was his neighbors' grass.

Wearing his gardener's clothes — dirty pants and an old sweatshirt — he strolled for about 20 minutes, stopping at several homes to gaze at the yards.

A police car pulled up and the patrolmen asked what he was up to.

When the man explained, the police said they received calls about a suspicious looking character in dirty clothes.

People just don't walk around much anymore, the police remarked.

Stoddard Tax Commission Accept Land Reassessment

BLOOMFIELD - John M. Capps, County Clerk was informed by the State Tax Commission that the figures sent to them by Stoddard County on the assessed valuation of the county property was acceptable.

Last February, Hunter Phillips, chairman of the State Tax Commission told a public gathering held at Dexter that the County assessments would have to be raised by 5 million dollars by July 1 to meet a 30 percent quota or perhaps receive an across the board raise of twice that amount.

Mr. Phillips clearly pointed out either we do something about our low assessments in Stoddard County by June or the State Tax Commission will do so. There is nothing that can be done that will qualify the schools of Stoddard County this year for state aid under the second level equalization quota and in order to qualify for state aid next year either we pass a levy in the Bloomfield School District of $.53 or raise the assessment to the 30 percent quota with a levy of $2.75. The present tax levy for the Bloomfield District is 3.30.

Last year the schools of the county lost $89,831.00 due to the low assessment ratio. By individual district Advance was penalized $8,337; Bell City, $8,112; Bernie, $11,197; Bloomfield, $10,428; Dexter, $27,435; Puxico, $9,189 and Richland; $15, 133. This year the loss to the Bloomfield School District will be at least $10,428 and probably more.

The duty of the State Tax Commission, Mr. Phillips pointed out, is to equalize property assessments throughout the state. The inflationary land values is taken into consideration, but at the same time the Commission discounts the accuracy of $10 and $15 per acre land at this time. The State Tax Commission exercises general supervision over all the assessing officers in Missouri, over county boards of equalization and appeal, and over all other property tax. It institutes proper proceedings to enforce the penalities and liabilities provided by law for public officers, officers of corporations and individuals failing to comply with the provisions of this article, and of all laws relating to the general property tax.

The State Tax Commission arrives at a ratio figure by checking land transfers recorded in the court house. For a number of years the Commission workers estimated the sale price in transfers from the revenue stamps placed on the documents, and a number of those were sent to Jefferson City each month and averaged for the ratio. Last year the Commission changed its methods and verified sales with persons who made the transfers. The inequities were clearly revealed. Last year our ratio was 18.42 this year it dropped to 18.23.

The schools come into the picture by virtue of a law passed by the legislature that ties the assessment and second level equalization quota (state aid) together, and reads as follows: "A school district may receive state aid under a second level equalization quota only if it meets of the requirements of section 163.021 (deals with minimum number of school days, adequate records and compute average daily attendance) and levies a property tax which produces an amount of not less than the product of a $2.75 cent tax on the property of the district assessed at thirty percent of true value as determined and certified by the State Tax Commission on or before February 1 of the year preceding the fiscal year in which the evaluation will be effective."

In other words, the state law requires that the rate of taxation levied by local school board meet the requirements of a formula established by the legislature if they are to be eligible for second level aid. This aid is given to school districts by the state in the amount of $14.75 per pupil in average daily attendance, and the formula for arriving at the required rate of taxation is computed by multiplying a $2.75 rate times 30 percent, and dividing the product of that multiplication by the ratio of assessment of property value determined by the State Tax Commission.

The assessors of the seven county townships were already almost through with their assessment work but after meeting with the county court they got busy and began to go over the tax books and tried to raise the five million. When the figures were all totaled they found that they had accomplished the difficult task.

The assessed valuation of the county now stands at $55,440,765.

The assessors are to be commended for their work. Many of the counties are receiving orders to increase all of the taxes, which is unfair to those whose assessments were already at the 30 percent figure because their assessors were unable to comply with the commissions request.

De Pugh Says Arrest Won't Halt Minutemen

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The national leader of the ultra-secretive Minutemen said Thursday his arrest would not deter other members of the group in their anti-Communist activities.

"The Minutemen will never quit," Robert B. DePugh told a reporter for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch during an interview conducted in the Albuquerque, N.M., jail.

Federal agents arrested DePugh and Walter Peyson near Truth and Consequences, N.M., Saturday night.

Both had been sought since Feb. 20, 1968, on conspiracy charges. Federal officials accused De Pugh and Peyson and other Minutemen of planning to rob banks in the Seattle, Wash., area to finance the group's activities.

DePugh also was wanted for failure to appear for retrial on a 1965 violation of the National Firearms Act.

Malden Fruit Market Erects New Building

MALDEN -- A 20,000 square foot all-steel building is being erected on Highway 25 north of Malden near the Cotton Belt Railroad to house the Malden Fruit Market.

The 200 x 100-foot building is being erected by P. D. and David Watson and will be leased to the Malden Company. It will be an all-metal building with a concrete base. Included will be a 50 x 100 refrigeration storage area, four banana ripening rooms, a tomato room, a cheese and margarine storage and a storage area for institutional frozen foods.

Malden Fruit Market is a partnership company owned by P. D. Watson and his son, David, and Mrs. Helen Mitchell. It came under the ownership of Mitchell-Corder Wholesale Grocery Company in 1942 and P. D. Watson became interested in the firm in 1944. David Watson joined the company in 1965.

P. D. Watson said that the target date to occupy the new building is November 1 of this year. He said that the new building will enable Malden Fruit Market to consolidate their operations all under one roof. At the present they have two warehouses on West Howard Street and two at the Airport.

David Watson, who joined his father in business four years ago, says that this fulfills a dream that he has had ever since joining up with the firm. "This will be one of the finest produce houses in thie entire area and will enable us to serve our customers better," he said.

Poyner Building Company of Corning, Ark., is the general contractor for construction of the building. Powell Supply and Service Company of Malden is the contractor for the plumbing, heating and refrigeration.

Malden Men In Hawaii

MALDEN — Two Malden men who are in the service of their country recently received a pleasant surprise when they met unexpectedly in Hawaii.

'The German Miracle

Today, only 24 years after the end of World War II, West Germany is once again the most powerful nation in Western Europe. Feared by Russia, envied by its own allies in NATO and the Common Market, the "miracle" is in evidence everywhere. There is no unemployment; its currency is so strong, it represents a direct threat to the stability of the English pound and the French franc. West Germany's exports have multiplied nine times since 1950 and its Gross National Product is $121 billion, five times the 1950 figure, despite some of the heaviest taxation in the world (34.1 per cent).

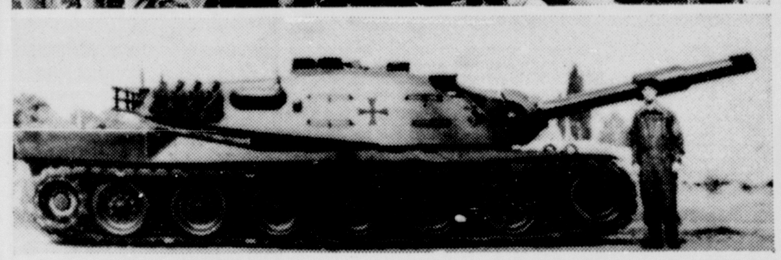

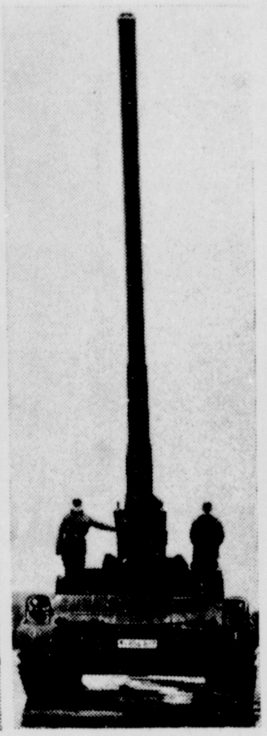

AT THE END OF WORLD WAR II, Germany was in a state of shock from the enormity of its defeat. Aided by U.S. financial priming in excess of $3 billion, Dr. Ludwig Erhard set a course which has made the country the world's second biggest trading nation and Europe's biggest coal and steel producer.

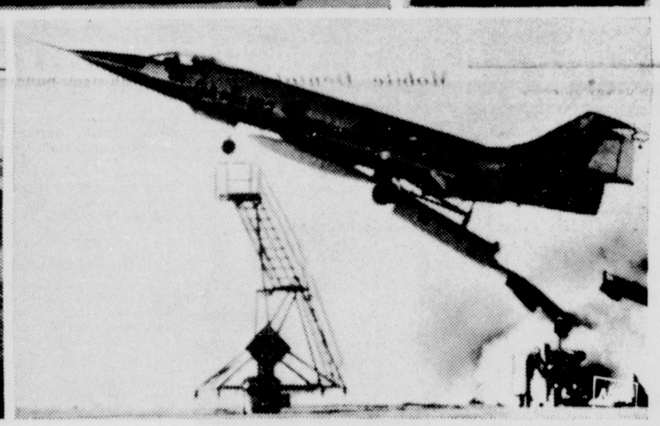

WEST GERMANY'S LEADERS are among Europe's strongest, most anxiously studied political figures. At left is Adolf von Thadden, deputy chairman of the "neo-Nazi" National Democratic Party, success of which is alarming observers in and out of the country. Dr. Kurt Georg Kiesinger, top center, leader of the Christian Democratic Party, is the West German Chancellor. Franz Joseph Strauss, bottom center, and Karl Schiller, right, are Finance Minister and Minister of Economic Affairs, respectively.

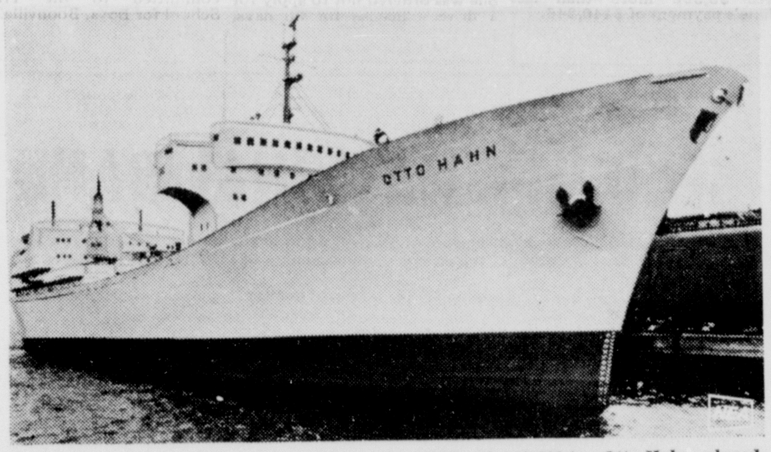

WITH WESTERN EUROPE'S biggest army and best air force, Germany is once again a strong military power. American nuclear bombs hang from the racks of its strike planes; it has developed what reportedly is the most modern armored vehicle in the Western world as well as a tank gun wtih a 40-foot barrel. West Germany has contributed 12 divisions to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

EUROPE'S FIRST nuclear-powdered merchant ship, the 15,000-ton Otto Hahn, placed West Germany among front-runners in the world race to harness atomic energy.

HELPING TO BOOST Germany's exports is this production line at an automobile factory in Munich. Today, not only are there five jobs for every unemployed German, but more than 1.3 million foreign workers have had to be imported.

Dry Summer Blossoms For Winter Bouquets

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever," wrote Britain's famed 18th century poet John Keats -- and he might well have been describing a gloriously preserved bouquet of summer flowers.

Did you know that the full beauty of summer blossoms need never die or fade away, that their vivid coloring can beautify your home for many seasons?

The art of drying and preserving fresh flowers is not new. As early as 1700 in America -- and for centuries before in Europe -- dried flowers were used for colorful winter bouquets. What is new is the rebirth of the art today and its astonishing perfection through the use of a common, inexpensive chemical -- silica gel.

Not so long ago dried flowers, no matter how expertly handled, had a somewhat faded, shriveled look. This was better than nothing, of course. Nevertheless, the true flower lover could not help feeling a tinge of disappointment. The intrinsic beauty of the flower -- its freshness -- was gone.

Today, dried flowers are incredibly like perfectly fresh blossoms. Imagine one dozen long- stemmed red roses in your living room-- in flamboyant bloom all winter long! Or if you prefer colorfully mixed summer blossoms in massed bouquets, select an abundance at your florist now, dry them, and enjoy the knowledge that their bright June beauty will beautify your home in January!

SIMPLE INSTRUCTIONS

The flower drying process and necessary equipment are so simple that one barely needs instructions. Experience, furthermore, is the best teacher. Nevertheless, here are the basics straight from the Society of American Florists in Washington, D.C.

ASSEMBLE THE FOLLOWING ITEMS:

1) A two or three pound box of silica gel, a salt- like, moisture - absorbing chemical packaged especially for flower - drying and sold under various commercial names at florist shops, garden supply centers, seed, hardware, and department stores. 2) Containers for drying. Any container with a tight - fitting cover will do. Fruitcake and coffee tins are excellent. 3) Freezer or masking tape. 4) Toothpicks and glue. 5) Containers for storing. Widemouthed Mason preserving jars are ideal. 6) No. 20 florist's wire. 7) Green florist's tape. 8) Soft artist's brush.

Now to begin. A visit to your florist will reveal the tempting array of flowers that respond beautifully to drying. The selection is far too long to enumerate here. From A to Z -- acacia to zinnia -- the Society of American Florists lists seventy - five species.

Which are your favorites? Carnations, marigolds, larkspurs, or roses? When you have returned home with flowers of your choice, cut off and discard all but one to two inches of flower stems. Save leaves. Pour silica gel into sealable container to depth of two inches.

Insert flowers face up. Lay leaves flat. Space blossoms and leaves so they are not touching. Gently sprinkle silica gel over flowers and foliage until completely covered. Arrange additional layers of flowers covering each with powder until container is filled.

Rose buds or any flower bud about one- fourth open should be placed horizontally in container on half- inch of silica gel, then completely covered. Half - open blossoms should be placed at forty - five degree angle to avoid crushing petals.

When container is full, cover with tight top and seal with freezer or masking tape. Put away in dry place where contents will remain undisturbed for required drying period: usually four to seven days.

Exact drying time depends upon size, texture, and moisture content of flowers and foliage. Tiny flowers --forget- me - nots and pansies, for example -- will dry in less than four days. Flowers with many petals -- large roses, dahlias, zinnias, and marigolds -- require up to a week.

Do not overdry. This results in "burning" -- disintegration that causes petal edges to curl and turn beige.

STEMS AND LEAVES

To remove flowers after drying, slowly pour off powder mixture until blossoms are uncovered. Gently lift out flowers -- they are very brittle when dry -- and blow away particles of silica gel. Remove any remaining particles with soft artist's brush. The silica gel, incidentally, should not be thrown away. It can be used and reused indefinitely.

In drying fresh flowers it is advisable to construct stems of wire and green florist's tape. Real stems are often too brittle for effective arrangements. Your aim in creating the stems is two-fold: a natural look, and flexibility. Place desired length of No. 20 florist's wire next to remaining inch or two of real stem under flower head. Spiral wrap stem and entire length of wire with green florist's tape. Create similar taped wire stems for real dried leaves and tape these -- as they naturally grow -- to flower stem.

Additional tips for success: full - blown roses may fall apart when dried. Carefully replace petals on receptacle, gluing one by one. Use toothpick to spread glue. If petals are intact but appear about to fall, strengthen by dabbing receptacle with glue.

Dry twice the quantity of flowers you think you will need. Even with silica gel there is some shrinkage, and you will want replacements for damaged blooms. Store excess flowers away from sun and light in sealed Mason jars.

TRUE TO LIFE

A new world of creativity opens to the maker of dried flower bouquets. The final reward lies in the astonishingly long life of your bouquet and a true - to - life quality you will find hard to believe. Roses blooming in a garden, or a field of yellow daffodils are no lovelier than these!

Two Chinas

Professor Trevor - Roper, described as an internationally-known historian and distinguished exponent of British intellectual liberalism, is one of the few Westerners who have visited both Red China and Nationalist China. His reports on both so upset the Red China-biased "Society for Anglo - Chinese Understanding" that he was forced to resign from the group;

By Hugh Trevor-Roper
Regius Professor of Modern History Oxford University

'THE SICK MIND OF RED CHINA'

It takes some time to recover from a visit to (Red) China. The immediate frustrations are overwhelming, and any man who agrees, as I did, to go on a "delegation," invited bya Chinese government agency, should take good care to protect himself before starting. We were well looked after materially. We were transported, housed, fed in comfort. But to be beset, for three weeks, by ignorant "guides"; to be severed, apparently on purpose, from all intelligent contact; to be drenched daily with identical tabloid propaganda adapted to the minds of peasant children - this is a terrible fate, hardly compensated even by the most generous hospitality.

"Remember, we are guests," I was sometimes told when driven to the point of incandescence by some puerile monologue. But my feelings were those of Anthony Wood when he found himself the guest of the then Warden of Wadham College:

"He gave me roast meat and beat me with the spit."

The first thing for which the visitor must be prepared is the propaganda. It is incessant. The theme is constant. "Before Liberation," in the "feudal age" (that is, from the beginning of time until A.D. 1949), everything was evil and it is a virtue to be ignorant of it. The only history worth recording in those 4,000 years consists of sporadic "peasant revolts," and every museum is arranged around large modern effigies, socialist- realist style, of imaginary peasant leaders. In between them we find periodic tableaux of daily life in imperial times. These are as carefully and about as tastefully, constructed as Christmas- creches in Catholic churches, and show the rich, drinking in their palaces among dancing girls and concubines, while the poor starve outside in the snow. If anything of beauty or utility was created in those "feudal" ages, it was (we are told) "by the wisdom of the labouring people," but by now it has probably been "looted by US imperialists." This is a stock phrase for the export from China of any object, by whatever process, if such export is afterwards regretted.

Then comes the great turning point, the "Liberation" of 1949. From 1949, Chinese history is suddenly worth study. The "Labouring people" have suddenly taken over. Cities which had been "consumer cities of landlords, capitalists and bureaucrats" (how well one knows the unvarying jargon) have suddenly ecome "manufacturing cities for the people."

"Peasants, workers and intellectuals" is the new tabloid phrase, and we are assured that, by an almost theological mystery, there three are now not three but one. Modern Chinese intellectuals, we were told again and agian, must never become mentally detached from the peasantry. I must admit that those whom I met seemed in no danger of being so. Even art, it seems, has been transformed. "Before Liberation," explained the vice-director of the handicrafts factory, "there was no art in China." This surprised us, but he insisted. "Since Liberation," said the modern art- dealer, "reproductions are as good as originals." They probably are.

Worst of allis the self-righteousness, which has no limits, none at all. One day, in light mood (if that is conceivable in China), we were lamenting the universal proliferation of paper forms, of bureaucracy. "You Chinese," I remarked genially, "are not ntirely blameless in the matter: you invented both paper and bureaucracy." "Yes," admitted the intellectual, "certainly there was bureaucracy before Liberation, but since Liberation," he added automatically, "it has disappeared." "Disappeared?" we asked innocently. "Certainly," replied the intellectual. Bureaucracy had disappeared in effect, for all its abuses had vanished overnight, leaving only a well- oiled machine of social justice.

We ventured to press him a little further. Supposing, for the sake of argument, that an exception should occur and a peasant should feel himself injured by a bureaucrat, what would he do? He had only to complain, we were told, and the remedy was instant. To whom did he complain? To the bureaucrat himself, of course. But supposing the bureaucrat did not welcome criticism? "Since Liberation our buraucrats do welcome it. They encourage it. They practise self- criticism. We all practice self - criticism. Chairman Mao has said that we must criticise ourselves, just as we wash ourselves, every day."

My companion modestly remarked that self - criticism was not all that easy. "I my self find it difficult to accept criticism, especially if it is real criticism, profound criticism, criticism which forces me to think again."

The intellectual looked at us almost with pity. Being capitalists, we would find it difficult, he said, but Communists were naturally free from all prejudice in their own favour. "It arises from the difference of our social systems."

It arises naturally from the social system... That is another stock Chinese phrase. Everything in Communist China is right, and it is right naturally. There is no need to ask any question, no need to define terms, no possibility of argument. The Communist social system, being itself right, must, by social determinism, produce right actions, right doctrines. The capitalist system, being wrong, equally produces wrong doctrines. So the Chinese "intellectuals," indoctrinated peasants who had never left China, would give us factual lectures about England, and any dissent was silenced by the knockout formula: "It must be so: it is a necessary consequence of the social system."

"Do they really ant to understand England?" we sometimes asked ourselves — for the purpose of our visit was to further "Anglo - Chinese understanding." But the answer was plain. They do not. Why should they? Except for certain limited purposes, England is irrelevant to them. What they want from us is technological expertise, the result of our capitalist history. But that result must come to them insulated from the ideas and experience which originally produced them.

They also want the English language . But it, too, must come insulated from English ideas, English experience. In England we teach foreign languages as part - an inseparable part – of foreign cultures. The Chinese want no such contamination. Just as their own past history has been purged of its possibly seductive ideas, just as the living art and religion of imperial times has been sterilized under the headings of "culture relics" or "superstitious objects," or ascribed to "the wisdom of the labouring people," so the English language (as its teachers sometimes complain) has been carefully divorced from English ideas. To the Chinese, it is not a means of entry to English literature or English thought. It is a means of bargaining for English machine - tools and of preaching Communist propaganda to Indians and Africans.

'A REPORT ON FORMOSA'

The Far East is in ferment. While convulsion continues in China, there have been alarms in Singapore, new threats in Korea, new violence in Viet Nam. How pleasant, we might think, to turn away from that inflamed Pacific coastline to an island of peace, Formosa.

Formosa is the one province of China where the thoughts of Chairman Mao are unread and the cultural revolution unknown. It is the last redoubt of the nationalist government of Chiang Kai- shek. A wide strait severs it from the raging mainland. American arms protect it. Outwardly it seems irrelevant to the present struggles of which Red China is the real centre. In fact I believe that it is very relevant. For Formosa is, if not the real centre, at least the model of that laternative society which may yet be created in the Far East.

This is not how most of us imagine it. We imagine it, if at all, as a large, aging garrison of exiled anti- Communists camped, under American orders, in a passive island. But most of us, as Mr. Alsop has told us, are parochial. In this at least, I think, he is right and we are wrong. If we wish to understand American policy on the mainland, where it is at war, we should look also at what it is defending, in peace.

For Formosa is not an old garrison: it is a new society, solid, prosperous and self - confident. In that social laboratory the displaced Nationalist government of China has solved, by rational, liberal methods, the problems which had defied it on the mainland, and it has solved them in a way which makes the Communist solution seem not only obscurantist but, in some ways, ineffective. (EDITOR'S NOTE: The English intellectual has an immense talent for expressing understatement).

The crux of the whole Chinese problem, after the Japanese departed was the question of the land. On the mainland, the Communists tackled that problem in a drastic manner, by peasant communes. In the name of social equality they destroyed ownership and seriously damaged production. During the same years, the Nationalist government in Formosa carried through a systematic land- reform which, within narrower limits, has been far more effective. It has achieved social justice while preserving peasant ownership nd has led, incidentally, to a great increase in agricultural production.

The first step was the statutory limitation of rent. The high rural rents formerly charged by Formosan landlords were pegged at 37.5 percent, of the main crop, thus giving new incentives to the tenant. Large holdings (including government holdings) were sold on easy terms. The peasants are now out of debt and their holdings are being rationalised. These changes have already produced a contented peasantry and a higher yield. At the same time, the landlords have not been expropriated: they have been compensated in government bonds and shares in public enterprises. The effect has been to divert many of the old landlords into the new light industries which contribute so much to the island's new in 1945. It is now 14 million, of whom only two million are immigrants from the mainland.

This land reform is the key to all else. "If we had only done this ten years earlier," an official told me, "there would have been no communism in China now." As it stands, the proposition is surely true. But could such reform have been carried out on the mainland? I rather doubt it. On the mainland the government of Chiang Kai-shek was not a free agent: it depended largely on landlords and financiers who might well have obstructed such reform. In Formosa the position was very different. There the government had tabula rasa (clean slate). It also, by this time - under the impact of the Korean War of 1950 - had effective American support which it lacked in the difficult years 1945-49. (See book review in April 22 Life- Lines - ED.)

However that may be, the errors of the past have now been repaired in this last outpost of the Kuomintang (political party of Chiang Kai-shek). Formosa has now, after Japan, the highest standard of living in Asia. Since 1965, it economy has dispensed with direct American aid. It has become the teacher of new nations, sending its technicians to advise the tropical societies of Africa which Red China has wooed in vain. it is now the shop - window of the new and more genuine Pacific "Co-Prosperity Sphere" which the Americans have built out of the ruins of the brief Japanese Empire and whose land- frontier is being defended, with such brutal tenacity, in Viet Nam. I must admit that when I see the beneficent revolution which America has patronised in Formosa, I look a little more sympathetically on its struggle in Viet Nam. Barbarous in itself, that struggle is part of a wider whole: the rough, inflamed edge of a great social as well as military undertaking.

Here are some reminders on traffic safety from the National Safety Council.

The slowpoke on the expressway is just as dangerous as the speeder. If traffic streams past you or you are leading a slow parade in your lane, speed up or get off the expressway. You are a hazard when you block traffic.

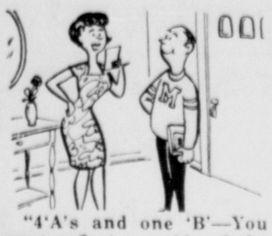

Plan every trip so you won't have to force yourself or your car. Take time to stop, stretch, rest, have a snack. You'll be more alert, more relaxed, and more comfortable - and safer.

Seat belts do save lives. Studies of actual auto crashes by investigators at Cornell University prove it. The National Safety Council estimates that at least 8,000 to 10,000 lives a year would be saved if every motorist used a seat belt every time he got into a car.

At least five cars besides your own should concern you while driving. They are the one ahead, the one behind, the one approaching in the opposing lane, the one ready to enter from a side street, and the one parked at the curb.

Teen drivers need not to be poor drivers. The National Safety Council says it's youth's lack of experience that leads to errors in judgment. Driver education courses aid in developing judgment and a sense of responsibility necessary to safe driving. Studies indicate that teens who have had formal driver education have fewer traffic accidents and violations than others.

Drinking is a factor in at least half of the fatal motor vehicle accidents, and about three out of every 10 fatal highway accidents involve vehicles going too fast or too fast for conditions, the National Safey Council reports.

MIDEAST AT A GLANCE

1. Arab guerrilla rocket attack on Israeli port of Elath sparks retaliatory Israeli air raid on neighboring Aqaba in Jordan, ending unwritten truce between the two cities and opening a new front in the unfinished Arab-Israeli war. Israel warns Jordan of a possible blockade of Aqaba.

2. Artillery battle between Egyptian and Israeli forces along Suez Canal follows Elath-Aqaba attacks.

3. Fighting spreads to Jordan River with artillery and mortar duel between Jordanian and Israeli forces. Outbreaks occur as Jordan's King Hussein visits Washington to urge Big Four powers to devise Mideast peace formula. Hussein also reportedly wants delivery of U.S. jets promised before 1967 six-day war.

TINY TIME PILLS seem to have gotten out of hand, but these actually are fiberglass-reinforced plastic tanks used in underground storage by major U.S. oil companies. The tanks replace metal ones which reportedly rust in highly corrosive soil.

A BAD DAY for Pennsylvania's Gov. Raymond Shafer who didn't get any trout this time out, despite sharp-looking gear.

PREMIER POST seems certain for Jacques Chaban-Delmas, above, who apparently has been chosen for the position by newly-elected French President Georges Pompidou. Chaban-Delmas, 54, has been a pillar of Gaullism in the 11 years he served as president of France's National Assembly.

Three Receive Scholarships

Three Sikeston area residents have been awarded sponsored scholarships to attend Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau. They are Paul David Lathum, Richard McAnulty and Miss Jane O. Tinnon.

The scholarships will cover the tuition and fees of the three for one school year of two semesters.

Lathum is a son of Mrs. Maxine Lathum, 102 East Kathleen, Sikeston. He is a graduate of Sikeston High School, where he sang in the concert choir. He also sang in the community choir, Sing-Out Sikeston and the choir at the First United Methodist Church.

He plans to study pre-engineering when he enters as a freshman in September, and this summer he is working as a heavy equipment operator. His scholarship is sponsored by the First National Bank of Cape Girardeau.

McAnulty is the son of Charles F. McAnulty, Route two, Essex. He is a graduate of Richland High School, where he was a member of the Future Farmers of America and was voted the "Best- All-Around Student." A junior at Southeast Missouri State, he is studying accounting. His scholarship is sponsored by the Cape West Rotary Club.

Miss Tinnon is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tinnon, 404 Marian, Sikeston. A senior, she is majoring in business education and is a member of Phi Gamma Nu, professional business sorority. She is a graduate of Sikeston High School where she was a member of the National Honor Society, Biology Club, concert choir, and Future Teachers of America.

Her scholarship is sponsored by the International Hat Company of St. Louis.

Malden Plans Street Paving

MALDEN -- A street paving program for the City of Malden was discussed Monday night by the City and several streets were listed to be blacktopped as soon as possible.

These streets are: Norman Drive from Highway 25 to Stokelan Drive; Tom Street from Broadwater Road to south end; Second Avenue from S. Douglass west to Illinois; the north 330 feet of N. Decatur; Hester from Highway 25 east to Beckwith; Almar Drive from Highway 25, the entire street; West Howard from Frisco RR to Rogers; Downing Blvd. from Highway 25 west to Smith, both lanes; Burge Drive from Pitman Road to north end; Barrett St. from Highway 25 west two blocks.

The Council approved a motion to let Malden Fruit Market have 17 pieces or railroad track plus some old cross ties that have not been used for years.

A letter of recommendation to the Board of Public Works was approved. It suggested that the penalty on late bills be extended to the 10th of the month following the receipt of the bill.

A committee, composed of Councilmen Evans, Bostic and Jones, were appointed to make recommendations on extension of the city limits.

Charleston Teachers In Desegregation Course

CHARLESTON — Fifty-nine persons representing the Charleston school district are enrolled this summer in a special training institute on the problems of school desegregation at Southeast Missouri State College, Cape Girardeau.

The institute, under the direction of Dr. Willard J. Morgan, a professor of education at the direction of Dr. Willard J. Morgan, a professor of education at the college, was funded with a $60,000 grant from he U.S. Office of Education. Most of the participants are from Charleston, which the Office of Education suggested as a target area, but other districts in Southeast Missouri with substantial minority enrollments are also represented.

The institute began June 30. The major portion of the training will come to an end on Aug. 1, but there will be followup sessions throughout the coming school year, according to Dr. Morgan.

Representatives from Charleston are Bob Adams, Esther Agnew, Maegerie Ballinger, Ruthe Blackwell, Beverly Bond, Alberta Brooks, Josephine Brooks, Pearla Brooks, Emma Burke, Laura Bynum, Robert L. Caldwell, Louis Chaney, Catherine Cook, Carol Cooper, Alvin Cope, James Cox, Eldoris Daniel, Ethel Daniels, Alvin Fields, Helen Fisher, Joseph Fisher, Margaret Foster, Coy Franklin, Marv Alice Gillespie, Colleen Glenn, Karen Goodman, Fred Gordon, Jim Grimes, Rex Harper, Marjorie Hobbs, Carolyn Howard, Lucile Howlett, Easter Mae Hughes Nettie B. Hunley, Donna Lonon, Martha Lyons, Maxine McDowell, Robert Merriweather, Barbara Miller, Orrel Myers, Brenda Newton, Mary Jane Orth, Ozie Reeves, Annette Robertson, Una Russell, Gussie Savage, Bill Sellers, Lucille Summerfield, Ludie Swan, Frances Telker, Don Thompson, Hazel Voelker, Carla Jo Wills, Judge Lee Whitaker, Mary Doris Zoellner, Barbara Stuhlmann, Charles Swann, Doris Thompson.

Four File For Council

EAST PRAIRIE — Ernest Douglas, Freemont McTigue, Jack L. Adkisson and Davis Siars have filed for councilmen and will be on the ballot along with Mayor Lloyd Hogan, David Brumley, K. G. Whittington and Dr. A. L. Weaver incumbents, in the general election that will be held August 19. This makes a total of eight men who have filed for the position. If more than ten candidates file for election it will be necessary to call a primary Tuesday, August 5, however; if only ten file then the primary will not be necessary. Prospective candidates have from now until Friday, July 25 at 5 p.m. daylight time to file for the office. In order to file, prosective candidates must stop by the city clerk's office and fill out a statement of candidacy.

Camp Letters

Long letters is one thing parents appreciate when their children are away at camp. Mr. and Mrs. Norvil Edwards received these letters from their daughter, Teresa, 10.

Dear Mother,

I am in advanced beginners in swimming lessons. It is rest hour now, so I have to go.

Love, Teresa.

Dear Family,

We went to the lake and swum until 4:30. Then, it was rest hour. Then, you can write letters. Tell Cheryl I miss her. In the morning I am going to swimming lessons and to mail this. I miss all of you.

With all my love, Teresa.

Dear Daddy,

I am homesick. I miss you very much. Come and get me. With all my love, Teresa.

Local Law Against Nude Film Showing Put Down

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Morris operated a drive-in theater that showed pictures of people running around only in their silhouettes or, as the enraged townfolk put it less delicately, he showed nudist films.

Peeking at the films only when it was unavoidable or, rather, talking a dim view of such indecent films, the townfolk ultimately prevailed upon the town board to pass an ordinance that provided for the revocation of a license to show movies in a drive-in where the mayor finds "immoral activity on the premises."

"That ordinance isn't any good," protested Max. "It sets the mayor up as lord high executioner of drive-in theaters. And for a man who's best opinion is of himself, it gives him too much discretion as to what's immoral."

"It doesn't take a Puritan to determine what's immoral," was the answer, "when your talking about people running around without any clothes on. When they grin and bear it, that speaks for itself."

Determined to fight the validity of the ordinance, Morris took the matter to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you uphold the validity of the ordinance?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the ordinance was too vague and idenfinite to be valid. Without some standard to decide whether activities on the premises were immoral, the Mayor could make those words mean just what he wants them to mean.

As example, he might decide that going to the movie on a Sunday was immoral. Furthermore, concluded the judge, here's no specification as to whose immoral activity is to be judged and without a closed circuit television system in each vehicle, there's no way knowing what's going on in each car as the movie is going on.

Eight Red Cross senior life savers were on hand for the opening session of the annual water safety instructor's course at the municipal swimming pool this morning. The course is being given by Ernie Vornbrock, veteran Red Cross water safety and accident prevention field representatives. The four persons from Sikeston taking part in the course are Al Bach, Charles Berthe, John Kendig and J.D. Schwab.

A narrow two-vote majority by Miner Switch school district patrons in a special election at Miner Saturday carried the proposal to annex the districts to Sikeston.

Now approaching completion after many delays occasioned by excessive rainfall, the Sikeston Drive-In Theater, located on Highway 60 just east of the new city limits, will open for operation sometime during the next few days, according to an announcement today.

Robert A. Green, jr., 28, of Caruthersville, son of Mr. and Mrs. R.A. Green of Sikeston, died at Missouri Delta Community Hospital here this morning from an accidental bullet wound. The accident occurred when Mr. Green and his cousin, Winfield Pankey of Caruthersville, were examining a .25 calibre pistol belonging to Pankey.

Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Friday, July 18, the 199th day of 1969. There are 166 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in the year 64 A.D., the great fire of Rome began. The legend is that Emperor Nero set the fire and fiddled as the city burned.

On this date:

In 1792, the American naval hero, John Paul Jones, died in poverty in Paris.

In 1914, the U.S. Army created an aviation section within the Signal Corps.

In 1932, the United States and Canada signed a treaty to develop the St. Lawrence River into a seaway and power project.

In 1938, flier Douglas Corrigan —nicknamed "Wrong Way Corrigan"— arrived in Ireland after leaving New York on a flight ostensibly to California.

In 1940, a Democratic convention in Chicago nominated President Franklin D. Roosevelt for a third term.

In 1963, the government of Syria squelched a revolt led by pro-Nasser revolutionaries.

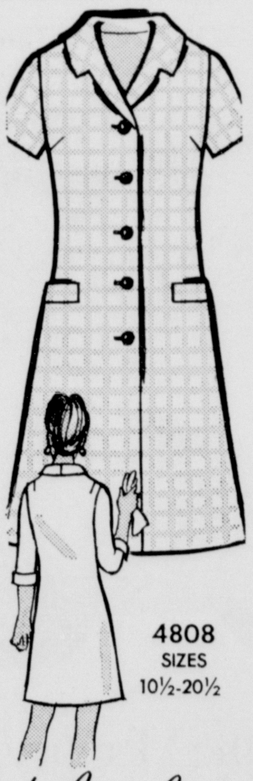

Ten years ago: Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro was attempting to oust President Manuel Urrutia Lleo.

Five years ago : The killing of a 15-year-old Negro boy by an off-duty white policeman in New York led to a four-day outbreak of racial violence in the city's Negro neighborhoods.

One year ago: Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower endorsed Richard M. Nixon for the Republican presidential nomination.

Sharks Pose Problem in Recovery Zone

ABOARD THE USS HORNET (AP) — Recovery crewmen rehearsing the Apollo 11 pickup in the Pacific are encountering more sharks than in any previous spacecraft recoveries.

Because of this, the carrier Hornet will launch a 26-foot wooden whaleboat with armed sailors to protect the spacemen and the recovery swimmers.

National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials on board and the swimmers agree that the number of sharks exceeds previous splashdowns.

The sharks have damaged some equipment, but have made no menacing moves toward swimmers.

Those aboard this recovery carrier hope the sharks will disappear before the splashdown, 700 miles away from the ship's present location

Conrad to Attempt Polar Flight Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Max Conrad, the world's most active small-plane pilot, plans a second try next winter at becoming the first person to fly around the world pole to pole in a light plane or solo.

He hopes to land on the South Pole airstrip about Christmas Day and then go on to the North Pole and touch down at the nearest safe point—probably on an ice island some 200 miles from the pole.

Good Samaritan Acts Repeated By Hannibal Pair

HANNIBAL, Mo. (AP)—Nearly 11 years ago, two teen-age boys plunged into Fair Creek near Hannibal in a vain attempt to rescue two little girls from a submerged automobile.

The rescuers were later identified as Jim Lamont Jr., and Harlon Lain of Hannibal, both 17 at the time.

Earlier this week, two young men waded chest-deep into a roadside ditch near Hannibal in another vain attempt at rescue. They righted an overturned car, but the two Crestwood, Mo. girls inside were dead.

The young men left the scene without identifying themselves, but a Hannibal Courier-Post reporter tracked them down and got their names—Jim Lamont Jr., and Harlon Lain, now 28.

A few weeks ago, a car with two small girls inside rolled down an incline on a super market parking lot toward Hannibal's busy Market street.

A passing motorist stopped his car on Market, ran to the runaway car and brought it to a stop before it reached the street. The motorist backed the car to its original parking place set the handbrake and departed without identifying himself.

The Courier-Post reporter found out who the good samaritan was—Jim Lamont Jr.

Six Flags Park Planned for St. Louis Area

ST. LOUIS, Mo. AP) — Angus Wynne Jr., chairman of the board of Great Southwest Corp., announced plasn Thursday to build Six Flags Over Mid-America, an amusement park with an historical theme.

The multi-million-dollar park will be built near St. Louis. Completion is scheduled for the summer of 1971.

It will be the third Six Flags park build by Great Southwest. Six Flags over Texas, between Dallas and Fort Worth, has been in operation since 1961, and Six Flags over Georgia in Atlanta opened three years ago.

The Missouri park will have six sections based on the history of the Midwest under the flags of Spain, France, Britain, Missouri, Illinois and the United States.

Wynne said the site near St. Louis was selected because of the attendance potential in the area. He said more than 70 million people live within a 500-mile radius of the city.

Construction on the park will begin this week, Wynne said.

Car Theft At Dexter

DEXTER — The sheriffs office recovered checks and other papers stolen in the robbery of the Poe Clinic in ditches near Dexter. Still on the missing list is cash and narcotics taken in the early morning theft on July 7. Found with the papers and checks were two pairs of gloves.

Early Friday morning Dr. Poes 1968 black and green Cadillac was stolen from the garage at his residence.

Apollo Crew to Bring Back Wives' Souvenirs

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Apollo 11 astronauts are expected to bring back a cherished souvenir from the moon for their wives, but the women prefer not to say what the items are.

"Yes, he took something very special for me," Mrs. Edwin E. Aldrin Thursday, "but I'd rather not say what it is."

"That's private," said Mrs. Neil A. Armstrong when asked if her husband was carrying a memento for her.

"I hope so, I expect so," said Mrs. Michael Collins when asked if her husband took a personal item on the moon trip to bring back to her. She said the identity of the memento was a secret.

Apollo May Be Contamination Threat to Ship

ABOARD USS HORNET (AP) — A U.S. space official says he is still trying to determine how far away this recovery ship must be when the Apollo 11 capsule lands in the Pacific to insure that the 2,000 people aboard, including President Nixon, are safe from possible lunar contamination.

Existence of the problem arose at Thursdays news briefing at which the ship's commander, Capt. C. J. Seiberlich, said one purpose of daily recover training exercises was to establish ground rules for positioning the Hornet at splashdown time early July 24 "to avoid possible contamination of the ship."

Asked how the tightly sealed capsule could endanger a ship expected to be at least two miles away when it hits the water, Dr. Donald Stullken of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said that air vents on the Apollo craft open when its parachutes pop out and are not closed until after touchdown.

"If the ship was close enough down wind," he said, "it might be possible for the ship to be contaminated."

He said he had asked NASA officials at Houston, Tex., to compute safe distances under varying wind conditions and that he expected an answer in adequate time.

The vents, designed to expel stale air, are among several areas to be scrubbed with iodine solution by a frogman shortly after splashdown. This presumably would kill any moon germs brought into the spacecraft by the astronauts after their walk on the lunar surface.

possibility," flight director Clifford Charlesworth told newsmen. "The answer to that is a function of what our status is when we get there, the status of the spacecraft and the status of the crew."

Eagle is to land on the moon's Sea of Tranquillity at 4:19 p.m. EDT. Armstrong and Aldrin have several checkout and preparation chores, plus a four-hour rest period planned before Armstrong takes the first step on the surface at 2:21 a.m. Monday.

Charlesworth said the crew could elect to skip the rest period if they felt alert enough to face the potentially dangerous, demanding tasks planned during 2½ hours o outside exploration.

The astronauts Thursday night transmitted a 35-minute live telecast from their weightless home—20 minutes longer than scheduled.

They plan another 15-minute transmission start at 7:32 p.m. today, and may also relay a show from inside the LM when Armstrong and Aldrin transfer into the lander at 5:47 p.m.

Increases in real estate assessments were ordered in 38 of Missouri's 114 counties.

Ship Collision Probe Ends

MANILA (AP) — The U.S.-Australian naval board investigating the collision of the American destroyer Frank E. Evans and the Australian aircraft carrier Melbourne ended its inquiry today and sent a secret report to the two navies.

U.S. Rear Adm. Jerome H. King, senior member of the board, said the panel's specific findings would not be released now, but he praised the heroism and "actions far beyond the call of duty" shown by men of both ships.

The Melbourne sliced through the Evans before dawn on June 3 while the two vessels were taking part in Southeast Asia Treaty Organization maneuvers in the South China Sea. The forward half of the destroyer sank, and 74 Americans were lost.
